OPA HEAD SEES MORE RED TAPE AND RATIONING

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (AP)—Dr. Robert A. Millikan, scientist and head of the California Institute of Technology, said today "the average American has both a head and a conscience," and that there is no sign "he will ever let his country down."
 "My optimism has been derived from watching carefully the Gallup polls ever since they started," Dr. Millikan told the national convention of the National Association of Manufacturers in a prepared address.

The manufacturers also had the word of Leon Henderson, price administrator, that Americans could expect more rationing of food and pleaded for less regimentation.
More Decentralization
 Henderson told the industrialists last night that the American public had not yet reached the "bottom of the barrel" and that 1943 would bring "more czars, more red tape and rationing."
 He said 1943 additionally would bring more decentralization of the office of price administration away from Washington, raising of sub-standard wages, and maintenance of present corporate practices.

But Walter D. Fuller, chairman of the NAM board of directors and president of the Curtis Publishing company, told a radio audience in an address in connection with the convention that curtailment was being carried to extremes, industries were being concentrated and plants shut down to an extent unnecessary for prosecution of the war.

HELPMATE
 DENVER (AP)—Francis Warner, 27, told his ailing wife to stay in bed—he'd do the family washing.
 He got things going in the basement, with young daughter Lila Mae as a spectator. Forgetting clothespins, Warner went upstairs. His daughter's screams sent him bolting back downstairs. En route he pushed a hand through a glass pane in the basement door.
 Warner needed hospital attention for a severed artery. Lila Mae had her fingers pinched in the wringer, but the machine had turned off automatically and she wasn't hurt badly.
 Mrs. Warner finished the washing.

Worry makes gray hair, so don't worry about gray hairs.

WHEAT
 CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (AP)—Buying of contracts specifying delivery of wheat before the end of this month rallied the wheat market today. Earlier there was a show of weakness following word that the ceiling on flour had been extended, without upward revision as some traders expected.

December wheat rose more than a cent a bushel at one time but deferred contracts had little share of this strength. Some traders thought the demand for December delivery may have reflected the fact that in this manner ownership of grain can be acquired cheaper than by outright
