Ezzard Charles Regrets Training Camp Selection

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8 (P)—Ezzard Charles probably will be more careful about choosing gymnasiums when he trains for his next fight.

The Cincinnati light heavyweight, who absorbed a right smart licking at the hands of Cleveland's Jimmy Blivins in a 10-rounder at the arena last night, prepared for the scrap at the Bivins conditioning emporium and no doubt regrets it today.

Bivins was peeved because his fellow Ohioan moved in on his old stamping grounds and that was unfortunate for Charles.

The Cleveland clouter has gained a local reputation as a clown in the ring, but he was all business as he earned a February 23 date with Anton Christoforidis in the finals of Matchmaker Larry Atkins' tournament designed to crown a "duration champ."

Baseball Prexies Worry As Job Freeze Threatens Players on Defense Work

Baseball to Scrap Sked With Freeze

Pacific Coast League Will Scrap Schedule If Players Are Frozen to War Jobs

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8 (P) Scrapping of the 1943 Pacific Coast League baseball schedule if players engaged in war work are frozen to their jobs was predicted today by Charley Graham, president of the San Francisco Seals.

In ruling that baseball is not an essential industry, War Manpower Commissioner Paul McNutt "must be preparing us for the coming statement that baseball men in war work will be frozen to their jobs," the Seals' owner said in an interview.

"We all know baseball is not an essential industry. It was not necessary to point that out. We all know that no man has been deferred by his draft board to play baseball."

It would be only right to freeze all baseball players to their war jobs, Graham conceded. "I don't see how an able-bodied man engaged in war work could quit that work for baseball."

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8 (P)—Clarence (Pants) Rowland, president of the Los Angeles Angels, said today that if the administration decides baseball should be suspended for the duration, "baseball will bow out gracefully."

He added, however, he did not place that interpretation on War Manpower Commissioner Paul McNutt's ruling that baseball is not an essential industry. Rowland was commenting on the prediction of Charley Graham, president of the San Francisco Seals, that the 1943 Pacific Coast league schedule will be scrapped if players engaged in war work are frozen to their jobs.

Rowland said he could not say without scanning his roster how many of his players are working in war plants.

Victor Ford Collins, president of the Hollywood Stars, said he was sure baseball would cooperate, as always, just as soon as the government made its exact wishes clear.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8 (P)—President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians, who urged tribesmen to get into war work at the close of the past baseball season, hoped today his advice would not backfire.

At least six players—Mel

Harder, Jim Bagby, Harry Eisenstat, Al Milnar, Hank Edwards and Oris Hockett—followed his advice.

Now, under a new labor stabilization plan "pegging" Cleveland war workers in their present jobs, there's some question whether the players will be released from industry to return to baseball next season.

The program, set up by the local labor-management committee of the war manpower commission to relieve a labor scarcity in the Cleveland area, prohibits the transfer of workers from essential jobs except by "statements of availability."

The WMC says success of the program depends upon its voluntary acceptance by employers and employees, but expects them to comply. Some WMC officials, admitting the player problem had not been foreseen, expressed the opinion tribesmen in war jobs would be affected by the program.

Bradley said he was confident the WMC would not challenge the right of a player to return to his real job—baseball.

"To peg them in those jobs now would be to penalize them for doing what they and I thought was right," the Indians' president added. "The fellow who would get the break would be the one who ignored my advice and spent the winter hunting and fishing."

SEATTLE, Jan. 8 (P)—The Seattle Rainiers baseball management expects the Coast league will operate as usual this summer, Business Manager Bill Mulligan said today, but the club will "go along with" the other teams if the season's schedule is scrapped.

Commenting on a prediction last night by President Charley Graham of the San Francisco Seals that the league would not operate this summer because baseball is not essential to the war effort, Mulligan said:

"We are working on the presumption the league will operate as usual. As far as we know there's nothing at all official about the prediction. But of course if the season is scrapped, we'll go along with the other clubs."

He said Seattle fans would be in a particularly good spot if that should happen.

"We have a lot of good ball players around here, in the shipyards and at the Boeing plant. We could get also good competition for games from such teams as the Sand Point air station. The Pasco fliers may be a little too far away for regular games."

He suggested a four-team league could be set up, which would play doubleheaders Saturday and Sundays.

Boxing Heads Kill Two in One Fight

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (P)—The National Boxing association and the New York state athletic commission are going to kill two birds with one bout tonight when Philadelphia Bob Montgomery collides with Chester Egan of New York in a 15-round lightweight scrap at Madison Square Garden.

The New York body, which recognizes Beau Jack as the lightweight champion of the world, has tagged tonight's tussle as one of its eliminations in a series to pick a challenger for its titleholder.

At the same time, the bout will serve as part of the nationwide tournament planned by the NBA to select a successor to Sammy Angott, who retired as lightweight champion two months ago. The NBA recognizes Beau Jack as the "leading challenger" in the 135-pound division, but not as champion.

Football Rules Committee Eyes School Changes

CHICAGO, Jan. 8 (P)—The national interscholastic football rules committee today studied questionnaires filled out by high school coaches in regard to proposals for rule changes.

H. V. Porter, secretary of the National Federation of State High School Athletic associations, said most coaches appeared well satisfied with the present football code and that one of the main problems confronting the conference concerned preserving equipment.

Several changes in rules of six-man and touch football were made yesterday in special sessions in an attempt to standardize the sports.

Fired by Quinn, Idaho Hoopsters Defeat Gonzaga

SPOKANE, Jan. 8 (P)—After a nip-and-tuck first half during which the lead changed eight times, the University of Idaho basketball team, fired by the sharpshooting of Center Fred Quinn, last night took easy command in the second session and overpowered Gonzaga university 55 to 37.

Quinn, playing little more than half the contest, poured in 18 points.

The victory snapped Idaho's two-game losing streak and ended a three-week barnstorming tour with 10 triumphs against two losses.

Forward Vic Ebaugh paced the Bulldogs with 10 points, while Guard Roger Brice got nine, on one field goal and seven straight free throws.

140 Points in 36 Minutes of Play New Hoop Record

Field Trials to Be Held Without Benefit of Gas

WAYNESBORO, Ga., Jan. 8 (P)—Georgia's Field Trial association has decided to hold its annual meeting here next week without benefit of gasoline but to "Big Charles" Skinner, 325-pound president of the association, the plan holds no terrors. Unable to find a horse sturdy enough to carry his frame over rough going for a full day, and scorning the automobile for hunting purposes, Skinner has a custom-built sulky drawn by a huge mare that wheels him over the 5000-acre trial grounds oblivious to all natural obstacles.
