

TRAPPERS DROP PELICANS, 20-6

Allinger Leads Frozen Field Win Over State Champs

By MALCOLM EPLEY
Bert Allinger was all they said he was, and more, and with the aid of a superb Vancouver line he led the Trappers to a brilliant 20 to 6 victory over the state champion Pelicans on frozen Modoc field Friday night.

The Pelicans, never before headed in a long season of eight games, found themselves behind before the extra-schedule Vancouver game was three minutes old, and they were never able to rise from that unprecedented situation to the heights of skill and power that have marked their play this year.

Meanwhile Allinger, in the greatest backfield performance seen on Modoc field in years, plunged on for a personal yardage of 110, threw three successful passes, and figured prominently in the Trapper touchdown drives although others did the actual scoring.

Once in the first quarter, once in the third and again in the fourth, the Trappers crossed the Klamath goal line, each time on ground rushes.

Coach Frank Ramsey's first string struggled grimly for more than three quarters to stem the Trapper tide and to pierce their solid defense, but it remained for two substitutes, Hank Schortgen and Doug McKay, to bring the lone Pelican score on a long pass and two terrific line plunges just before the game ended.

Whistle-Blowing
The Pelican strategy went awry at the start. Hoping to lead the Trappers a chase that would shorten their breaths in this high altitude, the Klamath team was partially thwarted by frequent whistle-blowing and even some official confusion that gave the visitors plenty of time to make respiratory come-backs.

Blohm's opening on-side kick-off for the Pelicans started the official delay, when there was disagreement among the whistle men as to whether the Pelicans, who had grabbed the ball, should keep it or should kick it again. A kick was ordered, Allinger returned it to the 35, and the Klamaths were hit then with a 15-yard penalty for roughness.

There was more standing around, the Trappers got going, drove into Klamath territory but Allinger fumbled and Foster recovered on the Klamath 45.

On the next play Foster fumbled on an attempted end sweep and Ripley recovered for Van-cover on the Pelican 21, and from there the Trappers, with Allinger carrying the brunt of the charge, went to a touchdown. L. Wellman made the score from the Klamath one-yard line, and Heller converted.

The Pelican offensive seemed to click for a while after that.

and the ball was carried into Trapper territory. But Mast, on a fake punt play, fumbled and from there on to the end of the half the two teams struggled back and forth in mid-field.

Trapper Break
Another fumble by Mast opened the way for the second Vancouver score in the third, although the Klamath fullback was trying to get off a pass and it was a close decision whether it was a fumble or an incomplete throw. Mast had taken the ball from the 30, faked back to the right, and tried the throw as he was rushed. Ruled a fumble, the ball was given Vancouver on the Pelican 14. Allinger, Wellman and Grant went to the one, and Wellman went over. Heller's kick again was good.

The third Trapper touchdown came on a drive from their own 45. Allinger, on a beautiful spinner, went through the defensive left tackle to the Klamath 30, Grant made six on a reverse, Allinger made first down on the Klamath 17, and Grant on a left sweep carried it 17 for the score. Grant was almost caught, but shook off a tackler or two before he broke away to score standing up.

Pelicans Score
After an exchange of kicks, Klamath took the ball on downs on its own 35. Schortgen, McKay and Young went on the field from the Klamath reserve bench, and then came the thrilling Klamath scoring drive.

Mast ran out to the far right flank and McKay to the left. Schortgen faked back, McKay raced along the sideline, went beyond the Trapper safety and caught Schortgen's beautiful pass in his arms. The big fellow rolled on to the Trapper 10 before he was tripped from behind.

On the next play, McKay plunged nine yards off left guard to the Vancouver one. It was the longest Klamath scrimmage gain of the evening. Schortgen went over for the touchdown. Vaillancour's kick was wide.

That ended the evening's scoring.

Vancouver's performance was proof enough that the Klamaths, in looking for a tough opponent after winning state honors, picked the best. Most observers agreed the Trappers were the finest high school football team seen on Modoc field in many years. Their line was rugged and the ends got into the Klamath backfield on almost every Pelican play.

Allinger started, of course, but Grant and L. Wellman also shone brilliantly. Such speed and power as Allinger's had never been encountered by a Klamath team. His terrific momentum carried tacklers with him for yards after he had been stopped. This led to pile-ups, and an unnecessary roughness penalty or two scared the Klamath's into easing up when they needed all they had to stop the Trapper star.

Baldy Foster, the Klamath breakaway artist, could never get started on his sweeps, with the hard-charging Trapper line swarming in on him. Foster played a great defensive game and once or twice stopped what looked like possible touchdown runs by Allinger after the Trapper had broken through the scrimmage line. Mast, too, shone on defense, but his line plunges and favorite fake punt plays did little against the rugged Trapper defense.

While it was apparent the Klamaths were playing a superior team, it was also apparent they were not playing up to their usual standards, and the rich reservoir of substitutes, which was expected to count much in the struggle, for the most part, spent the evening on the bench. When finally Schortgen, McKay and Young from the bench went in, they furnished the spark that scored. Klamath signal-calling and tackling were both below the team's usual excellence.

But it was a great ball game the shivering crowd of 2000 witnessed, and it closed the most successful season in local gridiron history.

Willie Pep KO's Chalky Wright in Title Battle

Ex-Bootblack Wins Featherweight Go From Aged Negro Champ by Using Head

By SID FEDER
NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—No one did a hand-stand in Madison Square Garden's ring, but Willie Pep succeeded Chalky Wright on the world featherweight throne today strictly "on his head."

It was simply by fighting Wright the only way the aging Los Angeles negro can be beaten—by using his head all the way—that the Pep kid is the new boss of the 127-pounders today.

Willie is a 20-year-old exbootblack out of Hartford, who admits he hasn't been around long enough to have read the entire book about the beak-busting business. So Willie calls his manager, Lou Viscusi, "Mr. Brains" at all times, and it was only by the battle plan Lou drew up that the Hartford jumping-jack brought the bumble back to Connecticut. About the only weapon he used, with the exception of a dozen or so right hands that he let go (probably by accident) through the entire 15 rounds, was a half-punch, half-push left jab that bounced off Chalky's face as if it owned it.

He "stuck" with his jab from start to finish, and he moved so much and so often that some folks thought he had borrowed the bicycle on which Bob Pastor pedaled to escape Joe Louis for 10 rounds a few years back. It all proved highly entertaining to the crowd of 19,521 who tossed $71,868.70 into Mike Jacobs' money boxes.

Several thousand of the crowd were from Connecticut and were seeing Willie home. These totals, incidentally, went to make up the all-time high turnout for a featherweight fust, outshining by quite a bit the $63,656 paid to see Benny Bass and Tony Canzoneri clout each other around 14 years ago.

Yet, now that Willie has the championship—this fight was his 54th straight victory in a two-year professional career—the featherweight follies are still playing the two-day circuit. For Pep still only owns the half of the crown recognized by New York state's athletic commission and its affiliates. Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson has the half which has the National Boxing association blessing.

"Great Day," Farmer Bausam's Mule Rates As Army Grid Mascot
WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP)—Next Saturday will be a great day for one of the mules from the barn of Farmer Bausam near Annapolis.

An ordinary mule on other days, this particular long-eared animal has been chosen by the U. S. military academy to serve as the Cadets' mascot at the Army-Navy football game. Mr. Jackson and Pancho, the regular army mascots, will miss the classic as will the corps cadets and everybody else living more than 10 miles away from Annapolis.

Farmer Bausam's lucky mule resides only two miles from the stadium in which the game will be played.

JOLT'S OUT TOUCHDOWN
DALLAS, Nov. 20 (AP)—Either fumbles or penalties had kept C. D. Allen, Southern Methodist's fancy ball carrier, away from the goal line.

Finally he made it. He received a hard head jolt in the Arkansas game, but still managed to take off a few seconds later for a 51-yard touchdown run.

Happy? Well, slightly. That jolt was more severe than anyone suspected. He can't remember scoring his only touchdowns of the season.

Always read the want-ads.

No Fun for Hutson in Giant Tilt
Pro-Grid Powerhouse Hits All-Time Whammy in Green Bay Packer Tilt Tomorrow
By SID FEDER
NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Against eight other clubs in professional football, Don Hutson has had more fun for eight years than Christmas dinner at grandma's; against the New York Giants, he hasn't even had a hot-dog—with or without mustard.

And tomorrow, in the headliner on the National league's four-game program, the greatest scoring powerhouse the loop has ever known collides again with his all-time whammy, the Green Bay Packers pile into the polo grounds to tangle with the Giants.

As far as the league's sectional team championships go, this shindig has no bearing for the Chicago Bears and the Washington Redskins have those pretty well "stashed" away. The Bears take on the Lions at Detroit this time and Washington entertains the befuddled Brooklyn Dodgers, while the Chicago Cardinals move into Pittsburgh for the other games this week.

There's no doubt, however, that the Giants have the hex on Don. The Packers' great and has scored 71 touchdowns in his eight years under the big top, and can do just about everything, and with a football except make it sit up and sing "Jingle, Jingle, Jingle." Yet, although he's scored at least twice against every other club in the loop—and more than ten times against as mightily a machine as the Bears—he has never once hit the jackpot against the Giants.

ter who wins, the ball will go to the highest bidder in the weekly war bond auction.

Rooks Bottle Up Frosh for 27-0 Grid Victory

EUGENE, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Oregon State Rooks bottled up the Oregon Frosh here last night, and carried off an easy 27-0 football victory.

The alert Rook defense kept the Frosh in their own territory throughout the game, and when the passing and rushing attempts were all over, the Frosh had lost 15 yards more than they had gained.

Meanwhile the Rooks scored in every quarter. Halfback Don Samuel, instrumental in the Rooks' first victory of the year over the Frosh by a 6-2 score, tallied first for Oregon State.

He dashed 14 yards to wind up a 53-yard Rook march. Roy Cole passed 38 yards to Samuel to set up the second touchdown. Cole plunged over for the score and also chalked up the third touchdown on a short job at the line.

Bob Grove took a short pass from John Parino for the final touchdown.

The Rooks compiled 13 first downs and 215 yards from rushing and passing. The Frosh made three out of four first downs on penalties.

It was the last game of the season for both teams.
