

REDS THRUST DEEPER INTO NAZI FLANKS

mitted late yesterday that the main weight of the battle had now shifted to the north, implying that they had been compelled to withdraw troops from the inner city to combat the soviet counter-offensive.

Soviet headquarters acknowledged a minor reverse south of the city, where Russian troops who had wedged into axis positions made a fighting withdrawal under assault by 50 German tanks. Sixteen of the tanks were reported wrecked.

Along the Black sea coast, soviet troops still fighting within sight of Novorossiisk were credited with wiping out an axis spearhead, killing 300 Germans and Rumanians.

RAF Busy
On the Voronezh front, midway between Stalingrad and Moscow, soviet Tommy-gunners reported to have broken through German barbed-wire entanglements, killing about a company of troops.

Other developments:
Western air war—RAF bombers, pressing a round-the-clock offensive, pounded Adolf Hitler's war foundries in the Rhineland last night within a few hours after U. S. Flying Fortresses scored a spectacular victory over the Luftwaffe by shooting down 13 Focke-Wulf 190's in a raid on northern France.

Seven RAF bombers failed to return from the Rhineland assault, indicating an attacking force of perhaps 150 planes.

Not a single Fortress was lost in the daylight attack on northern France, where the big American planes blasted a Nazi aircraft factory at Meaulte and an airfield at St. Omer. U. S. pilots said they could see their bombs "bursting all over the targets."

Egyptian front—All quiet.

Aussies Advance
Far Pacific—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that steadily advancing Australian troops were nearing the summit of the lofty Owen Stanley mountains in New Guinea today, with still no sign of opposition by retreating Japanese forces.

Military dispatches said the Australians had pushed beyond the mountain hamlet of Menari, 46 airline miles northeast of Port Moresby, and were now within five miles of "the gap" through which they retreated three weeks ago.

Meanwhile, American Flying Fortresses ranged across the Coral Sea to pound Japanese bases and shipping at New Britain and the Solomon Islands.

The Fortresses attacked two Japanese cruisers, one of which was believed hit, and set fire to a 15,000-ton enemy transport and another 7000-ton transport. All the planes returned safely.

Diminishing Milk Supply Causes Concern

sanctions of soldiers are using up a lot of milk. If this happens, the local situation will be further complicated.

The fall season regularly sees a falling off in milk production, with more cows going dry than at other times of the year.

Dairymen estimated that there is an actual shortage in the Klamath area at this time of about 600 gallons of milk a day. This cannot go on long before the public begins to feel it, either in actual shortages, rationing of milk, or a decline of quality as milk now used for other purposes is brought into the market milk supply.

There has been some talk of eliminating distribution costs by making the milk available only at stores and centers, where the consumers would get it for their own deliveries. This has never advanced beyond the talk stage, although some change in distribution practices may be in the offing. Already, deliveries have been cut down.

Lee Holliday, president of the Klamath Dairymen's association, Walter Turnbaugh of Tulelake, and County Agent C. A. Henderson went to Portland this week to discuss the local situation with authorities of the Office of Price Administration. The possibility of permitting milk prices to rise one cent a quart, in order to encourage producers to stay in the business, was the major topic of the conference. State OPA promised nothing except to pass the word along to higher-ups.

Labor Problem
Some observers believe the one-cent advance would relieve the situation for this fall and winter, making it possible for producers to survive.

On Friday, dairymen from throughout the state appeared before representatives in Portland of the manpower commission, asking that action be taken to stabilize the dairy farm labor situation. They asked the armed services and the selective service boards to do something about farm labor.

It appears that the Klamath milk production would be sufficient this year for normal demands, were it not for the Japanese relocation project. That enterprise placed another city virtually the size of Klamath Falls in the local market milkshed.

nate sub-standards of living, to correct gross inequities, or to aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

Salary Controls
The board also was ordered not to approve any decreases in wages below the highest wages paid between January 1 and September 15, 1942, unless to correct gross inequities and to aid in the successful prosecution of the war.

No increases in salaries now in excess of $3000 a year shall be granted until "otherwise determined by the director (Byrnes)" except in instances in which an individual "has been assigned to more difficult or more responsible work."

Also, the order said no salary shall be authorized in excess of $25,000 after the payment of taxes, although the order said regulations should make due allowances for payments on life insurance premiums or policies heretofore issued, and for payments on fixed obligations heretofore incurred, as well as make provision, to "prevent undue hardship."

While the order left much to the discretion of Byrnes on this point, an authority close to the president said he did not believe present salaries which amount to more than $25,000 after payment of taxes would be affected by this clause.

Congress Gets Pat
The president in a separate statement declared congress had "done its part in helping substantially to stabilize the cost of living," adding:

"I am certain that from now on this substantial stabilization of the cost of living will assist greatly in bringing the war to a successful conclusion, will make the transition to peace conditions easier after the war, and will receive the wholehearted approval of farmers, workers and housewives in every part of the country."

In announcing Byrnes' appointment, the president said: "This position calls primarily for judicial consideration. The organization will therefore be small, because the administration action will be carried out by the existing agencies."

The executive order authorized the war labor board to continue to perform the powers previously conferred upon it, and extended the board's functions to cover "all industries and all employees."

Under the agricultural title of the order, Secretary Wickard and Price Administrator Henderson were directed to stabilize prices of farm commodities on the basis of levels which existed on September 15, with additional instructions to make appropriate deductions from parity price or comparable price for payments made to farmers under the soil conservation and domestic allotment act; parity payments made under the AAA act, and governmental subsidies.

Where the secretary and price administrator disagree, the director of stabilization will settle the matter.

Under still another title, the order directed the price administrator in stabilizing prices to determine them in such a manner that profits "are prevented which in his judgment are unreasonable or exorbitant."

The director was authorized to direct any federal department or agency to use its authority to "subsidize and to purchase for resale, if such measures are necessary, to assure the maximum necessary production and distribution of any commodity, or to maintain ceiling prices, or to prevent a price rise inconsistent with the purposes of this order."

RUBBER BOOT RATIONING TO START OCT. 6

Rationing of rubber boots and rubber work shoes will start October 6 when applications will be received at the local war price and ration board, 434 Main street.

To allay any fears among consumers, Secretary of the Board Effie Garcelon, points out that rubber footwear such as men's overshoes, work and dress rubbers; women's and children's boots, galoshes and rubbers are not rationed. By use of substitutes and reclaimed rubber it is possible to make this footwear with a small percentage of crude rubber, and it is not expected that there will be a shortage of these non-rationed types of footwear.

The footwear to be rationed consists of men's rubber boots and rubber work shoes; no other type except rubber is rationed. Leather work shoes are not frozen.

Those eligible for rationed rubber footwear are men who are engaged in occupations or industries connected directly with the war effort or to the protection of public health or safety. Applications will be passed on by the local rationing board, and certificates for the purchase of rubber boots issued as the board decides that the applicant is eligible.

FORMER BUSINESS MAN OF CITY DIES

David Lenox, 74, former Klamath Falls business man and Douglas county treasurer, died in a Los Angeles sanitarium late Friday night, according to word received here by his sister and brother, Mrs. Charlotte Agee and George Lenox of this city.

Mr. Lenox was born in February, 1868, in West Union, 19 miles from Portland, the son of David and Sarah Lenox, both of whom crossed the plains when they were children, David at the age of eight years. In 1913, Mr. Lenox moved to Klamath Falls and operated the "Shasta," pioneer confectionery located where Balin's now stands. He sold this business in 1921 and moved to Roseburg where he was in the furniture business for a time. For the past eight years he has served as treasurer of Douglas county.

In November of last year, Mr. Lenox suffered a stroke and at Christmas time was moved to Los Angeles where he lived with his daughter, Mrs. Gladys Springer.

A son, Clarence Lenox of Sacramento, will accompany the remains to Roseburg where funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon with interment in the old Brockway cemetery near Dillard. Also surviving is Mr. Lenox' wife, Ella, and a stepson, Gordon Stewart, a sister, Mrs. Leona Morin of Allegany, Coos county, a step-sister, Mrs. Nora Colhaugen and a step-brother, Sam S. Bolsinger, Roseburg. Mr. Lenox was a 32nd degree Mason, past patron of the Roseburg chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and active in Douglas county civic enterprises.

Mrs. Agee and George Lenox will leave for Roseburg Sunday morning to complete arrangements for their brother's funeral.
