

PENNSYLVANIA TOTAL SECOND IN PRESS PUSH

Story Growing
The committee expected to release latest figures on Iowa later in the day but estimates so far from that state indicated it had collected 8103 tons for an average of about 6 pounds per capita.

Here are some other parts of the story, which will grow as the drive continues, showing estimated collections so far in other states or towns or cities:

Alabama: Mobile, 500,000 pounds, or 6 pounds per capita; Auburn, about 485,922 pounds, or 8 1/2 per capita.

Arizona: 20,200,000 pounds on reports from 12 of 14 counties of this basis per capita collection was 53 pounds.

California: San Francisco, about 7,614,432 pounds or 12 per capita.

Oregon: State salvage committee, with collections still going on, predicted state 100,000-ton quota has been exceeded.

Utah: 25,500,000 pounds, or about 46 per capita.

Vermont: Montpelier, 142,700 pounds, or 18 per capita.

Wyoming: 5,000,000 pounds, or 20 per capita.

PORTLAND, Oct. 7 (AP)—Officials handling the current scrap drive in Oregon said today the 35,000 tons reported by Claude Sersanous, state chairman, was computed on the basis of reports from the first seven counties in the state to announce totals.

They said that the first seven reported almost 8000 tons collected since September 28. Since some of the counties reporting are relatively small and since they do not include the state's most populous county—Multnomah—Sersanous figured 1000 tons per county for all 38 counties would be reasonable. This would make 36,000 tons but to be on the conservative side he trimmed this estimate 11,000 tons and reported 25,000 tons already collected.

Actually, the scrap drive men said, the collection probably runs over 36,000 tons. They believe there are 25,000 tons in Portland scrap heaps alone, none of which has been reported yet.

They also pointed to reports from Salem yesterday indicating a total of more than 10,000 tons.

JOSEPH L. SHIRK PASSES TUESDAY

Mr. Shirk then attended Heald's Business college in San Francisco. He later returned to his father's ranch where, at the age of 25, he and his brother, Lawson, entered the business. After a few years he sold his cattle interest and purchased a half interest in a horse business in Lake county but finally traded for real estate in Tranquillity, Calif. Here Mr. Shirk raised alfalfa on 115 acres.

Mr. Shirk left farming after 10 years and moved to Berkeley, Calif., where he was employed by the California Academy of Science, collecting mammals and accessories and killing specimens. Later he worked for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company in Oakland, Calif., and suggested the present derricks they use for setting the poles as well as the post-hole diggers.

Starts Ranch
In 1918, he changed employment with the California Oregon Power company in Oregon and was the undercover man when the dam was built. He was sent to Klamath county to investigate problems here, arriving January 9, 1919. The present ranch, which he farmed on Williamson river, was started for the purpose of controlling Klamath lake through this section.

Joseph Shirk and Katherine Teresa Walls were married at Loyola, Calif., December 15, 1903. Three children were born to the union, David Francis, now at Dutch Harbor, Alaska; Anna Zita and Olive Teresa, both of whom died. Survivors include the wife, Katherine, and son, David, Mr. Shirk's mother, Mrs. Frances Shirk of Berkeley, Calif., and two sisters, Mrs. Al Jinnett of Berkeley and Mrs. Zetus Spalding of Adel.

Funeral arrangements are being made by Whitlock's.

New Jap Drive On Guadalcanal Seen Imminent

230 aircraft destroyed and 30 vessels sunk or damaged.

The Australian advance toward the enemy's main positions in New Guinea was accompanied by allied bombing of Japanese airfields in Buin and Buka in the northern Solomons. Medium bombers blasted Buka's runways, dispersal bays, buildings and anti-aircraft positions, causing fires and explosion.

A fresh Japanese effort to recapture the Guadalcanal airbase from which the American air attacks stem, appeared imminent as the enemy's efforts to reinforce their scattered detachments on the island continued.

around enemy forces encircled there."

By contrast, soviet reports pictured the German northwest flank as imperiled by Russian counter blows and gave no indication of any red army forces encircled there.

Civilian Casualties
Dispatches to Red Star said a dangerous situation developed as the Germans reached the depth of an industrial settlement—evidently in the northwest suburbs where the main battle raged—but said heavy soviet counterattacks cleared much of the district, with elite Russian guardsmen driving the invaders from streets, houses, gardens and orchards.

Many civilians were reported among the casualties, and the settlement was pictured as blasted by incendiary and explosive bombs.

At least 1200 German troops were reported killed in fighting for the Volga metropolis yesterday, many of them going to their deaths directly after forced marches from the rear.

Red army headquarters said nazi shock troops spearheaded by 12 tanks broke into one block of a Stalingrad factory district at noon yesterday, but declared:

"Our units fought to annihilate these tanks, and toward the end of the day 11 out of 12 were destroyed."

Northwest of the city, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's relief offensive was reported to have gained fresh ground against the nazi left flank—the vital barricade which guards the main German siege armies.

Dispatches to Ivestia, the Russian government newspaper, said that nazi infantrymen were literally crammed into trenches dug into the battle-torn steppes and that the Germans had buried hundreds of burned-out tanks for use as pillboxes.

Along the Black sea coast, below Novorossiisk, soviet troops defending a height described as "of great strategic importance," were reported to have killed 400 troops of a newly arrived axis infantry division.

In the central Caucasus, the Russian command acknowledged a retreat from one community in the Mozdok sector, 50 miles north of the Grozny oil fields, but said the red armies subsequently rallied to beat off nazi tank and infantry assaults.

German field headquarters claimed the capture of Mezgobek, 20 miles south of Mozdok.

beef and veal would be ready soon.

Galbraith made no mention of price ceilings on livestock which the packers had told the committee were necessary if they were to operate at a profit.

George A. Casey of Philadelphia, president of the emergency conference of meat packers, earlier contended that Price Administrator Leon Henderson's orders on meat products reflected "possible stupidity," and left independent packers "out on a limb."

"I'd like to debate Leon's regulations with him before this committee," Casey declared.

Galbraith asserted that flat prices would eliminate many inequalities which may now exist between small and large packers, provide for a better distribution of meat between areas "and allow fuller utilization of all slaughtering and processing facilities."

SEPTEMBER HEAT FIGURES REVEALED

September was hot!
This was the terse statement of the US weatherman who was able to give out information one week following the first day of October for the preceding month. Mean temperature for the month was 82 degrees as compared to 88.7 degrees, mean for the past 37 years. Maximum temperature was reached on September 24 with 89 degrees. Minimum was recorded at 33 on the 17th.

Precipitation was lacking during the month as at no time during the 30-day period did a measurable amount of moisture fall at the local station. Average rainfall for the month is .56 inches. There has not been a rainless September since 1932.

There were 24 clear days; five partly cloudy, and one cloudy day reported for the month.

JUNK DEALERS HELD VITAL TO SCRAP DRIVES

The importance of the junk dealer in the national scrap metal drive, an integral part of the war effort, was emphasized here Wednesday by W. W. Bushnell, salvage inspector for the WPB auto graveyard division.

In recent public statements the government, conscious that any misunderstanding of the position of the scrap dealers might slow up this effort and cripple war production, has explained that the scrap dealers have a vital function in getting scrap from the country to the mills.

There are more than 70 different classifications of iron and steel scrap alone. Metal scrap comes in as many different sizes and shapes as there are pieces of scrap.

If the steel mills had to accept scrap directly from the salvage depots, they would have to do a sorting and grading job at which junk dealers are more skilled because that is a part of their business. The scrap dealers must meet government requirements in doing this and there is a large field force out to inspect the salvage and yard conditions. The scrap dealers operate under price ceilings, and they cannot hoard scrap.

Bushnell explained that the government has asked every scrap dealer to set a monthly goal of 33 1/3 per cent in excess of his average monthly production for the first half of the year. M and S Bag company of Klamath Falls was this week given an award of merit for making this quota in September, Bushnell announced.

There are two junk dealers and six auto wrecking yards in Klamath Falls, Bushnell said. They have tuned up their operations to the nationwide scrap effort.

KLAMATH POSTOFFICE CONTINUES TO GAIN

Gains continue to be reported by Postmaster Burt E. Hawkins of the Klamath Falls postoffice. September receipts totaled $13,364.32 as compared to September, 1941, when $11,800.61, was collected at the local windows. This is a 1942 gain of 13.251 per cent.

The quarter ending September 30, totaled $38,133.38, as compared to the same quarter last year with $36,436.63. Present gain was 4.659 per cent.

Vacationing—Malcolm Sinclair, night dispatch clerk of the local postoffice, is taking a week's vacation, and a part of the time he hopes to enjoy hunting.

HIGH SCHOOL

News Notes and Comment

By ANITA GWYN
A rally is in order and is being put before the students to decide whether there should be one or not. The idea was thought up by the assembly committee at their last meeting. If it is decided to have a rally, it will come off a week from Thursday so that the Pelicans will still be in town, for they leave early Friday morning for Medford. As yet it hasn't been decided what type of a rally it will be, but the cooperation of the entire student body is asked if they wish to have this privilege.

Besides the subject of the rally, the scrap drive was brought to the attention of the student council at the meeting Tuesday noon where pleasure and business were mixed when the representatives ate lunch before and during the business. Mr. Woodruff brought it to attention that the scrap drive will eventually be given to the schools to handle so KUHS had just as well get started now. There was much discussion but nothing definite will be planned until the next meeting.

The Klamath Knights now have an emblem. The student council voted that it was acceptable and it will soon appear adorning the persons of those knights of the modern world. Be sure to notice them for they are really good looking. (In this case I do mean the emblems.)

Robert T. Edgar spoke to an assembly of students Tuesday afternoon at a pay show. His topic was Cyclops of Palomar explaining the immense telescope situated on Mt. Palomar near Pasadena. Mr. Edgar was born in Scotland and educated in Australia.

Concerning the questions that have been floating around lately, the dates of the Christmas holidays and the dismissal of school have not been definitely set.

Starvation?
It was theorized that they died either from illness or starvation after being cut off by the allied advance which now is in its tenth day.

There was no indication that the entire Japanese forces in the area were suffering from illness, however, and the success on their withdrawal was interpreted to mean that while they might be on reduced rations they still are able to move in fair order.

Today's communique noted again, as in past days, that there was no Japanese resistance to the Australians pushing into the steaming jungles in the Owen Stanley range.

SENATE REJECTS LA FOLLETTE TAX

versal question of taxing future issues of state and local securities, the senate formally adopted a finance committee amendment lowering the credit for an income taxpayer's dependents from $400 to $300. The amendment had been skipped over yesterday.

The change still must be approved by the house, which left the $400 figure unchanged.

Taft took the floor after La Follette had charged that the senate finance committee, which he termed "conservative," had produced a revenue bill which placed "an unfair and dangerous share of the increased tax burden upon lower income groups."

CHAMBER TALK CENTERS UPON SPUD PROBLEM

The serious labor shortage is the potato harvest was discussed at length at Wednesday's meeting of the board of directors of the Klamath county chamber of commerce.

Jack Almeter, manager of the U. S. employment service, said that on Wednesday morning he received orders for 162 workers and was able to send out 35. He said the shortage in the south end of the basin approximates 500.

Consensus of opinion expressed by Almeter, County Agent C. A. Henderson and others was that the results of an appeal for voluntary workers should be awaited before attempting such extreme measures as closing businesses in town.

Henderson estimated that 20 per cent of the crop is now harvested.

Alder said that when possible, farmers could help by coming into town to get workers expected to congregate in front of the courthouse Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. Alder said his office will be open at 6:30 a. m. Saturday and Sunday, and farmers may call there to learn if workers are available.

The transportation committee of the chamber recommended that an effort be made to get a branch of the district ODT office established in Klamath Falls. It also proposed that representations be made concerning special conditions in this "wide open country which should govern gasoline rationing here.

Earl Reynolds, Jr., son of the secretary of the chamber of commerce, spoke briefly on his work this summer on the engineering staff of the Alaska highway. He returned this week and will resume his studies at Oregon State college in a few days.

Joe Bush, Jr., Again Arrested For Forgery

Joe Bush, Jr., sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary for forgery here on September 8 and put on probation, was arrested yesterday in Alturas on an identical charge, Deputy Sheriff Jack Franey said today.

Franey said that Bush had been returned here from the California city.

He will presumably automatically be taken to the penitentiary to serve out his five years.
