Weekend Roundup

THE current series of articles appearing in this newspaper, showing how Klamath's industrial activities have been tuned to the war effort, prove that we do have important war industries here, large and small, and that they are doing their part effectively.

Here we are building grain bins to help meet a serious grain storage problem of countrywide scope. Here we are making thousands of screens for pre-fabricated houses at an ordinance depot in Utah. Here we are turning out millions of feet of lumber for war uses. Here we have in the making one of the basin's finest crops; to go into "food for fighting." Here we have machine shops working on navy contracts and other war jobs. Here we have a big transportation lay-out doing its part to keep the materials of war moving.

Men and women of the Klamath country, engaged in these activities, must find gratification in the knowledge that they are playing an important part in the war program, that whatever they do to promote efficient production, industrial tranquillity, and cooperative endeavor, is a real contribution, regardless of whether it is acclaimed in public speeches or the public press.

Likewise, those who supply goods or render services to these busy people, are doing a job that is essential.

We know here that while there are no military installations in the community, we are not sitting off to the side, getting along on our own without participation in a big war effort going on elsewhere. We are in this thing in a way that counts.

At the same time, we who live and work here are enjoying certain comparative advantages over those who have crowded into the big centers.

The other day, this newspaper carried a story telling of the difficult housing conditions existing in those coastal centers. Nothing of the kind confronts us here, place where there is plenty of room to live and move about, where life is a fairly normal affair, where schools are not crowded and goods and services are still easily available to all.

Those who live here in this war period are enjoying a pretty favorable combination of circumstances.

Streamlined to meet wartime conditions, the Klamath county junior livestock show will be held Monday. This is the 1942 edition of the fall shows of past years that have been featured by the exciting auction sale and the high prices for prime stock grown by juniors of the Klamath basin.

Important differences this year will be the elimination of the auction, judging of cattle on a group basis, and limiting the show to a single day.

Instead of the open auction, sealed bids are being taken on the championship stock. Champion groups of four or five individual animals will be chosen in the steer, hog and lamb divisions. All of the stock, it is expected, will be sold somewhat above market prices, with the competitive bidding applying to the champion groups.

While there will be no auction to draw the crowds, we suggest to local people that they make it a point to visit the junior livestock show Monday, to see the fine stock grown by the youngsters of this basin. The affair will be held at the county fairgrounds.

Work, fight or go to jail is the warning which Acting Police Chief Earl Heuvel has issued to shiftless transients and habitual "vags" in this vicinity. But jail is a little too easy. Something should be done to get the regular inhabitants of the city and county jails into the productive column.

The day has passed, too, for handouts to moochers of all sorts.

RECKLESS DRIVER GETS $50 FINE

Ralph Hollingsworth, 20, a Keno lumber worker, was fined $50, $25 of which was suspended, this morning in police court on a reckless driving charge growing out of a freak early morning accident on East Main street.

Police said that the Hollingsworth car, travelling east on East Main, failed to make the curve near Mills school, struck the corner of a building at 515 East Main, bounced off a tree in front of a residence at 517 East Main, spun around and tore up the lawn, and wound up behind a second tree pointed in the direction from whence it came.

Skid marks for a distance of 120 feet on the pavement were noted by officers.

The car, a light coupe, was badly damaged and Hollingsworth's face and left kneecap cut. The driver was alone in car, police said.

COFFEE LIMITED
WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (P)—The war production board Friday ordered a further 10 per cent reduction in the amount of coffee available to American consumers, effective September 1.

If your dealer is out for the duration, advertise for a used one in the want-ads.
