

FREMONT HAS 41 FIRES IN YEAR PERIOD

A total of 41 fires was suppressed on the Fremont forest in 1942, according to Supervisor Ed Cliff. Twenty of these were started by lightning and 21 were man caused. Of the 21 man caused fires, 14 were started by smokers.

Of the smokers' fires, 3 were started by hunters, 3 by timbermen, 2 by fishermen, 1 by a stockman, and 5 miscellaneous.

Four fires were started by hunters' camp fires and one from a stockman's camp fire.

One fire started from an eagle sitting on a power line and one by a farmer burning debris. The latter burned over 3280 acres of which 1280 were forest protected land. Two fires starting from children playing with matches burned over 378 acres.

Sixteen of the 20 lightning fires were suppressed before they burned over 1 acre. Two were suppressed before reaching a size of 1 acre and 2 before reaching 10 acres. Lightning fires burned over a total of 69 acres; man-caused fires burned 1676 acres.

Nineteen of the 41 fires were discovered and reported by forest users and ranchers. Independent action to suppress the fires was taken in 8 instances and cooperation was given on 21 fires.

The number of 1942 fires shows an approximate 50% decrease over the 5-year period. The cooperation by the public has shown a corresponding increase.

Like Feeding Excelsior to Cow In Green Glasses

PORTLAND, Jan. 1 (AP)—Tovarich didn't go for horsemeat, but Arthur M. Greenhall, Portland zoo director, fixed that right away.

Tovarich, a golden eagle rescued by a ship's crew after being blown out to sea, snubbed plain horsemeat proffered by Greenhall but pounced on a dead pigeon he offered her.

That gave Greenhall an idea. He obtained feathers from a poultry firm and put them over the horseflesh.

It worked. Tovarich went for it.

And, said Greenhall, "the feathers will do her good—provide her with needed roughage."

Documents Show Italians Fought Germans---and Won

CAIRO, Jan. 1 (AP)—Documents captured by the British army in the pursuit of Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces show that an Italian unit fought an engagement with Germans near El Alamein, Egypt—by mistake—and won it, British sources with access to the papers said Thursday.

The Germans surrendered to the Italians before the mistake was discovered, the documents revealed. They showed that the axis command subsequently held a court of inquiry on the affair, which was pictured as follows: An Italian battalion was ordered to advance on foot as part of a general attack. During the advance, they came up under gun-fire and promptly gave battle. After hours of fighting the Italians' opponents surrendered.

Then it was discovered that the prisoners were part of a German battalion which had advanced faster than the Italians. The documents showed that casualties were 20 Germans and five Italians, killed or wounded.

New Lidice Staged In Poland, British Radio Reports

NEW YORK, Jan. 1 (AP)—The British radio, quoting "a report from the German frontier," declared Thursday the Germans had staged a new Lidice in Poland, shooting the entire male population of a Lublin province village and sending all the women and children to concentration camps.

The broadcast, recorded in New York by CBS, said "the Germans are trying to justify this action by saying that the women objected to an order to evacuate the village."

These Pictures Hang On Our Wall
Looking up at them daily, this resolution has taken shape in our minds and our hearts:

- To work as we never worked before.
- To be patient under the difficulties of war-time food production and distribution.
- To give our customers the best service possible in this time of labor and other shortages.

TO THE END THAT—

When these men who have gone out from our organization to the armed services of our country come home from the war there will be waiting for them here an institution into which they can step back and resume their places in the peace-time world with full assurance of happiness and security.

To this purpose we pledge our total effort and our total resources for the duration.

We will not compromise with QUALITY

THE QUALITY of a fine beer, such as Bohemian Club, can be insured only by the exclusive use of choicest ingredients, painstaking brewing and slow, careful aging.

The Bohemian breweries has always brewed but one beer—a true, Bohemian Type Lager—and this brewery took steps years ago to protect the quality and maintain the character and uniformity of its product by importing rare Moravian barley seed and its own strain of seedless Bohemian hops to be grown on our fertile Northwest farms.

There is now an exceptional and almost unprecedented demand for Bohemian Club Export Lager but, no matter how great this demand may become, not one day will be taken from the careful aging required to produce its distinctive flavor and pleasing mellowness.

If, despite all precautions we have taken, priorities and man-power problems should create a shortage of our supplies of premium barley and hops we will never substitute less choice or less costly ingredients.

We Will Not Compromise With QUALITY!
