fused to break in bitter hand-to-hand fighting in the trenches when the Germans attacked a second time.

Soviet dispatches said the red armies were being pledged on the field to fight to the death.

Allied Action

As the crisis mounted, with Adolf Hitler racing to strike a decisive blow ahead of the United Nations gathering thunderheads, London newspapers said the jaunty homecoming of Prime Minister Churchill from Moscow last night indicated that allied action to relieve the U. S. S. R. was imminent.

Significantly, one of the first to greet Churchill was Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of British combined operations, who directed last week's "invasion curtain-raiser" assault on Dieppe, France.

Today Mr. Churchill conferred with war cabinet colleagues on secret plans he brought home from Moscow, and the feeling grew in London that spectacular developments might soon follow.

Disclosure that he visited Iran (Persia) and Iraq as well as Egypt on his three-week journey suggested that the middle east, now threatened by a gigantic nazi pincer movement from the Caucasus and Egypt, would play an important role in forthcoming operations.

A nazi bulletin also asserted that German troops had planted the swastika four days ago on 18,471-foot Mount Elborus, the highest peak in Europe, and declared that several passes in the western Caucasus had been mastered by German vanguards.

ment yesterday that 13 out of 47 enemy planes were shot down Sunday over Darwin. Again last night, Japanese planes tried unsuccessfully to bombard the far northern Australian port. Their bombs fell in a swamp, the communiqué said.

Another failure for enemy aviation occurred over New Britain, it added, where two enemy Zero fighters tried vainly to intercept an allied reconnaissance unit and one was last seen afire.

In the first action reported around in the jungle warfare on New Guinea since Aug. 17, the communiqué said Japanese ground patrols were dispersed at Kokoda, the point where enemy forces which landed at Buna and Gona have penetrated deepest in the overland thrust toward allied-held Port Moresby.

Clifford Jenkins, director of the show.

Champions

Fat stock was classified as to grade with several animals named as champions in each group. Sealed bids, opened Monday afternoon, disposed of the prime animals as follows:

Champion steers were purchased from Jean Masten, Olene Buckaroos, by the Klamath Billards for $209.76; Norman Jacobs, Merrill Baby Beef club, by Sears Roebuck and company for $181; Ed Young, Henley, by the Weyerhaeuser Timber company for $174.60; Bob Horton, Olene Buckaroos, by W. E. Lamm for $153; Charles Chyne, Henley, by Carter's Fine Foods for $148.68.

Champion lambs were bought from Don Abraham, Bonanza, for 76 cents per pound and from Betty Chinn, Merrill Sheep club, for 41 cents per pound by Sid Elliot of the J. C. Penney company; from Louisa Keller, Henley Sheep club, by Sears Roebuck and company for 25 cents per pound; Bill Noonan, Merrill Sheep club by W. E. Lamm for 23 cents per pound.

Capon Bought

Henry Semon and Marshall Cornett purchased 11 capons weighing 70 pounds all together for a total of $35.57. Growers of these choice birds were Lorraine Stover, Alma Stover, John McClellan, Ruth Haynes and Mary Haynes, each of whom exhibited two birds, and Merle Woodley with one. Four of the capons weighed in at eight pounds each.

Top Grade

There was only one entry each in the breeding beef and breeding hogs classification, but each of them was judged to be a top grade animal. Alma Stover of the Olene Buckaroos exhibited a fine Hereford, and Bob Griffith, Henley, showed a six month old Poland hog of championship caliber.

In contrast, there were 31 breeding sheep entered, with 10 of them rating class A. Those winning this distinction were as follows: Robert Murphy, Ben Murphy, Muriel White, Stanley McClellan and Jean Keller, two, all of the Henley Sheep club; Laura Lou Hill, Merrill, two, Ruth Peyton and Harold Peyton, one each.

Dairy Stock

Judges awarded four animals top rank among the dairy stock, with Guernseys and Jerseys sharing equal honors. The young growers responsible for them were Gene Reiling, Olene Dairy club and Jean Keller, Henley Dairy club, both with Guernseys and Helen Jackson, and Donna Kinney, Olene Buckaroos, both exhibiting Jerseys.

Paul Fairclough of Henley and James Woodhouse, Merrill, took top honors with their displays of fine wool fleeces from a field of 24 entries.

Poultry Class

The top ten growers in the poultry class were John McClellan, Charles Thurman, Jerry Schubert, Colleen Schroeder, Collette Schroeder, Charles Perry, Louisa Keller, Mary Haynes, and Lorraine Stover.

Champion rabbit growers were John Burnett, Anthony Travis, and James Warner, with Alma Stover and Lorraine Stover taking top honors for grade A eggs exhibited.

Showmanship

The only competitive features of the event were in showmanship, with contestants placing as follows: Beef showmanship, Virginia Lee Benoist, first; Edna Crawford, second; Charles Sullivan, third. Sheep showmanship, Laura Lou Hill, first; Cloe Bradley, second; Bill Noonan, third. Dairy showmanship, Jean Keller, first; Muriel White, second; Donna Kinney, third.

The show itself showing the results of the cooperative efforts of the sponsoring Rotary club, other business men, 4-H club leaders and members was judged to have been one of the finest ever, in quality if not in quantity, according to Jenkins. The show committee is scheduled to meet in the next few days to evaluate different features of the annual affair in order to determine policies and plans for the future.

CITY FATHERS ADOPT VENDOR LEGISLATION

which the majority opinion was represented by Justices Roberts, Frankfurter, Byrnes, Jackson and Reed. And the dissenters were Chief Justice Stone and Justices Black, Douglas and Murphy.

$10 License

The Klamath Falls ordinance requires a license of $10 for "itinerant vendors, dealers and distributors" of magazines, etc., who do not operate from any regular place of business. The license is subject to revocation at the discretion of the council. Vendors of newspapers and Bibles are exempt. The ordinance was proposed after citizens complained to the council against activities of Jehovah's Witnesses.

James Davis, representing Jehovah's Witnesses, told the council in a lengthy, prepared statement that the ordinance violates the right of freedom of press and religion as provided in the bill of rights in the constitution.

He declared it provides for a tax upon the privilege and the rights set up in the constitution. It is a first step, he asserted, in progressive intolerance.

Court to Reconsider

At the close, he told the council that it is understood the U. S. supreme court is to reconsider in September its decision on a like ordinance, and said that a number of other cities are taking action until then.

"Back up the boys doing our fighting," shouted Angus Newton, past commander of the American Legion, in urging the council to adopt the ordinance. He attacked the Jehovah's Witnesses as pro-fascists and called them "termites." He said that American Legion investigation had shown the true colors of the organization, and advised his listeners to "hold on to your seats" while he related the Legion's findings, which he said proved conclusively the Witnesses are un-American.

Adoption Urged
Representatives of the carpenters' union, who first complained to the council about Jehovah's Witnesses, were present to urge the council to adopt the restrictive ordinance. Karl Johnson, spokesman for the group, said he had bought and read one of the Witnesses' tracts, and asserted he found things there indicating disloyalty to this country and its allies.

He noted in particular mention of the "Catholic dictator" of Canada, and an item questioning the honesty of price administration in Washington, D.C. Final speaker called upon by Mayor Houston was H. J. McGilvray, commander of the local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He said he had not had much time to study the matter, but that any organization which would not salute the American flag is subject to question as to its loyalty.

McGilvray and Newton were applauded as they concluded their talks, and Councilman Rollin Cantrell immediately moved for adoption. Cantrell had already made the motion, before the discussion started, but repeated it at that time. It was seconded by Councilman Martin and carried unanimously.

No Discrimination
There was virtually no council discussion prior to the talks by the visitors. Councilman Wiesendanger asked if the ordinance would affect the sale of the War Cry by the Salvation Army, and City Attorney Carnahan said that there could be no discrimination in enforcement of the ordinance.

Davis, the representative of the Witnesses, in answer to a question from Mayor Houston, said his headquarters were at Brooklyn, New York. He left immediately after making his talk. Once, when Councilman Cantrell asked a question, he dismissed it with the statement, "Your question will be answered later."

The council chambers were well filled with spectators. Back at Work—Ray Sorenson, clerk in the S. P. passenger office, has returned to work following a trip to Portland where his wife underwent a major operation.

Editorials on News

ers is not related in today's navy communicate. Presumably they got away.

ONE gathers from the scanty disclosures that the Jap fleet kept right on coming.

At any rate, it is related that on Monday (yesterday) our airplanes hit and damaged a Jap TRANSPORT and a cruiser north of Guadalcanal.

The transport indicates that the Japs are out for blood and intend to land troops (if they can) to drive out our Marines.

THAT is the story, as told in today's communiqué, which adds that the action "is continuing."

That is to say, the battle is still on. There is nothing as yet to indicate that the Japs have turned tail, as they did on August 8. Everything we have as these words are written indicates that they are still closing in.

The real battle appears to be still ahead of us — perhaps is being fought now.

BE sure to remember that the picture of the fight revealed to us in today's communiqué is ONE-SIDED. We are told what has been done to the enemy, but nothing is said of the losses on our side.

If you're not careful, you'll get the idea that once again we've plastered the Japs. That isn't necessarily true. We've inflicted losses on them, but we have undoubtedly suffered losses ourselves. All the news so far indicates that they're still coming on instead of turning back. There is no estimate of total Jap strength involved.

We'll simply have to wait for more news.

NOTE that there is no mention of warships shooting at each other in the traditional manner of naval warfare. So far the STRIKING done has been entirely by planes. That is to say, the battle as so far described, is the NEW kind of naval warfare.

But, of course, it isn't over. Its later phases may change the picture.

The member of the senate military affairs committee said there had been some delay in getting supplies to Alaska but that the situation could be remedied.

He was critical, however, of some efforts, particularly on censorship. At Fairbanks, he said, he bought a packet of snapshots of Alaska and sent it to a grandchild. It arrived with a censor's notation that one photograph had been deleted. "I imagine you can buy the pictures at any drug store in Portland," he said.

ANGSTEAD NAMED JUNIOR HIGH HEAD

students will report at 9 a. m. Tuesday, September 1.

Angstead's appointment as principal of the junior high school was made by the school boards in meeting Monday night. The new principal has served several years as head of physical education work in the elementary schools. He will head up the all-city eighth grade program to be established this year at Fremont school, and also will serve as vice principal of the regular Fremont school, where senior principal will be August Parker.

The school boards took action on a number of other personnel matters Monday night, moving to meet rapidly developing vacancies as teachers resign to go into war work and to other school systems.

Resigns

Miss Dorothy Schupp, mathematics teacher at the high school, resigned to work in an airplane factory at Seattle. She will be succeeded by Mrs. Caroline Fowler, Klamath Falls.

Mrs. Laura Cox, Tulelake, long-time teacher in Vancouver, B. C. schools, was employed as science teacher in the high school.

LeRoy Erdmann, formerly with the grade schools, was appointed teacher of industrial arts in the high school.

Mrs. Karen Nelson Davis resigned as instructor in home economics.

The elementary school board received resignations from Mrs. Ruth Anne Napier, who is moving to Fort Stevens, and Mrs. Jules Cassel, who is moving to Portland.

Secretary Named

The board appointed Mrs. Dorothy Whitelaine as secretary for the superintendent and clerk.

Rolla Gould, high school principal, on Tuesday urged that any new student in town should register at the high school some time this week.

He said a meeting of all teachers of the system will be held at the high school at 9 a. m. Monday, and high school teachers will meet at 10 a. m.

Students will report at 1 p. m. Buses will pick them up between 12 and 1 p. m.

The city school board decided to permit first grade entrance this year by 5-year-old children who will be 6 years old before November 15. Those whose birthdays occur after that date cannot enter the schools this year.
