(Continued From Page One) clearly that the talks dealt with more than diplomacy. "Agreement was reached," it was announced, "on the manner in which Great Britain and the United States would be able to help Turkey materially to consolidate her own general defensive security."

In Tunisia On the Tunisian fronts the American raid apparently was carried out by an advance force which was reported yesterday to have by-passed the village in a thrust toward Maknassy from northeast of Gafsa.

At that time a second American force was reported pushing southward toward Maknassy from the vicinity of Sidi Bouzid. Maknassy is 33 miles from the eastern Tunisian coast where the axis was trying desperately to hold open a line of withdrawal for Marshal Rommel.

Size of Army? In all of his review, the president was said to have held out no hope for a quick conclusion of the war, but rather to have stressed that the fighting is likely to be fierce and costly in lives.

One question asked him concerned the size of the army, a controversial issue with which congress must deal in its investigation of manpower needs, and the president was reported to have estimated roughly that 7,500,000 men in khaki would be enough.

Detection Studied His description of the measures taken to combat submarine attacks on allied convoys was reported to have included information on improvements in detection devices, as well as a report that the United States and Great Britain are building more ships than the undersea marauders sink.

One legislator who asked not to be quoted by name said it was his understanding, obtained elsewhere than at the conference, that great efforts are being made to improve the detection devices and to build escort ships for convoys.

The president was reported to have said that the war of attrition by which Japan's ships and planes apparently are being destroyed faster than they can be replaced was having telling effect.

ing of the Tokyo raiders at Pendleton and in the southeast, and their exploit under General James Doolittle.

Clark Fenster of Tulelake then made a brief address paying tribute to the missing bombardier and all men of the armed services whose demonstrated courage and valor, he said, show that "America will never bow its head or bend its knee, except to God."

Presiding officer was Howard Dayton, commander of the Tulelake American Legion post. The ceremony was performed before a background formed by the American flag, two huge V's, and a guard of rifle-bearing soldiers from nearby Camp Newell. Music was provided by the Tulelake high school girls' band.

Mrs. Dieter was presented with a bouquet of red roses.

NO HITS SCORED IN JAP ATTACK ON ALEUTIANS

ing failed to return from a raid on the Jap air base at Munda in the central Solomons.

Steady Development The communique said that on January 26, a week ago today, army planes had bombed and scored near hits on a Japanese cargo ship at Tarawa island in the Gilbert group. This, as far as is known here, is the first time that land-based bombers have struck so deeply into enemy mandated island territory. Tarawa is approximately 100 miles from the nearest American bases which are Guadalcanal, the Fiji island, and Samoa.

Action within the Solomons area developed steadily from Saturday morning when marauder medium bombers delivered an attack on Munda which was followed in the afternoon by more marauders and Flying Fortresses.

Jap Barges Shelled Fires were started as a result of hits scored during the afternoon assault.

On Sunday a number of enemy barges were discovered off Cape Esperance, a Japanese-held beachhead at the northwestern end of Guadalcanal island. An American destroyer shelled the barges, but the communique did not report what damage was inflicted.

On Monday morning a force of dive bombers accompanied by Avenger torpedo planes and Wildcat fighters assaulted the Munda area again and it was from this action that two dive bombers failed to get home. Results of the attack were not stated.

Jap Interception Also on Monday morning, a force of Flying Fortresses with Warhawk and Lightning fighters bombed a large Japanese cargo ship off Shortland island and scored three direct hits. All the American planes returned to their base although three of the fighters were damaged by anti-aircraft fire.

A second wave of Fortresses following up that attack went in to attack enemy shipping in the Buin-Shortland area, which comprises the island-studded waters immediately southeast of Bougainville, and was intercepted by 20 enemy Zeros. It was from this flight that three planes were apparently lost and a fourth badly damaged.

The communique said that while all the air action was in progress ground forces in Guadalcanal island continued to advance slowly westward in their campaign to wipe out organized Japanese resistance.

There was no amplification beyond the bare statements of the communique regarding the Japanese attacks in the Aleutians. The location of the American positions which were attacked was not disclosed, although presumably they were bases in the Andreanof group.

EGG PRICES DROP; BUTTER RATIONED HERE

many Klamath people have been buying butter here and sending it to their families or friends in the butter-hungry bigger cities and defense areas.

This activity resulted in an increasing consumption of butter here in the past several weeks.

KF Rationing Program But now, local buttermakers say, the community's butter supply is falling off, due to a decrease in butterfat production and the fact that the government requires the large creameries to sell 30 per cent of their product to the armed forces.

These conditions resulted in a local rationing program. Dealers will receive 50 per cent of their December deliveries.

No hardship was anticipated, but it is expected the development will stop the purchasing of butter here for folks in the bigger centers. Some of the retailers were considering restricting all purchasers to one pound or other methods of distributing the available supply of butter as equitably as possible among all customers.

Canned Foods Rationing to Start March 1

ration book number one, the coupon sheet for sugar and coffee, will receive war ration book two, which will be used both for canned goods beginning March 1 and will also be used about a month later for meat rationing.

Before getting the new ration book, however, each family will have to declare how many cans the family had on hand on February 1. From this number will be subtracted five cans for every person in the family, and coupons from the new book will be torn out for any cans in excess of five per person. However, this count of cans will exclude home canned goods and certain types of non-rationed cans such as canned olives and jellies, and all cans containing less than eight ounces (mostly small cans of baby food).

JEFFERS REJECTS TIRE-TAKING IDEA

restrictions on civilian automobile travel were necessary at this time but that this opinion might have to be changed next summer.

The war department proposal was disclosed to a congressional committee. It came from Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, one of three witnesses who testified yesterday concerning a bitter priorities fight between the army and the navy on one side and Rubber Director William M. Jeffers on the other. Patterson told a joint house naval-military committee that seven recommendations he had made to Jeffers last December for conservation of rubber had not been acted on.

LIONS HEAR TWO U OF O STUDENTS

Economic and political problems of the post-war world were discussed by David Waite and Harold Rhea, University of Oregon students, before the Lions club Tuesday. They were brought here by Dr. Robert Huber of the university speech department. Introduced were the following Lion cubs: Raymond Hatfield, Roy Byrnes, Earl Heuvel, Bob Schofield, Curtis Stockstill and Walter Bowne. Guests were Tom Saures and Tom Cole, the latter with the U. S. submarine service.

This is the year when a man shouldn't make his garden small enough for friend wife to do all the work later on.

NO BRUTALITY, SAYS D. A. ABOUT SAPPS

Justice Joe Mahoney today bound over Cecil Sapps to the grand jury. Sapps posted $500 bond and was released.

District Attorney L. Orth Sismore said Tuesday that his investigation has convinced him that Cecil Sapps, young assault case defendant, was not treated brutally when questioned by police.

The district attorney said that Sapps had been carefully examined by physicians, and there were no marks of violence. He said that Sapps had a small abrasion on the inside of his mouth, which might have been made in a number of ways. It could not be determined by looking at it whether it resulted from a blow or a bite.

Sismore stated that Sapps told him he had been hit by a car the day he was arrested on a charge of accosting a young girl.

Sapps was scheduled to appear in justice court at 10 a. m. Tuesday morning, after release on his own recognizance. He did not appear until about 2 p. m. Justice Joe Mahoney was expected to rule in the afternoon as to whether Sapps would be bound over to the grand jury.

Zoot-Suited Folks Waits Stolidly For Court Action

the business card of Attorney Maurice A. Gleason, Los Angeles, and said "that's the lawyer."

A first degree murder conviction in Oregon carries the death penalty—barring jury recommendation. Executions are in a lethal gas chamber. The district attorney announced today he would summon a grand jury from among hold-over jurors from the December term of court as soon as he completed interviewing several witnesses. This would take about two weeks, he estimated, indicating there was little chance of bringing Folkes to trial before the March term. Weinrick received a telephone call this morning from Attorney Maurice Gleason of Los Angeles, designated by Folkes as his lawyer. Gleason said he had not so far been formally retained but was waiting word from the negro or his relatives.
