WASHINGTON HELD PUTTING OFF WAR DRIVE

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (AP) Clarence Budington Kelland, executive director and publicity chief of the republican national committee, declared in advance of a western speaking trip today that the administration appeared to be putting off a full war effort until after the elections have the attendant sacrifices.

"There seems to be a disposition on the part of the powers that be," he said in an interview, "to postpone an all-out war effort, with the sacrifices it entails by the public, until after the elections. There seems to be apprehension lest the asking of necessary sacrifices now have a political effect and loss of votes."

Safeguards Gone
Calling for an "independent" congress in the November elections as did Frank E. Gannett, newspaper publisher, in accepting the assistant chairmanship of the G. O. P. national committee yesterday, Kelland described the United States as the "greatest company in the world" with every citizen an investor and with age-old checks upon its operations to prevent ill-advised actions.

"In the last nine years," he asserted, "these safeguards have disappeared. The operation management of the company has taken full control. As any intelligent person knows, the success of any company depends upon the excellence of its management. The management must rely very greatly upon its board of directors."

"The congress of the United States is the board of directors of the American people. For nine years it has not been an independent board of directors, but has acted upon the orders of the operating department which is the executive."

ON the home front, Edward O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, tells the senate banking committee, which is considering the inflation check which the President has told congress it must provide or he will:

"We (the farmers) believe rising labor costs must be taken into consideration (in checking inflation) because if they are not considered it will be simply impossible for farmers to compete with other employers in the labor market for the help they must have to maintain production."
There, in a nutshell, is the farmer's position in this farm-parity-cost-of-living ruckus.
It must be conceded by every fair-minded thinker that the farmer's position has its points.
