BATTLE LOOMS OVER AFL-CIO LABOR DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)

As an apparently ominous prelude to labor peace negotiations, AFL Metal Trades unions were pledged today to an all-out war on the national labor relations board and the CIO in the Kaiser shipyards labor dispute.

AFL-CIO peace conferences are tentatively scheduled to start next week. Hearing Ordered Highly-placed sources acknowledged, without permitting direct quotation, that pressure was being brought at the board and at the White House to have the proceedings suspended in the interest of ship production. The AFL is known to have enlisted the active aid of at least some of the government shipbuilding officials, but the CIO is demanding a collective bargaining election.

The NLRB has ordered a hearing next month on its complaint alleging that three northwest Pacific yards of Henry J. Kaiser entered illegal closed shop agreements with the AFL unions when hiring was just starting, thereby depriving large numbers of employees of the free choice of a bargaining agent. AFL President William Green has contended the board's policy would start a bitter inter-union electioneering campaign and would result in production losses.

Unions Involved Aroused by the NLRB's action, the AFL Metal Trades department announced yesterday the formation of a special defense committee. Leaders of the unions involved said they had pledged themselves to "apply all of their resources" to protect their interests "from outrageous decisions by the national labor relations board and the unjustified and unpatriotic raiding now being carried on by the CIO against AFL organizations."

The CIO union involved is the Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, headed by John Green.

Stanford-Cal Students Rally At WRA Colony at Newell

NEWELL, Calif.—With interest as keen as ever over the Big Game, alumni of the University of California and Stanford held a rally last Friday night in one of the mess halls at the WRA project here. For a brief few hours, these Japanese-American youths sang again their school songs and were led in their yells by their cheer masters.

The meeting had all the earmarks of a pre-game campus rally, with all the attendant heated discussions and pleasantries. More than 250 colonists attended the rally.

Search for the proverbial honest person may now come to an end. That rare individual may be in Tule Lake, judging by an announcement which appeared in the Tulean Dispatch, the project daily newspaper. "Some currency have been found between building 3219 and 3218. These may be claimed at the Block Manager's Office."

Rodney L. Brink, Pacific coast editorial manager of the Christian Science Monitor, spent two days on the project gathering material for a series of articles to be published in that paper. Unlike most of his predecessors, Brink gathered material for articles dealing with the resettlement of people of Japanese ancestry into the American body politic.

To foster wider cooperation among the students, parents, and teachers, Wednesday, November 25, has been designated as open house day at the project high school, according to Principal Floyd Wilder.

Parents are urged to visit the classes in which their children are enrolled to see the actual

News Notes and Comment

By ANITA GWYN

Ever since school started, one of the main questions asked has been "when will school be dismissed?" Many answers were offered but none of them were definite and so we trudged around until we could catch Mr. Gralapp, superintendent of schools, to get an official report. There are a lot of "ifs" and "buts," but here it is. School will be dismissed May 21, but if there is no spring vacation the final day will be May 14. In either case the seniors will

It looks as if the basketball season is on its way in. Practice is just starting.

Girls' sports are becoming more popular and the volleyball teams are now playing off for class championships. Games and exercises fill the gym periods.

We have listened in on several conversations and have heard that the girls would like to keep up with the boys insofar as military training in gymnastics goes. It would strengthen them and also help trim the figure.

Many girls have enrolled in the aviation sheet metal classes and are busily learning how to rivet.

Buy it through the want-ads.
