

Horse Meat May Enter Picture

PORTLAND, Dec. 2 (AP)—Meat rationing may make Portland a horse meat marketing center, the Oregon Journal commented today. Inquiries for horse meat, always handled here in considerable quantity but mainly for dog and cat foods, were reported by marketers from many sections. A California city asked for 700 pounds a day, more if available. Montana and other intermountain states have asked details.

CAUGHT
PHOENIX, Ariz., (AP)—It was the night of November 30. Temple Penrod, state rationing officer, worked late on final details of gasoline rationing.

En route home he remembered he had to drive 125 miles to Tucson early the next day and had only two gallons of gasoline in his tank. He pulled into a service station "fill her up." Said the attendant: "Sorry, Mister, it's five minutes after midnight."

Penrod didn't have his ration book with him. Girls just haven't the face to deny that they use rouge.

DEFLATED
CULLISON, Kas., (AP)—Cullison, a town of 250 population, knows there's a war. The town's only grocery store has closed. Its only milk route will cease operation January 1.

And now its bank has been moved to Pratt, 10 miles away—all because the help's gone to war. Being a good listener isn't saying much!
