

GUADALCANAL YANKS HOLD UPPER HAND

five to one in comparison to American losses since 62 American planes had been destroyed up to that time.

Vice Stationary
Carrying the fight to the enemy, American and allied troops have encircled one Japanese position on New Guinea and apparently are holding the upper hand on Guadalcanal island in the embattled Solomons.

The western jaw of a vise which the Japanese had hoped to squeeze upon Henderson airfield—control spot of the Solomons—has been stationary for two days. This was interpreted as evidence that soldiers and marines have halted the original Japanese thrust against the airfield from that quarter.

Yanks Advance
To the east American troops are pushing forward a drive to encircle the enemy beachhead at Koli Point where reinforcements for the original invasion force were landed.

The Americans advanced four miles east of the beachhead Saturday, Guadalcanal time, the navy said, apparently isolating that eastern jaw of the vise.

Meantime in New Guinea allied forces inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy in a movement which enveloped a Japanese position behind Olivi, on the northeast coast of the island 55 miles south of Buna, Nipponese supply base.

Transport Damaged
Raking the enemy front lines with machine gun fire and dumping loads of bombs on communications lines, allied fighting planes worked closely with ground troops in the action, General Douglas MacArthur reported.

The allied command also told of heavy bombers searching out an enemy transport off the coast of New Ireland and inflicting damage which forced the transport skipper to beach his craft.

a springboard for axis counterattacks.

The Berlin radio hopefully broadcast reports that the main French fleet had steamed from its European base at Toulon on Sunday, but nothing has been heard from it so far.

U. S. Army Action

Dispatches from La Linea, Spain, reported the arrival of powerful allied naval reinforcements at Gibraltar, including the British aircraft carrier Furious, five destroyers and 22 merchant ships.

The 35,000-ton British battleship Nelson and other warships were reported anchored in the harbor, while overhead many fighter planes kept up a constant patrol.

Tank-led U. S. army troops and paratroopers were reported attacking a series of key points along the Mediterranean and Atlantic coasts, with heavy fighting raging at Casablanca and Orleansville, 100 miles east of fallen Oran.

Darlan Held
Algiers, the capital of Algeria, had previously surrendered Sunday night.

Simultaneously, an allied headquarters spokesman announced that Admiral Jean Darlan, chief of all Vichy armed forces, was in Algiers in custody of U. S. forces.

A Vichy broadcast reported "superior armored forces" were violently attacking Casablanca, in French Morocco, but declared that Vichy troops were still holding out at the eastern approaches of the city.

Vichy dispatches said France's 86-year-old chief of state, Marshal Philippe Petain, had decided to assume command of French land, sea and air forces.

Trap Axis
Other major targets of attack in the three-day-old "second front" offensive included Casablanca, Atlantic port 300 miles southwest of Gibraltar; Rabat, capital of French Morocco; and Philippeville, 250 miles east of Algiers.

Philippeville lies close to the frontier of Tunisia, whose government head, the Bey of Tunis, has been notified by President Roosevelt that American troops plan to pass through the colony to help trap the axis armies in Libya.

Virtual Control
Coincidentally, it was disclosed that British land and air troops now have landed in North Africa, bolstering the massive sea-borne American expeditionary force.

With the fall of Oran and Algiers, American troops had already gained virtual control of the western Mediterranean shore of North Africa, and powerful contingents were striking around on the Atlantic side.

The Morocco radio said that American shock troops were continuing to debark at Mogador, 180 miles south of Casablanca, and that Gen. Auguste Nogues, commander in chief of Vichy's forces, had moved his headquarters inland from Rabat. The airport at the latter place already has been abandoned.

and rounding up pitiful groups of Italians who survived the fate of their dead comrades.

The hapless fascists, many of them suffering from exposure, told bitterly of being left by the Germans. They related that thousands of their Italian comrades were wandering lost in the desert with little or no hope of survival.

Sardinia Blasted
Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's troops meanwhile pressed forward for the knockout blow against the axis remnants plunging into Libya.

At the same time British bombers of the Middle East command blasted airdromes on the Italian island of Sardinia, from which Italian and German bombers could attack the United States forces in North Africa, the joint British headquarters-RAF communique said.

INTERPRETER
ASHTON, Ida., (AP)—Dr. A. A. Krueger, an Austrian refugee who now is a practicing physician in Ashton, listened to a patient's complaint of a "pain in my breadbasket."

Dr. Krueger hastily excused himself, hurried in to consult his wife, who is better acquainted with American slang.

The doctor was happy to learn his patient was bothered with nothing more than a stomach ache.

PULLMAN, Wash., (AP)—The women's service corps of Washington State college has defeated 14 companies of male marchers in ROTC dress parade competition.

The group of 73 scored 52 out of a possible 60 points. It didn't help the male military ego any to recall that the girls organized so recently they didn't have uniforms.

They did their winning marching in raincoats.

REGISTRATION PUT OFF UNTIL NOV. 18 TO 20

ery rigs and other commercial vehicles scheduled to expire on November 22, will remain valid until December 1. On that date they will be replaced by the new "T" books.

For commercial vehicles, local war price and rationing boards will reduce by 20 per cent the gallonage allowed by the office of defense transportation for the 40 days period from November 22 to December 31, because of the shortening of the time within that period they are to be rationed.

The "T," or transport, rations to trucks are to be granted by the local boards to holders of ODT certificates of war necessity as soon as the rationing forms are available.

OPA belatedly made official announcement also that it had authorized regional OPA administrators to delay school house registration for the basic "A" passenger car rations from November 12-14 inclusive, to November 18-20.

OPA has asked the regional offices, however, to proceed on schedule with the registration in all areas where the forms and books have been received.

Effect of the rationing postponement on "A" book holders in the presently unrationed area will be to give them a gasoline bonus of slightly more than one coupon's worth. No ration coupons will be removed from the "A" books to allow for the change in dates.

TWO DIE IN CRASH WEST OF CANBY

Thomas J. Creighton, Tionesta mill employe, and Mrs. Calvin Tappe of Canby, were killed instantly about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon when their cars met on a curve four miles west of Canby on the Klamath Falls-Alturas highway.

Creighton, employed by Shaw Lumber company, spent considerable time in Klamath Falls. He was a passenger in a car driven by Alfred Robbins of Klamath Falls, also a Tionesta lumber worker. Robbins is recovering from serious injuries in an Alturas hospital as is Mr. Tappe and his 11-year-old daughter. The little girl is said to be in a serious condition. When in this city Robbins makes his home at 126 Payne street.

quipped and have the necessary munitions.

This meant, he added, that large numbers of people must be had from civilian life to make those supplies and equipment to keep pace with the orderly increase in the army.

The same held true for the navy and other fighting services, he said.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP) President Roosevelt made public today a report of the war manpower commission's management-labor policy committee opposing immediate enactment of compulsory national service legislation and urging tightening of governmental manpower machinery.

The unanimous report, calling upon "government, industry, agriculture, and labor for strong leadership, aggressive action and maximum cooperation," made these specific recommendations:

1. That authority and responsibility for formulating an overall manpower program integrated with military and production planning be centralized in the chiefs of staff of the army and navy, the lend-lease administrator, and the chairman of the war production board and the WMC.

2. That voluntary enlistments in the armed forces be stopped and that the selective service system be placed under the WMC and authorized to make special draft calls by direction of the army and navy for men with specialized skills.

3. That military and civilian training programs conducted in non-military educational institutions be coordinated by WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt.

4. That the WMC's employment service be made "the primary clearance agency for the recruitment and employment of workers" and "a strong administrative and operating organization" for the WMC, with congress providing the necessary additional funds and removing "impediments."

who have the same enemy." Eisenhower said a new American trench mortar had reduced a fort at Oran after its garrison decided to resist and he praised the weapon as an outstanding contribution to warfare.

"A combat team brought up the mortars and gave the fort a pasting which would not have been possible with the mortars of the last war," he said, "and it surrendered almost at once, but not before there had been 15 enlisted and one officer casualties."

"The prisoners apparently wanted to be captured and fight with the allies, but they resented the casualties. We don't want to shoot a friend, but we cannot let them shoot us and not shoot back. War is a serious business and people get hurt."

17,000 Keys Sent Toward War Effort From Klamath

Seventeen thousand keys, unearthed in attic or cellar and others on unused key rings, have been collected and sent toward the war effort from Klamath Falls according to Mrs. Eve Benson, Klamath Key Collection chairman. Donated keys weighed 265 pounds, it was learned.

Further collections within the city are going on and the drive has now extended to Keno, Altamont, Malin, Henley, Merrill and Pelican City.

With very few exceptions old keys have been most willingly sought and donated by citizens wishing to assist in obtaining the valuable metals necessary for use by the armed forces.

Mrs. Benson expressed her appreciation to those who have aided her in rounding up the 17,000 keys. Assisting her have been Mrs. Leslie W. Peate, whose husband, Dr. L. W. Peate served in World War I; Mrs. James Sloate, whose husband is Major J. Sloate of the U. S. army engineering corps and at the present time stationed at New Delhi, India; Mrs. Emma Wilde of Malin whose husband is in training with the armed forces, and students and teachers of city and county schools.
