

PRODUCTION STRIDES TOLD IN MESSAGE

strike by land, we and the British and the Russians will hit them from the air heavily and relentlessly.

The eventual outcome of the fighting in the Pacific, the president said, can be put on a mathematical basis, since it is known that Japanese strength in ships and planes declines daily and American strength rises. He said this would become evident to the Japanese people "when we strike at their own home islands, and bomb them constantly from the air."

Near the close of his address to the new congress, Mr. Roosevelt said that all the United Nations wanted a "decent peace and a durable peace."

He dissents. Mr. Roosevelt gave no particulars on any new social security legislation. He said he had been told it was no time to speak of a better America after the war and that it was a grave error for him to do so.

"I dissent," he declared flatly. "If the security of the individual citizen, or the family, should become a subject of national debate, the country knows where I stand."

Production Booms. Mr. Roosevelt said he could report with genuine pride on the strides of war production in 1942. And, while achieving a miracle of production, he said, we have increased our armed forces from a little over 2,000,000 to 7,000,000.

On production, he cited specific figures. Last month, he said, 5500 military planes rolled out of American factories and the rate is rising rapidly. But he conceded that the 1942 plane output and tank production fell numerically short of the goals set a year ago.

His goal last January was 60,000 planes and 45,000 tanks for last year. Actual production of planes was 48,000, but he emphasized that bigger planes with more striking power were being built now.

Mistakes Made. Tank production schedules were revised because of battle experience, the president said, and a portion converted to the output of new, deadly field weapons, especially self-propelled artillery. Last year, he said, America's factories turned out 56,000 combat vehicles, including this artillery and tanks.

Mr. Roosevelt conceded mistakes had been made and that there had been too many complicated forms and questionnaires. The latter, he said, represented an honest and sincere attempt to see to it that supplies of food and other essential civilian goods were distributed on a fair and just basis and that living costs were held at a stable level.

"Our experience," he continued, "will enable us during the coming year to improve the necessary mechanisms of wartime economic controls and to simplify administrative procedures. But we do not intend to leave things so lax that loopholes will be left for cheaters, for chislers, or for the manipulators of the black market."

Civilians, he said, will feel increasingly the sharp pinch of total war, but he said there were few Americans who placed appetite above patriotism.

The president said it was of little account to talk of essential human needs and security if we run the risk of another world war in ten or twenty or fifty years. He said he shuddered to think what would happen to humanity if the conflict ended in "an inconclusive peace."

"Undoubtedly a few Americans, even now," he said, think that this nation can end this war comfortably and then climb back into an American hole and pull the hole in after them.

Germany, Italy and Japan, he said, must be disarmed and kept disarmed, and must abandon a philosophy which has brought suffering to the world. If they remain armed, he said, or are permitted to rearm, inevitably they will embark again on a career of world conquest.

Services Held for Joseph Stoddard, Pioneer Lumberman

BAKER, Jan. 7 (AP)—Funeral services were held here yesterday for Joseph Stoddard, 70, one of the west's pioneer lumbermen. Born at Wellsville, Utah, he started in the lumber business at the age of 20 in Wyoming. In the late 80's he and David Eccles, of another pioneer Utah family, installed a small sawmill on Wolf creek, near North Powder, Ore. Later they opened another mill at Hood River. Stoddard was with the Oregon Lumber company in 1891, later with Stoddard Brothers at North Powder. From 1929 until his death he was general manager of the Stoddard Lumber company here. His widow, four sons, three daughters and two sisters survive.

COUNTY CHILDREN TO GET SOUVENIRS

Several thousand Klamath county school children, including boys and girls of the city schools, will receive wood souvenirs from the battleship Oregon which has joined Uncle Sam's scrap pile, for bonds which they have purchased since the beginning of school in September.

Andrew Collier, chairman of war savings in Klamath county, announced that 7125 souvenirs were shipped from Portland this week directly to Fred Peterson, county school superintendent, who makes up the bond school committee with Arnold L. Gralag and J. Percy Wells.

Several years ago children of the state donated pennies, nickels and dimes toward the rehabilitation of the battleship and when order came to scrap the pride of the Spanish-American war, it was decided to offer the mementoes to school children who have taken part in the purchasing of bonds throughout the year. A note from the parent, stating that Johnny or Susie has purchased a bond since September, 1942, will suffice, it was learned.

EPHRATA, Jan. 7 (AP)—Arthur Lundmark, a civilian, was taken to the army hospital here, his nose severed from his face, sheriff's officers disclosed yesterday. REMOTE CONTROL SACRAMENTO, (AP) — The women took a back seat here—and far back.

The California assembly voted that wives of legislators must sit back in the lobby instead of on the assembly floor as in the past. But ladies, this is a wartime legislature, and you remember what Sherman said.

PENNEY'S SUPPLIES for the HOME FRONT!

J. C. PENNEY CO., INC.

YOUR HOUSE AND THE WAR

You, your family, your house... all the things that make up your life, are now part of the war effort. The things you do without are used to equip our soldiers, feed our allies. The little day-by-day economies you make, turned into War Bonds, roll up into billions of dollars that are needed for victory. It is a challenge to you, the homemaker, to see how little you can still run a well-ordered, comfortable home.

Perhaps you'd like new sheets, but you may not absolutely need them. The durable remainder of one, solely need them. Good usable pillow cases, worn sheets can be used to equip our soldiers. Worn old sheets can be cut down into wash cloths, and used on padding boards. Two old blankets, worn thin, can be stitched together for the weight and warmth of a new one; and a bright flowered cover, quilted with ribbon or wool, will turn them into a fine comforter.

We do not urge you to buy anything you do not need. None of us is excused from the obligation to do all we can to win the war speedily... and the honest merchant's job is two-fold: to discourage waste and hoarding... and to see to it that every thing his customers buy is sound in quality, so it will last.

That is our job... in every Penney store. And in every Penney store that job is being done.
