...and another highway between Biscuit and Tama.

The British radio said all ground engagements thus far, fought since the first showers of the Lusitania last season, had been on a small scale. It reported the French forces under Gen. Henri Romme Girard were attacking rapidly eastward in cooperation with the British and American programs.

The British radio declared the German air force had gained an opportunity over Tunisia "with lightning speed," but offered no statistics in support of the statement.

"Naval and land forces have been able to pour men and materials into the country," the radio agency said. "Employment of sea forces is still in progress and consequently fighting is restricted to a few minor battles between mobile units."

CASO, Nov. 27 (AP)—United States heavy bombers, ranging ahead of the British eighth army, made a punishing attack yesterday on Tripoli, main axis base in Africa, and also raided Rome, 100 miles to the east, it was announced today.

Laborers making these raids reported that they set off great explosions on two big merchant ships, one at Tripoli and the other at Rome. The latter vessel burned over on the side.

The British middle east command said today for the first time since the British eighth army's offensive was launched against Marshal Rommel's 12th Panzer Army, October 23, that "there is nothing to report from our land forces" and aerial activity was relatively limited.

"A large force of our medium bombers attacked a landing ground at Marfa Arah, west of El Agheila, on the night of November 25/26," the communiqué reported. "Bombs fell among dispersed aircraft, causing fires."

Jeffers said the production of synthetic rubber was clouded by "the inclusion of a big 'if' in regard to the success of the process and the size and continuity of output."

Jeffers promised Chairman Truman (D-Mo.) that he would make allowances for the west and middle west where he was aware that it was necessary to travel greater distances for essential purposes than in the east.

Most opposition to rationing has come from farm and oil state members of congress.

The group of five was separated almost with a rifle. Several civilians, including two negro girls, were killed.

A negro soldier killed still had not been identified. The other man killed was Robert Riley, 46, negro civilian, whose body was found slumped at the wheel of a car, a bullet wound in his head.

Most seriously wounded was First Lt. August J. Essman, 39, of a white military police detail. Essman, former Sheridan, Ore., high school football coach, was shot in the abdomen.

The wounded were two white military policemen, four negro soldiers, and a girl.

Col. Fred Ellis, commander of the troops, said a board of officers was investigating.

Director Joseph Eastman to make changes in the rationing program for farmers and war workers.

"I suggested to Mr. Eastman that farmers and stockmen generally have a very necessary use for trucks and that pending bringing out of local difficulties they should be given to understand that they are to continue their normal operations until such time as their individual needs are determined."

In the case of war workers, he said in a memorandum that rationing boards should be governed by recommendations of management-labor boards set up to determine individual needs of the men.

No New Rubber
Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold L. Kees told the committee that "unless luck turns on us, the rest cost would be provided '75 per cent of its customary usage' of fuel oil.

With no new rubber available, Jeffers testified, "we face the absolute necessity of the rationing program, which will enable us to continue essential driving through the fall of 1943 and spring of 1944."

Jeffers said the production of synthetic rubber was clouded by "the inclusion of a big 'if' in regard to the success of the process and the size and continuity of output."

Jeffers promised Chairman Truman (D-Mo.) that he would make allowances for the west and middle west where he was aware that it was necessary to travel greater distances for essential purposes than in the east.
