Ducks, Geese to Have Safer Time With Hunters at War

TULELAKE — Ducks and geese on the public hunting grounds in the Tulelake area will probably go on vacation this fall while hunters who usually frequent the marshes will go to war, according to Bernard C. Schultz, president of the Tulelake-Butte Valley Sportsmen's association who stated this week that the higer to local waters will probably be 50 per cent of normal. Hotels and the Tulelake Boat company, of which Schultz is manager, have received few requests for reservations to date. The hunting season opened September 1 on doves and will open October 15 on ducks, to run for 70 days. Length of the dove season was not known by officials of the association. Slight changes have been made in the bag limits on ducks and geese. Ten ducks a day may be taken with 20 in possession. Only two geese a day may be taken, one less than last season, with four in possession. The hunting area will be practically the same as in past years with the exception of the millitary zone at the Japanese center. Boundaries of the restricted area have as yet not been determined by army officials, but will be made public before the opening of the duck and geese season. Thousands of waterfowl were hatched in Tulelake this year and thousands of ducks are also coming in, principally northern sprig or pin tail. Fewer geese have been seen with a few white fronted geese arriving. The association will meet again this month.

BEAUTY QUEEN CONTESTANTS VIE AT NEWELL

NEWELL, Calif. — With all the fanfare and publicity of a national beauty contest, various groups and organizations at Newell have sponsored a contest for a beauty queen to be chosen from among the colony's members.

Twenty-one girls representing as many departments in the colony's business and social setup, have been chosen to compete for first honors, which will be decided at an elaborate Labor day celebration.

Already, Newell is plastered with gay banners and placards urging citizens to vote for their choice. Beauty alone is not the criterion. Personality, popularity and other considerations will be taken into account by the voters.

On the evening of August 31, the contestants were presented in an outdoor rally at which approximately 6000 enthusiastic spectators cheered the various contestants. Some of the young ladies were presented in a novel manner—by skits, songs and travesties which were heartily applauded. Other contestants sang, danced, or otherwise presented themselves to advantage.

A queen and six attendants will be chosen to reign over the festivities of Labor day. She will head the procession in a float to the outdoor stage where she will be formally presented during the evening's musical program.

Some 15,200 people living together in a colony such as Newell present unusual health and sanitation problems. Various aspects of this condition were discussed and preventive measures adopted. The week's activities were climaxed on Monday evening at a mass meeting when Dr. Carson and other responsible citizens of the community spoke to the listeners on subjects vital to health and sanitation.
