SCIENTIST SEES HOPE FOR U. S. RUBBER PLIGHT

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP)—If synthetic rubber plants now planned are completed, the nation's production will be sufficient by next October to provide the military needs of the United States, in the opinion of Dr. Vasil I. Komarewsky, research scientist.

The rubber will be of lower cost and higher quality than the natural product, believes Dr. Komarewsky, who has worked with synthetic rubber in Russia and Germany and who has patents covering more than 80 processes.

Dr. Komarewsky said that the next 10 months would show big gains in the capacity of plants producing synthetic rubber and estimated a total of 867,000 tons of buna S rubber alone by next October.

Asked whether his estimate had taken into account a recent warning by Rubber Director William M. Jeffers that insufficient materials foretold of delays in the rubber program, he said:

"My figures are based on the present plans. If they build the plants, they can have the rubber. If they don't build them, they will fall short."

Million Tons Needed
Dr. Komarewsky explained that four types of synthetic rubber are being manufactured in this country—Buna S, Duprene, Butyl, and Thiokol, with approximately 85 per cent of the production concentrated on Buna A.

He said that the nation's normal requirements were 500,000 tons a year and world consumption in peace time was one million tons.
