Folks We Meet—Two
A call for the fourteen-year-old to go to the river and dive for the lost purse. Into his trunk he hurried, then over to the Nestucca, our famous salmon stream, and by boat to the spot. The second dive into the seven feet of icy water brought up the purse, holding the $25.00, wet but safe. The thankful owner passed the boy a goodly reward.

Like pearl diving in the tropics, it was, except that pearls lie in deeper waters. And pearls, you recall, grow from a wound. A bit of sand scratches the living thing resting in the shell. Out of the wound seeps a fluid that hardens about the center. So forms the pearl.

The greatest find was when the King told his Son to lay aside the royal robe and go search for the Pearl of Great Price. Stripped of all His glory, the Son set forth. Down to this scene of earth He came to dwell among men. He took our humanity, tasted our woes, was a Man of Sorrows and Acquainted with Grief. Jesus Christ, this Son of God, reached the lowest depths that day when they drove the nails through His hands and feet and thrust a spear into His side. Out of His side flowed the blood; here the Pearl was to be formed.

Crucified, dead and buried, Christ arose from the grave and ascended back to glory. He took His seat beside the Father and from thence sent back the Holy Spirit to take His place here among men; to act for Him; to set Him forth as Saviour and Lord; to gather a redeemed people for His name. First at Pentecost the Spirit took up, in dwelling Peter the Apostle and the 120 who had been waiting with him in prayer. Peter told how the despised Christ had broken from the grave, being the Author of all life. And now if they would receive Him, Christ would impart His eternal life to them. Five thousand there answered to the call and the Spirit united them to Christ and to one another.

From that day, like a pearl, this holy company has been taking on size. Here indeed is God's recovered treasure, Christ's Pearl of Great Price; these humble people who have quit self and sin to be separated unto Him. In every corner of the earth you find them singing—"Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love." Is that your song? Do you add lustre to Christ's Pearl of Great Price?
