CONSTIPATED? TRY THIS GENTLER WAY

Many medicinal purges work on you—by prodding the intestines into action or drawing water into them from other parts of the body.

But Kello's ALL-BRAN is a crisp, delicious breakfast cereal—works mainly on the contents of your colon. If you have normal intestines and your constipation is due to lack of "bulk" in your diet, you'll find ALL-BRAN a much gentler way to treat it.

Eat Kello's ALL-BRAN regularly and drink plenty of water—and you'll find wonderful relief. For this way, ALL-BRAN gets at the cause of constipation due to lack of "bulk" and corrects it. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek and sold by your grocer. Try it!

FLIER TELLS FRIENDSHIP WITH PEGGY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22 (P)—Capt. Owen Cathcart-Jones, former RCAF squadron leader, admitted at movie star Errol Flynn's trial on statutory rape charges today that he had accompanied Peggy La Rue Satterlee to various places—even to a mortuary where, he said, Peggy played hide-and-seek among the corpses.

The dapper flier, who said he is 42, told on defense cross-examination that 16-year-old Peggy had been a frequent visitor to his Hollywood apartment, alone, sometimes in the evening.

Miss Satterlee is the complaining witness on two of three counts with which Flynn is charged.

The airman, speaking in a broad English accent, admitted accompanying Miss Satterlee to night clubs, vacation spots and restaurants. On out-of-town trips, however, he said, they were always accompanied by her mother, her sister Mickey June or someone else.

"On one occasion did you not go to a mortuary?" asked Flynn's attorney, Jerry Giesler.

"Yes," said Cathcart-Jones. "And didn't Peggy play hide-and-seek among the corpses?"

"Yes." "And wasn't the casket of an old lady opened?"

"Yes." "And the sheet pulled down from a Filipino who was slashed across the middle?"

"Yes." "And didn't you go back to the embalming room, where Peggy looked down at an elderly man and her face was pushed down on his head?"

"Yes." The witness who said his night club and other excursions with Miss Satterlee were in the summer of 1941 was asked by Giesler whether he was married at that time. He said he was not.

"You had a wife and two children, didn't you?" the attorney asked.

"A divorced wife" Cathcart-Jones amended.

LABOR HOLDS ATTENTION OF LOGGING GROUP

PORTLAND, Jan. 22 (P)—Manpower problems hold the attention of the Pacific Logging Congress today after the president of the West Coast Lumbermen's association said the industry high tribute for its 1942 production record.

Orville R. Miller told 400 delegates from Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho and Montana yesterday that if the navy's E pennants were awarded to loggers, "there would be one flying from every snag in the woods."

Demand Smaller

The fir belt produced 8,700,000 feet last year, the pine region 6,050,000,000 and the redwood area 500,000,000, he said, "and we did it in spite of furnishing Henry J. Kaiser with thousands of skilled loggers to help build his ships."

This year's lumber demand will not be quite so great, Miller predicted but there will be more emphasis on specialized types, particularly airplane lumber.

You Know, Who

He warned the industry to meet peacetime problems with the same determination it tackled war production, adding, "If you don't, there are those in high places who are eager to do it for you—and you know who I mean."

Forest fire control problems occupied a major share of the opening day sessions.

Class Cancelled—The Sacred Heart confraternity classes scheduled for Saturday will not meet this week, those in charge announced.

Glamour Girls Are Strictly Minor-League, Next to Lady Welders Competing for Title

PORTLAND, Jan. 22 (P)—The girls who enter beauty contests and compete for the title of "Best Dressed Woman" can't hold a torch to this one.

They are strictly minor-league beside a competition sponsored by the office of war information to select the champion woman welder of the United States, England and Australia.

This war-influence reversal of the trend in women's affairs had its origin with the Ingalls Shipbuilding corporation of Pasco, Wash., Miss. The yard came forth with a champion—and a grandmother at that—Mrs. Jennie Mae Turner. She, the yard informed one and all shipbuilders, could out-weld any woman in the nation.

Henry J. Kaiser's Oregon Shipbuilding corporation here, with a flock of Liberty ship production records already to its credit, couldn't let the Ingalls challenge pass, especially since it claimed to be the first yard in the country to hire women welders.

To Oregon's acceptance of the challenge, Ingalls replied by wire: "Office of war information arranging world-wide contest between England, Australia and America. Will notify you when arrangements are made. Turner raring to go."

Thus, the competition flared onto the international scene before the first torches met. But Ingalls and Oregon still have their private duel on the fire and they hope to settle it before the OWI rings in all the other women who wield the modern magic wands.

It is very important that the country be prepared in every way it can to write a just peace and to organize world opinion to provide both peace and post-war conditions that will make another such conflict impossible.—Sen. Alben Barkley of Kentucky.

Sports teach you to weigh each risk carefully. None of this suicide stuff, but an intelligent study of a situation to see whether a given objective is worth the risk.—Lieut. Slade Cutter, former Annapolis griddman who commanded a submarine in the South Pacific.
