icals and business into the war effort.

Halt Enlistments

A few minutes earlier, Ship-builder Henry J. Kaiser had told senators he thought voluntary enlistments in the armed services should be halted and that a nine-member committee should be established to control the distribution of manpower and womanpower for the nation's war needs.

Nelson, too, said he believed voluntary enlistments should be halted and cited five additional ways in which he thought the country could realize greater production from its reserves of workers.

Too Much Payroll Sickness

The work week might be lengthened, he suggested; production could be increased through better management; greater use should be made of minority groups; less essential uses of manpower should be cut off, and worker absenteeism should be stopped.

"There are too many cases of Monday morning sickness and payroll sickness," Nelson observed dryly.

FDR Favors Short Week

President Roosevelt, discussing the 40-hour week and its relation to war production, said at his press conference that reports from intelligence services made it evident that German war output had fallen off in the past few months.

Last spring, he said, Germany decided to increase the work week, sometimes to 70 or 80 hours. While production spurred for some two months, he said, it started downhill as workers tired under the strain of long hours until total output was not as great as under a 48-hour week.

Most important production of war materials here, the chief executive said, is on a basis of 48 hours a week working time, with an average between 46 and 47.

Three California Election Returns Still Incomplete

by 6765 votes with 14,124 precincts reporting. The vote: Jordan, 978,092; Peek, 971,327.

The remaining congressional contest headed toward a photo finish between Rep. Ed V. Izac, democrat, and James B. Abbey, republican. With 23 precincts still unreported, Izac had 40,867 votes and Abbey 40,704.

Although each party elected 11 congressmen, this constituted a gain for the republicans since the makeup of the California delegation in the last congress was nine republicans and 11 democrats. The state now has 23 seats in the house.

In both branches of the state legislature the republicans had a clear majority — 23 to 16 in the senate, with one vacancy remaining, and an edge of three and perhaps five in the assembly.

Actual Battle Action in Solomons

Laying a protective curtain of shells over Marine landing parties, U. S. destroyers hammer Japanese artillery positions on an island in the Solomons. Note bursts of flame from firing guns on destroyer in foreground; smoke from guns of destroyer in distance. Absence of shell splashes in vicinity of landing barges indicate that big ships' guns are finding their targets. (U. S. Marine Corps photo.)

ation of doctor as essential to an area and therefore exempt from military service.

He declared "an attempt has been made to administer the recommendation as to who is or is not essential to an area with strict regard to the functions of the person involved" and without regard to competition within the medical profession.

Dr. Garfield told of conditions in Vancouver in relating why the company medical program included families of workers.

Under the medical program, the doctor said each worker desiring to participate pays 50 cents a week to get company medical care.

"Orally," Dr. Garfield told a senate labor subcommittee, "we were told that if you take care of the families, we will declare that your doctors are non-essential."

Dr. Garfield said this "threat" was made by the Washington State Medical association executive committee.

In addition, one gubernatorial race was in doubt, the ballots in Idaho having been sealed for an official canvass, to be made Nov. 23, when the tally showed Chase A. Clark, the democratic incumbent, had 71,941 and Republican C. A. Botsford, 71,846.

FDR Gives Cryptic Answer On Outcome Of The Elections

tively in the campaigning. A movement developed on Capitol Hill for a republican-democratic "victory coalition" to proclaim a holiday on politics and drive toward the one common aim of winning the war.

The alliance would throw the power of both parties behind President Roosevelt for the most effective prosecution of war, but the republicans coupled their pledge of support with demands for an end to "new deal politics and experiments."

"We are willing to forget the election if the administration will remember the implications it contained," said Senator McNary of Oregon, the republican leader.

Another leading republican, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, proposed the coalition, saying congress should create a "unified committee on war cooperation."

But while unity in the war effort appeared to be generally applauded, political observers watched for a possibility that house republicans and conservative democrats might develop a joint drive not only to halt "new dealism" but to erase some of its established works.

The first post-election session of the house heard demands from a democrat and a republican for repeal of the national labor relations (Wagner) act and the wage-hour law. On the other side of the capitol, Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex.) introduced a bill to suspend the 40-hour week for the duration "to help solve our manpower problem."

Japs Warn British On Prisoner Treatment

day of bad treatment of Japanese nationals in the United States and Canada, stating protests had been lodged with the two governments and asserting Japan's treatment of war prisoners and civilian internees had been fair.

The last time this theme had been sounded was last summer, when Japan apparently sought to counter the stories of ill treatment, hardship and suffering told by the first American repatriates to reach the outside world from Japan, Japanese-occupied China and other places in the Orient after the outbreak of the Pacific war.

Victory Claimed

On the battlefield, Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery declared the British 8th army had already won "complete and absolute victory" over Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's battered legions.

A total of at least 13,000 German and Italian prisoners has been rounded up so far in the 14-day-old British offensive as the 8th army swept through axis minefields and rolled back the German-Italian invaders along a 40-mile front.

"A further large number of Italians is being rounded up in a southern sector of the battlefield, where they appear to have been abandoned in the desert by the German mechanized formations," the British communiqué said.

FLYNN HELD FOR SUPERIOR COURT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6 (AP)—

Errol Flynn was held for superior court trial at the conclusion of his preliminary hearing today on charges of statutory rape against two teen-aged girls. He is accused of violating Peggy La Rue Satterlee, 16, twice on a yachting trip in 1941, and another young girl last September.

Immediately after Municipal Judge Byron J. Walters bound Flynn over, the handsome movie star issued this statement through his attorney:

"The district attorney has had the ball so far. When I get it the picture will change. My ultimate vindication is all that counts, and I have complete confidence in the essential fairness of the American majority."

Miss Satterlee completed her story of what occurred on the cruise to Catalina island with Flynn, going into almost minute detail under cross examination.

apparently which the Americans attacked at dawn on November 4 and met what the navy termed "an initial repulse."

"Marines are pressing their attack on these enemy troops," added the communique.

On another south Pacific war front west of the Solomons, Japanese invasion forces were continuing to fall back in New Guinea under steady pressure of an allied drive.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Australian command declared today (South Pacific time) that the ill-fated enemy assault which late in September had advanced to within 32 miles of the allied Port Moresby naval base, had been pushed back well beyond the half-way point at Kokoda, about 60 miles inland.

While bitter fighting was indicated, the communique said the allied troops were advancing slowly toward the foe's north coastal base at Buna.

Catastrophe Will Follow Failure To Open 2nd Front

memoration of the quarter-century anniversary of the bolshevik revolution.

The "moral and political reserves of the Germans in Europe are being exhausted," and the peoples are stirring, the premier said. "The enslaved nations are awaiting their turn to take revenge on the oppressors."

"They know that the Italian-German coalition is falling to pieces. They are banking on assistance from the democratic coalition. The moral and political reserves of that coalition are growing from day to day."

He said that "no sane man" would attempt to destroy Germany, "but we will destroy the Hitlerites' military power."

The second task after that, he said, would be to eliminate the "slave system which Germany calls the new order" and the third task would be to destroy the builders of this order.

Returning a second time to mention of the second front, Stalin said that the Germans had been able to concentrate on one sector and take the initiative "because the absence of a second front in Europe enabled them to do it without risk to themselves."

Stalin asserted that the Russians recently had won possession of a German document showing that the nazi plan—never realized—was to take Stalingrad last July 25, then Saratov August 9, Kulyshyev September 15 and Baku September 29.

The main aim of the offensive was to finish the war this year by taking Moscow, Stalin added.
