

LEATHERNECKS REPULSE NIP COUNTER DRIVE

Japanese beachhead in the vicinity of Koll Point.

The advance was carried out against only light enemy resistance, a communique said, while on the western flank of the American defense area in Guadalcanal, marines again repulsed enemy counter-attacks.

U. S. Planes Patrol
The communique also reported that for the first time since October 29, enemy bombers had struck at Guadalcanal but had failed to do any damage although clouds prevented American fighters from engaging them.

Meanwhile, United States airplanes maintained "a continuous patrol over enemy positions, bombing and strafing troop concentrations and supplies."

River Crossed
The Jap bombing attempt was made by a force of 27 bombers and escorting fighters on November 5-6, the enemy attacked the American western flank in the vicinity of Point Cruz, a coastal locality lying several miles to the west of the American-held airfield on Guadalcanal. These attacks were light and were readily turned back by tough marine jungle fighters.

The advance in the east was carried out by army troops the following day, November 6. Army men crossed the tiny Malimbau river, a few miles south of Koll Point on the north coast of Guadalcanal, and, the communique added, met "only light enemy resistance."

Japs Rally
On the New Guinea front, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that allied troops driving back across the 120-mile-wide Papua peninsula had met suddenly stiffened Japanese resistance, and a fierce battle was raging 50 miles south of the enemy's coastal base at Buna.

In Burma, U. S. army bombers, flying from bases in India, renewed their attacks on Japanese docks and ships at Rangoon, Burma, and returned without loss.

Modern fighting forces can't have too many of them. Seldom do they have enough.

They HAVE to be produced to capacity. Everything else must wait.

MODERN war has an equally insatiable appetite for manpower. Armies and navies and their NEEDS must be supplied FIRST. Guns, tanks, ships and planes are among their prime needs.

As men go into the army, the navy and the marine corps and into the vital war production plants, the supply of manpower for the production of civilian needs is depleted.

It can't be otherwise. It mustn't be allowed to be otherwise. We shall lose the war if it is otherwise.

SO we must make up our minds to a constantly diminishing supply of civilian goods. It will come. IT MUST come. It is unavoidable. And it is necessary. We must accept it without complaint.

ADVERTISING is one of the casualties of modern war. Advertising's job is to find consumer markets for a constantly growing supply of goods, thus promoting a constantly RISING standard of living.

In war-time all that is OUT. Advertising's job is largely out at the same time—for the duration.

Advertising men know their job will COME BACK with the end of the war—whenever that may be. Bigger and better than ever.

Thermometer Retreats to Cellar in KF

The thermometer reached a seasonal low Friday morning when minimum temperature was recorded as 20 degrees, a clean 12 below the freezing point. This was the coldest morning since 'way last winter, the U S weatherman opined. Maximum temperature was 48 degrees.

Despite unfavorable driving conditions state and city police reported few accidents, these confined to a crumpled fender or two.

Lack of gas and tires will keep all of us from seeing this old world—and a lot of us from seeking the next.

section, an anti-tank unit including mines and 37 mm. guns, 81 mm. and 60 mm. mortars, heavy and light machine guns.

It is planned to set up a squad with full field equipment, and there will be a complete rifle company in the parade. Also featured will be a communications set-up with four types of radios, and ambulance and aid station, and a field kitchen display.

Lieutenant Colonel C. S. Petree is commander of the 303rd Infantry, and will probably be here for the event.

This regiment has asked Klamath Falls to assist in furnishing its day rooms, and Klamath people were asked today to take furnishings and other articles to the armory by Wednesday, when they will be picked up by the Camp White men.

Radios, lamps, rugs, games, drapes, living room furniture, pianos, etc., will be welcome and are badly needed for the day rooms, it was stated.

AXIS TELLS FEAR OF SECOND FRONT

north African ports in order to set up a second front from there."

2. A broadcast from Berlin circulated the idea that a convoy battle already was in progress in the eastern Mediterranean involving "a very strong British convoy from Gibraltar bound for a destination about which various suppositions have been put forth."

The German method of presenting this, perhaps on a fishing expedition, was to lay it on "foreign reports" which have not appeared from any other source and say that military quarters in Berlin declined to discuss them.

3. Axis reports said the convoy, covered by a heavy umbrella of planes, left Gibraltar Thursday and included transports, freighters and tankers under a big naval escort including the British battleship Rodney.

4. This conflicted, however, with advices from La Linea which said that the Rodney, two cruisers, two aircraft carriers and a number of destroyers and auxiliary vessels still were at the British stronghold where two more transports arrived from the Atlantic yesterday.

The additional transports, the report said, were believed to have put in at Gibraltar to take aboard troops for the Mediterranean.

La Linea advices said that the aircraft carrier Argus, five heavy cruisers, 27 destroyers and 24 merchantmen, including several tankers, had sailed through the strait into the Mediterranean and that two big tankers and three destroyers left later to join the convoy.

5. A report from Algiers, Spain, said authorities at Gibraltar had confiscated all barges, pontoons and scows privately owned and, according to the Spanish Cirfa agency, British forces had rehearsed landing maneuvers on the shore beneath the fortress.

6. Other Spanish reports yesterday added two more British cruisers and several United States destroyers to the naval might reported gathering in the Gibraltar harbor and said more United States destroyers were expected there.

7. Four-engined bombers, including at least five flying fortresses, were mentioned as taking off in relays to escort the convoy through the strait.

The Reuters correspondent in Tangiers reported the expectation of axis sources there that the war would spread soon to French territory in Africa with allied landings in French Morocco or Dakar.

was no address in any of her effects.

She had been dead four or five hours when the body was found about 10:30 a. m. It had been placed in a shallow ditch on the west side of the highway. The face was bruised and the clothing was disarranged.

The sheriff said he found tire prints at the roadside, showing where the car had turned in toward the ditch. Other prints showed where it resumed its southward course.

Vases that are to be sent to Camp White, Medford, should be taken to Mrs. C. E. Sharp by November 15, it was announced this week by Mrs. Lewis Kandra, president of the Lost River Garden club which in addition to the gift of vases, plans to send a number of Christmas wreaths and other holiday trimmings to the camp. Anyone who cares to contribute a vase, regardless of membership in the club, may do so and the donation will be welcomed.

Mrs. Marion Hedrich and her small son, Peter, of Dallas, have been guests of Mrs. Hedrich's brothers, M. A. Bowman and Leonard Bowman and family and other Merrill relatives. Mrs. Leonard Bowman, is also a guest here.

The altar society of St. Augustine's church is winding up details for the annual pre-holiday bazaar and card party that is planned for November 18. The community hall will be open all day for the convenience of guests and all booths will be open. The usual array of Christmas novelties and gifts will be ready as well as dozens of aprons. Holiday goodies will be for sale and the committees in charge promise a large variety.

The annual public card party is planned as usual for the afternoon, both bridge and pinocle to be in play. Replacing the dinner that each year for several seasons past has been attended by several hundred Klamath basin people will be a chicken sandwich lunch. Service will continue from 5 o'clock in the evening until the last guest is gone.

There will be a table of bingo in the evening, a fish pond for the young folks and other concessions.

Principal and Mrs. E. E. Kilpatrick left Friday night for Corvallis for attendance on Saturday of Dad's day festivities. Betty Kilpatrick is a student at Oregon State. She recently was pledged to Kappa Delta sorority.

Mopping Up
About 1000 of the enemy were declared to have perished in vain efforts yesterday to expand their holdings in Stalingrad, falling back to their original lines despite tank and plane support.

A tank-supported infantry brigade struck at Russian defense positions before the Caucasus slopes southeast of Nalchik, but was driven off with heavy losses, the communique said.

Mopping up operations progressed northeast of Tuapse and booty was reported captured. Soviet troops destroyed an enemy group which fought on despite encirclement, killing 170, the communique said.

Burrows commented that cows were also troublesome, chewing at field telephone lines which are stretched along the ground. "They are not bad eating though," he said.

Injured—C. M. Cody of Dunsuir and his father, Robert Cody of Delta, suffered painful injuries in an automobile accident which occurred early this week near Dorris. The two were returning from a duck hunt at Tulelake. They were admitted to the Dorris hospital but later moved by ambulance to Dunsuir. The elder Cody is retired. His son is employed by the Southern Pacific at Dunsuir.

BIDS ON TULELAKE POSTOFFICE ASKED

TULELAKE — Bids for a lease on a building to accommodate the expanding Tulelake postoffice are being called for by George G. Rolph, postoffice inspector, Sacramento, according to a public notice posted this week. Deadline for bidding is November 30.

With the local office, since inauguration of the branch office at Newell, handling many times the former volume of mail, larger quarters have become imperative. All mail for Newell goes first through Tulelake postoffice channels.

Listed as necessary for the building to be occupied is a more central location, floor space of approximately 2400 square feet, to provide space for lobby, four service windows, postmaster's office and several additional rooms. Although the posted notice calls for the inclusion of such items as heat, light, power and water, proponents may submit an alternate proposal excluding heat, light and power, it was noted.

Proposals should be mailed to Inspector Rolph at Sacramento.

graphic reconnaissance showed great damage inflicted on Genoa in earlier attacks and that reports on last night's assault indicated that at least as much was done again.

Returning fliers said the four-engined British bombers set fires which could be seen 120 miles away. One pilot, who arrived after trail-blazing planes had lit the targets with flares, said he could see the docks and city below "as clear as daylight." Still another said he saw three two-ton "block busters" explode, one "with a terrific burst in the center of a patch of fires."

Mine Workers, said members of the union in shop and maintenance crews took a "work holiday" to support their demand for reinstatement of an unspecified number of employees who have not worked for the railroad since a strike was called on Labor day, 1935.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 7 (AP)—The National Administrative Council of the Mechanics Educational Society of America voted today to end Monday a "labor holiday" of 9200 tool and die-makers which tied up 15 Detroit plants overnight.

Michael Bisovsky, national vice president of the union, said the dispute was now in the hands of the war labor board. He said assurances had been received that eight discharged Mesa members would be kept on the payroll at Detroit's Briggs aircraft plant pending a settlement.

The council had met here to consider spreading the strike to Toledo, Cleveland and other cities.

Alert May Indicate Another Attack in Progress by RAF

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)—An air-raid warning sounded in Bern, Switzerland, at 8:15 o'clock tonight, indicating the RAF may be attacking northern Italy for the second consecutive night.

Radio stations at Toulouse, Lyon and Vichy went off the air—another indication that the British were flying.

New Price Control Hits Potatoes, Onions, Turkeys

beans, flour, mutton, canned milk, cornmeal and citrus fruits. Henderson said permanent price controls now were being worked out for these products.

Henderson said the effect of today's order on the housewife would be Potatoes—Maine potato prices which were frozen at the lowest seasonal level by the temporary order, will be permitted to rise to the normal level for November. This was said to mean, at most, a rise in retail of 1 cent a pound on the average, and less in many areas. Western potatoes, which were frozen at comparatively high seasonal prices, probably will show no change at retail.

Onions—The temporary freeze caught onions in most areas at the peak of the seasonal slump when prices were lower than at any other time of the year. As in the case of Maine potatoes the new regulation allows onions to rise to the normal November level. At retail, Henderson estimated, onion prices will go up less than half a cent a pound.

Turkeys—No material change from present levels.

The changes in potato and onion prices, Henderson said, will become apparent at retail in a week or so.

As the season proceeds, additional price changes will be noticed since all the regulations allow for seasonal price fluctuations. Northern potato prices for example, advance slowly between harvest time and the following April. Then, as new potatoes are marketed from other areas, prices decline reaching their low again in the early spring.

Henderson said the maximum prices for sales by country shippers would permit them to pay the farmer a price for his potatoes, onions and turkeys that "not only reflects full 100 per cent of parity but also insures financial incentive for maintenance of peak output."

While British reports pictured the Germans as retreating west of Matruh, Nazi field headquarters asserted that the battle was continuing with "great fierceness" east of the coastal town.

Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's field headquarters said British troops were mopping up "abandoned Italian divisions," left behind by the fleeing German Panzers, in the southern sector of the battle area.

Six Italian divisions, totalling perhaps 80,000 troops, were reported left in the lurch by their Nazi comrades, with their communications cut and facing annihilation or surrender.

OCTOBER WAS HOT, PLUS PLENTY DRY

Sure was hot! Sure was. October, 1942, stands out as a dry month as well as an especially warmish one. Only .29 of an inch of moisture fell during the 31-day period as compared to a normal precipitation of .99 inches.

Mean temperature was 52.5 degrees, warmest since October, 1926, when the mean for the month was 54.5. Maximum for the month was 86 degrees, highest October temperature since 1934 when 88 degrees was reached. Minimum was a snappy 27 degrees.

The sun shone the major portion of the month showing his face for 19 clear days, glancing occasionally for seven partly cloudy days and remaining out of sight but five.

The skipper was made a prisoner aboard one of two submarines which surfaced, upsetting one of the ship's lifeboats.

At first, the navy said, he refused to make his identity known to his Nazi captors but finally did admit he was captain of the ship when the Nazis started to take the second mate in his place.

In addition to the life boat upset when the submarines came up, one life boat had been crushed in the sinking of the ship and one life raft capsized. In all 13 men were lost in the action.
