War-Time Thanksgiving

THIS war-time Thanksgiving, the first for our nation since it entered the world struggle, millions of Americans are in the armed services. Many of these are on the battle lines, on sea and land, where death is always imminent. For their high-hearted bravery, their willing service in behalf of the cause that is dearest to us, let us give thanks.

Let us give thanks, not so much by written and spoken words, but by resolving to do all that we should do to be worthy of the men who are fighting our battles.

Let us give thanks by rejecting greed, which has shown itself in all too many forms and places since the war began.

Let us give thanks by giving our support and effort to the many phases of war work which are required of the home front.

Let us give thanks by contributing our part to the efficiency of the nation's economy—by doing our job, whatever it is, to the best of our abilities.

Let us give thanks by constructive criticism of that which we truly believe to be wrong in public policy, and by abstaining from grumbling over that which is necessary but causes us mere personal inconvenience.

Let us give thanks by insisting upon vigorous prosecution of the war to its earliest conclusion, to the extent of greater public sacrifice and harder work by the civilian population.

Let us give thanks by re-pledging ourselves to the simple faith in God and Right that inspired the first Thanksgiving.

With the exception of men in the services and families who have lost men in the war, the American people have not been called upon for many sacrifices in this struggle. Most of us are getting along all right. A lot of us are making more money than ever before.

Let us be thankful for our blessings, but let us be ready to yield more of them in support of our country and the men who are out there ready to give all.

Former Klamath folk, living against their will at Medford, have sent us clippings from Art Perry's Medford Mail-Tribune column slapping at Klamath footballers over the Vancouver game. Mr. Perry evidently still aches in the place that began hurting on the night of October 16.

FOOD CHAIN FACES MONOPOLY CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—The nation's largest food chain, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company group, was confronted today with a federal indictment charging conspiracy to "monopolize a substantial part of trade and commerce in food and food products."

A two-count indictment returned yesterday by a federal grand jury at Dallas, Texas, promptly brought a retort by 12 companies and 16 officials involved that the suit was an attempt to "create further chaos" in the wartime food situation.

The indictment, naming the New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, Inc., parent of the 11 other companies, as the prime corporate defendant, charged that the effect of the alleged conspiracy was to: "Injure and destroy food manufacturers, processors, canners, wholesalers and thousands of independent retail food dealers; to depress prices paid to grocers of fresh fruits, vegetables and other farm crops; . . . and to make it impossible for thousands of non-integrated independent and small chains to remain in competition with the defendants."

Commandos Make It Real Thanksgiving For Service Men

Commandos were doing a good business in turkey sandwiches Thanksgiving day as they fed hungry service men who visited the center on Main street. On a blackboard were written dinner invitations from numerous Klamath citizens who wanted to share turkey and dressing with boys in uniform. A number of Camp White soldiers, who enjoy Klamath hospitality, came over by bus Wednesday night. More came from Camp Newell to spend the day. A dance was planned for Thursday evening at Commando rooms.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The administration is proposing to correct its mistake in illegally limiting salaries to $25,000 (without approval of congress) by doubling the size of the error.

Mrs. Roosevelt is quoted in the press as saying the limitation will or should be extended to earnings from investments.

Either way or both, this restriction alone can re-make and destroy the American way of life and the Paul Mallon democratic capitalistic form of government, as anyone who will weigh the facts carefully can see.

The greatest problem this country faces is to pay for this war. The debt is now running over $100,000,000,000 and will continue upward.

The only way this government can sustain itself is by taxing the earnings of the people to a similarly unprecedented degree. The weight of the debt will shrink proportionately as incomes go up.

What we must have to sustain democracy now and after the war is highest productivity, highest earnings, a greater national income than ever before, full employment and good profits—so all these sources of income can be tapped by taxation to an extent never before attempted.

LABOR WILL SUFFER

If income from investments is to be limited to $25,000 annually, there will not be sufficient investment to sustain a capitalistic democratic system. No one will risk more than enough in private enterprise to make that sum. Financial stagnation will ensue.

Money will not be ventured in new enterprises, to furnish new employment, higher wages, better working conditions. Existing enterprises will be limited in their growth if they are already furnishing each of their stockholders $25,000 a year.

Greatest sufferer will not be the investor, who is already making his $25,000, but labor—the union or non-union labor—that is employed with the investors' money.

If salaries are to be limited to $25,000, similarly, no one will waste his energy trying to make more. The superior lawyer, architect, artist, concert musician, actor, doctor, business executive will make his $25,000 and quit.

BREAK-DOWN

Greatest sufferers from this eventually will not be the persons who have made their $25,000 (which is enough for them) but the average worker who relies upon them for support.

But the party to suffer most is the U. S. treasury—the people's purse—strained by this unprecedented, colossal war load. Its revenues will fall off as earnings of investors and high salaried persons are limited.

It will have to tax the average man more and more, and if he cannot carry this added burden after the war, the treasury will break down and our democratic system with it.

8 MONTHS FOR U. S.
Now, all these large incomes

SIDE GLANCES

"I thought maybe you'd look like a movie star, but you don't! Sister says any date looks like Clark Gable to her nowadays!"

from investments or salaries are taxed profitably for the people as a whole. The tax on $100,000 earned is $65,140 (larger from investments). On $200,000, it is $151,000.

As long as we keep these large income people working fully they not only furnish employment, capital investment sources, and contribute directly to the economies of the nation, but we take three-fourths of what they earn or more away from them in taxes.

Any man now earning $200,000 is working eight months a year for the country—the people as a whole—and only four months for himself. What the administration proposes is that he shall stop working the eight months for the nation and work only the four months for himself.

This is bad enough in war times, when the will to win—plus unprecedented government expenditures—furnishes the impetus for full production, but after war, such an impetus will be lacking.

ABSURD

In truth, a peacetime restriction along this line would be a simple direct ban upon superior business energy of Americans, the extra initiative, the desire to get rich, which has made this nation the envy of the world.

No greater nonsense than these income restrictions were ever perpetuated on a free people. And why? Well, the excuse for it now is that the government wants to avoid inflation.

This is manifestly absurd, because a 65 per cent tax on a $100,000 income already has met the inflation danger in a wise and profitable way.

COMMUNISTS GAIN

The only other excuse is that the CIO wanted it (long ago, the communists proposed it) and it apparently sounded good to Mrs. Roosevelt and some other officials not fully identified in the public discussions about the matter.

The only ones who could possibly gain from it are the communists who want our system to fail. Labor and the CIO would suffer, and no doubt Mrs. Roosevelt herself would suffer (and the charities she sustains, as well).

Apparently, both the CIO and Mrs. Roosevelt look at it only from the standpoint of the person who is getting the big money. The only way in which the question should be viewed is from the standpoint of the people as a whole.

From that standpoint, the opposite policy is demanded—higher and higher incomes for everyone to keep everyone producing fully, larger investments to inspire new enterprise and new employment and better working conditions, and terrific taxation of them to keep the democratic way of life going.

That is the only way we can survive this war.

No Eligibility Rules Bother Stanford In Non Conference Tilt

PALO ALTO, Calif., Nov. 26 (AP)—Football players of three Stanford teams—1941, 1942 and 1943—are practicing defenses against St. Mary's Naval Pre-Flight single wing and T-formation plays.

The Indians are absolutely uninhibited by eligibility rules for the non-conference game here Saturday.

That is why freshmen and varsity players joined Eric Armstrong, a star 1941 Stanford backfield man, in drills yesterday.

Absent yesterday because of colds were Chuck Taylor, varsity guard, and Jim Cox, reserve tackle.

Thanksgiving today is being observed at this place. Union religious services, with an appropriate sermon by Rev. W. F. Shields, were held in the Presbyterian church this morning. Bountiful feasts, family reunions, gatherings of friends, social merriment, rest and recreation are evidences of the day. A dance in the opera house this evening will give an enjoyable finale to the day's program.

My Appreciation

Twenty-one years ago I opened my insurance business in Klamath Falls. These have been busy years, and good years. In the hustle to serve my clients I have sometimes paused, as I do now, to think of the pleasant associations I have formed. I wish now, as Thanksgiving time nears, to express my appreciation to the people of the Klamath Basin for the support they have given me in my life and accident-health insurance business.
