

Washington Beats Oregon State in Downpour

This play gained 10 yards for Oregon State as halfback Leland Gustafson roared around left end in the first quarter of the game against University of Washington at Seattle. In pouring rain, Washington slogged on to win, 13 to 0.

Discussion of an "extra game" for the Pelicans this year brought Frank Gianelli's column in the Oregonian Sunday in for a lot of panning at the Quarterback club Monday noon for his statement that Grant high of Portland—the first club white-washed by the Pelicans this season—still considered themselves in the running for the mythical state title and good competition for Klamath.

The upshot of it all is that Grant supporters claim their team suited up for the Klamath game after a grueling day-long trip without rest. Frank Ramsey, Pelican coach, says Grant had rooms reserved for them at the hotel and breakfast waiting. Some Klamath supporters have the idea the Grant team spent the afternoon at Klamath buying "cokes" for the girls instead of resting.

Another Grant high claim to superiority over the Pelicans is that they have statistics to prove that Grant pushed Klamath over the field. Klamath's answer: You take the first downs—I'll take the touchdowns. Score: Pelicans—15, Grant—0.

Other teams, too, feel they could do better against the Pelicans in another encounter. Quoting a letter from Bill Love of the Eugene Register-Guard: "We do not feel that Klamath is 28 points better than Eugene as the score indicated, and the boys only wish they could meet the Pelicans again. While they might not win, they feel they could give Klamath a 'he—' of a scare. They have virtually forgotten their defeat, and are looking for a clear record the rest of the way."

However, in the same letter Love puts forth another possible "extra game" entry and a little praise for the Pelicans. Quote: "There is no reason why Klamath should consider at all any team it has already licked, such as Grant or Eugene. What have they to offer as competition? They are through. Grant is in the same category as Ashland, Medford, Eugene, Redding, et al., so far as Klamath is concerned, and any talk of a state title for the Generals is so much bush-wah as long as they are in the record as whipped by Klamath at a decisive score."

Bulldogs Rated Top In AP Poll

Georgia Edges Ohio State From First; UCLA Bottom In Weekly Press Ratings

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP)—Georgia not only defeated Alabama Saturday but it convinced the nation's sports writers that it is the best college football team in the land. The undefeated Dixie Bulldogs snared 84 5/8 first place votes out of a possible 127 today and bounded into first place in the weekly Associated Press poll, replacing Ohio State, The Buckeyes, leaders for three straight weeks, sank to sixth following their defeat by Wisconsin, 17 to 7.

Wisconsin also participated in the shakeup, one of the most violent in the seven-year history of the poll, by vaulting from sixth to second, just 138 points below Georgia. Georgia Tech, another undefeated power, moved from fifth to third while Notre Dame retained its grasp on fourth place. Boston College moved from seventh to fifth on the strength of the 47 to 0 thrashing it administered to a good Georgetown squad.

Alabama skidded to eighth from the third place spot it held a week ago but Minnesota climbed from tenth to seventh. Pennsylvania, which whipped the previously unbeaten Army team, 17 to 0, replaced the Cadets in the listing. The Quakers jumped from fourteenth to ninth while Army dropped from eighth to nineteenth as a result of the defeat. The top ten was completed by University of California at Los Angeles, winner of three Pacific coast tussles in a row.

Loose Pigskin Magnet for Grid Rivals

When UCLA fullback Ken Snelling (left), dropped the ball, Stanford's center, Milt Vucnich, made a lunge for the prize during the arid clash at Los Angeles. Snelling recovered the ball a split second before it could be clutched by Vucnich. UCLA went on to win, 20 to 7.

'Extra Game' Sentiment Voiced by Quarterbacks

"Pelicans Are Tough," Says Ramsey; Decision Hinges on Bend Outcome

Sentiment favoring an "extra game" with some outstanding opponent if and when the Pelicans win the Armistice day game with Bend, was voiced by the Quarterback club in its last regular meeting of the season Monday noon. Coach Frank Ramsey in a speech before the club stressed the fact that the game should not be considered a "post season game" but an extra game, for the official Oregon state high school season is not over until the first week in December.

"These boys are tough," he said in speaking of the team, and I believe that possible bad weather will be no hindrance. However, we won't consider a replay with Grant high of Portland. They had their chance." Discussion disclosed sentiment favored holding another meeting of the club on the Thursday following the Bend game to suggest a suitable opponent for the "extra game" late in the season. The exact time of the meeting will be announced later.

PREPARES FOR MICHIGAN

PULLMAN, Nov. 3 (AP)—The Washington State college football team started down the last stretch of preparation today for its first inter-sectional game of the season — against Michigan State in Spokane Saturday.

La Prade Out Of Washington-Stanford Game

PALO ALTO, Calif., Nov. 3 (AP)—Marchie Schwartz, Stanford football coach today faced the prospect of sending his team against Washington at San Francisco Saturday without the services of Loren La Prade, who plays guard on offense and quarterback on defense.

La Prade wrenched his knee against UCLA and is in the hospital for treatment. Buck Fawcett, regular full-back who failed to play against the Bruins because of injuries, is scheduled to return to the lineup today.

Oregon Sport Notes

By FRED HAMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Coach Bob Mathews of Portland university is no friend of the touring army and navy football teams.

"Why doesn't the navy, or the army—if it wants to condition a lot of men—junk these touring football teams and assign a couple of stars to Portland university and to other schools to tutor kids who'll soon be in the army or the navy?"

"Just think what the assignment of stars like All-American Bobby Grayson, or Frankie Albert, or Dale Gentry would do for our school. The kids know these fellows for their sports records and would follow them to the end of the world."

Mathews raised his voice against the show-window football eleven of the services for other reasons. Speaking of a Portland game in which a navy team appeared he had this to say:

"Here were 66 men, taking time away from a definite conditioning program to crowd overloaded transportation, half fill a downtown hotel, and waste an entire week just to play a football game."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

John Cronley, Oklahoma City Oklahoman: "I still like Henry Frnka's explanation of the difference between a high school and college coach . . . The prep mentor looks for the position of the ball after the first kickoff, while the college coach glances over his shoulder to count the crowd."

SERVICE DEPT.

John Munski, the crack miller from Missouri, must figure that 13 is his lucky number. He used to wear it on his warm-up jersey; he drew number 13 on his army tag and completed his 13-weeks officers' training course at Fort Warren, Wyo., 13 months after he entered service . . . The Cardinals' Terry Moore expects to join the navy early next year. His brother Frank, the golfer, signed up last week when the gulf coast training command came around looking for men to be trained as ground mechanics and radio technicians . . . The other day Wally Butts, Georgia grid coach, received a letter from Tommy Witt, who had played center for him at Louisville Male high and at Georgia. It said: "Don't worry about this war. The American boys have what it takes." . . . Almost at the same time Butts received word that Witt had been shot down in an air battle over Egypt October 24.

OSC PRACTICES

CORVALLIS, Nov. 3 (AP)—Oregon State football players opened practice today for the game against Montana here Saturday. Coach Lon Stiner ordered a day of rest yesterday and praised the squad for its spirit despite a four-game losing streak.

John Pesky Graduates To Majors

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 3 (AP)—Johnny Pesky, the sensational Boston Red Sox rookie, thinks that it will be just another of those dinners that his friends are throwing for him here tonight. But under his plate will be an announcement from the National Semi-Pro Baseball congress that it considers the 23-year-old Portlander its No. 1 graduate to the majors. That means Pesky is tops over a million or more youngsters who have swarmed over the sand lots in the last decade.

The award, signed by President Ray Dumont of Wichita, Kas, will be presented by Commissioner Ray Brooks. The dinner, for which some 300 Pesky boosters have bought tickets, will be a "hello-goodbye" affair because John has received orders to report to the navy's pre-flight school in North Carolina.

Joe Gordon, Yankee second baseman, regarded by many as just about tops in the American league; Bobby Doerr, a Red Sox team mate, and Jack Wilson, of Detroit, will sit with Pesky tonight. Gordon has been loafing at his home in Eugene, Ore., between deer hunting trips. Pesky played in his first national semi-pro tournament in 1938 when he was 16 years old. He batted .358. The next year, playing shortstop for the Silverton, Ore., Red Sox, state champions, Pesky boosted his average to .385.

Marquette Quarter Knew Texas Tech Plays, So Called One That Puzzled Raiders and Won

By TOM STIDHAM

Marquette's Head Coach Late in a tough, sea-saw battle with Texas Tech at Lubbock, Marquette had the ball in mid-field, third down and four. If the Hilltoppers didn't click on the next play, they were going to have to punt.

Suddenly, it's never been explained, Harry Laysenauer called an S-flanker, a Texas Tech play Marquette had rehearsed. Players remonstrated, but he yelled: "I know what I'm doing. Spread out! Spread out!"

"Spread out!"

Bewildered, the Hilltoppers spread from sideline to sideline. They had no idea of what was coming.

Nor did Texas Tech. The Red Raiders had never seen a Marquette play like that. They couldn't figure it out. Quarterback Laysenauer called for the ball from center. Fortunately, the Hilltoppers stayed on side.

But Texas Tech did not. The perplexed Raiders were penalized five yards, which gave Marquette a timely first down.

A long pass brought a touchdown and Marquette won, 22-19.

Elbow Blocked, Snap Edge of the Hand to Choker's Kidneys

By LIEUT. ED DON GEORGE
Coach of Rough and Tumble, U. S. Navy Pre-Flight Schools
Tenth of 12 instructive articles.

Assailant digs his fingers into the carotid arteries of your neck and straightens his arms (1) to prevent the elbow blow, previously recommended.

He plants his feet firmly and applies pressure.

Drop your right (or left) shoulder slightly, step back a few inches and whip the edge of your hand into his kidney area (2).

This blow should be a loose-arm action with a sharp snap as the edge of your hand hits.

Oregon Has Makeshift Backfield

EUGENE, Nov. 3 (AP)—Coach John Warren may have to start a makeshift backfield against the Coast conference-leading UCLA team here Saturday because of injuries, he disclosed last night.

Fullback Bill Davis injured his knee in the California game Saturday and Bud Cote and Tom Oxman, alternates, also have knee injuries.

Tom Roblin, who played a good game at fullback against the Golden Bears, probably will resume that position.

Quarterback Len Surles returned to the campus yesterday from a Berkeley hospital. He was thought to have suffered an attack of appendicitis but later diagnosis indicated he had suffered a severe bruise.
