Magazine Discussed By County League

Broadsides Articles Presented Before Group at Monday Evening Meeting

An interesting program embodying discussion of timely subjects was presented to a small group of members of the Klamath County League of Women Voters Monday evening, January eighteenth, in the small club room of the city library. Mrs. Everett R. Dennis, president of the league, presided.

An interesting interpretation and discussion of two Broadsides, league publication, was given by Mrs. Paul Buck. The first of the Broadsides took up the subject of the Oregon State hospital and its needs for funds. Mrs. Buck explained why funds were so desperately needed, and what the state legislature is faced with in allowing these funds. She emphasized the necessity for far reaching and broadminded future planning rather than an unstudied pouring of funds into state institutions brought about by certain legislators who might start such a move for political prestige.

The second Broadside discussed by Mrs. Buck was on the subject of the Ruml plan for next year's taxes. She gave a lucid explanation of this plan with its problems and good and bad points.

Mrs. Lena Dennis gave a pictorial outline of the county reorganization plan. A legislative bill to be introduced at Salem this winter will be an enabling act allowing counties of Oregon to formulate reorganization plans.

At present, Mrs. Dennis pointed out, county officials are directly responsible only to the voter for the conduct of their offices. There is no executive or head of county government.

If counties reorganize, and the county manager plan is put into effect, there would be three distinct departments. First, all tax assessing and collecting bodies. Second, public health and welfare groups, and third, the public works and judicial departments, all directly responsible to the county manager.

County managership, according to Mrs. Dennis, is a profession for which many are preparing. A county manager can not afford not to be a success, and therefore will not allow himself to be cluttered with politics and petty bickering. In this system, she continued, it is easy to put a finger on anything out of line without long and expensive investigation.

People interested in the plan are urged to write legislators of this district asking them to consider it and to vote for the enabling bill when it comes before the legislature.

Mrs. H. P. Bosworth closed the evening's program with a discussion of the merit system, a League project, which will come up for vote at this session of the legislature.

Graduate Nurses of this district are advised by the secretary, Mrs. Howard Strode, that there will be no annual banquet this year as previously planned.

Mrs. Bosworth has interviewed members of the public health department and the welfare board, both of which are operating under the merit system, and find it most satisfactory. The Oregon state employment service also operates under the merit system, which is state civil service developed to its highest degree.

The next meeting of the Klamath League of Women Voters will be held in conjunction with the AAUW, at which time Dr. Noble of Reed college will be the guest speaker.
