150,000 WOMEN TO BE NEEDED IN SHIPYARDS

TORONTO, Sept. 29 (AP)—Shipyards of the United States will need at least 150,000 women workers in the coming year, Paul R. Porter, chairman of the shipbuilding stabilization committee told the American Federation of Labor metal trades department convention today.

They will be paid on the principle of "equal pay for equal work," quality and quantity of work considered, he said, which means that their weekly take-home earnings will average between $45 and $60 and will reach $70 in some cases.

1000 to Be Put On

He estimated that 2000 to 3000 women now were working "quite successfully" in the Kaiser yards on the Pacific coast and in the Todd and Federal yards on the east coast, mostly at welding and light machine work.

The Federal Shipbuilding corporation at Kearny, N. J., Porter said, planned to put on about 1000 women in the next three months, mostly as welders.

Porter's committee is a unit of the labor production division of the war production board. Under its auspices, wages have been negotiated on an industry-wide basis.

Porter said the average weekly earnings in shipbuilding as of last July were $56.55, a figure surpassed in only one other manufacturing industry in the United States, engines and turbines.

CLIP THESE SCRAP LISTS TO HELP CLIP THE AXIS

If you haven't used it during the last six months, and you're not going to use it in the next six months—then it's scrap.

That's a fair and easy test to apply to every piece of metal in a farm or home.

If you find by this test that something you own is scrap, then its place is on the firing line. The firing line begins in Klamath county's scrap salvage depots.

As part of the nationwide newspapers' scrap metal drive, The Herald and News prints below some check lists. They suggest where to look and what to look for. You haven't done your share towards supplying America's war factories with vitally needed metals if you haven't SEARCHED your place. Clip these check lists and look TODAY.

Enforcement of Speed Limit to Be Left to State

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—The 35-mile-an-hour speed limit ordered by Director Joseph B. Eastman of the office of defense transportation, theoretically is enforceable by a maximum $10,000 fine and two years imprisonment, or both, as provided for violations of the second war powers act, but actually speeding violations probably will be handled by states as in the past.

Eastman's announcement Saturday said he would implement his order by asking state governors to establish the new speed limit by emergency proclamation or by other means. It is effective for all vehicles except common carriers on October 1.

Gasoline rationing, announced by the office of price administration, to go into effect about November 22 all over the country, is enforceable by a maximum $10,000 fine, and by one year's imprisonment, or both, or by the even more severe penalties for making false statements to the government. The maximum under the latter is a $10,000 fine, or 10 years imprisonment, or both. The maximum criminal penalties have never been invoked under the eastern rationing regulations.

Why I'm Keeping Under 35 -

Way back in February this year, our company issued orders that none of its trucks and cars were to be driven over 40 miles an hour. Right then, I set 35 as MY limit. Now President Roosevelt says we should all keep under 35, and suggests that everybody get acquainted with how much rubber fast driving burns up. So here are some quick little diagrams of average figures that show how really important it is to keep under 35. (Even when there isn't a cop for miles!)

It saves rubber

Your tires will go just about 2 1/2 times as far at 25 as they will at 50. Remember that your country is depending on this rubber for emergencies!

It saves money

When you go from 25 to 50 you greatly increase the cost of running your car. That's money we can save and put in War Bonds without ever feeling the difference!

Is your oil on the level?

If you are using your car less frequently, you may think it's okay to let the oil level get down a little. But I don't recommend it. You see, the manufacturer of your car set the "safe level" for your engine when he designed it. He did that to protect you against sudden lubrication failure. Now, of all times, you need that protection. Better keep it at the full mark—with RPM Motor Oil.
