

SEATTLE NAMED FOR REGIONAL LABOR BOARD

SEATTLE, Feb. 8 (AP)—A regional labor board which will have final authority in 95 per cent of the cases of labor disputes in Washington, Oregon and Alaska will be set up here within a month, Wayne L. Morse, public member of the war labor board, said here last night.

The regional board will be set up under the WLB's decentralization plan which will leave the national board as a sort of supreme court of labor relations, Morse, dean of the University of Oregon law school, on leave of absence to serve the WLB, explained.

Appeal Right

"I want to get across to both labor and industry that in most cases the regional board will have final authority," Morse said.

"Parties have the right to appeal from a regional decision, but except in rare cases effecting industry outside the territory, the regional boards will remain the final authority."

The Seattle board will be set up by Morse, Delmont Garst, CIO official representing labor, and Roger Lapham of the American-Hawaiian Steamship company, representing industry.

Under the Victory Bond drive, which does not include series E, the tax series totaled $302,087; series F, $92,50, and series C, $800. The totals of the amounts turned in from the schools had not yet been compiled, according to County School Superintendent Anne Sprague, but she indicated that an outstanding job had been done throughout the schools of the county in the sale of bonds and stamps for January.

Scientist Gives Story of Crater Lake's Formation After Extensive Studies

By DORIS PAYNE

"One of the most important contributions from geological science in recent years is represented by the work just completed by Dr. Howell Williams of the University of California on the origin of Crater lake."

This is the opinion expressed by Dr. John C. Merriam, president emeritus of the Carnegie Institution of Washington and said to be the best informed scientist in the United States.

"Since the Crater Lake region is one of the greatest assets and attractions of the Northwest, the publication of these studies means a definite addition to the value of one of Oregon's finest possessions," he pointed out. "The results of this concentrated research by one of the world's best trained and most experienced students in this field is of interest to those residing in that region, to those who come to Crater lake as visitors, and to students of volcanoes the world over."

Slight of build, yet a dynamo of energy, Dr. Williams is no arm-chair theorist. Day after day he dared the dangers and put forth the exertion involved in scrambling diagonally up and down the inner walls of the Crater Lake rim until he had examined and mapped every exposed formation.

Dr. Williams spent weeks tramping the surrounding area studying the deposition of volcanic pumice by means of bores drilled far beneath the surface. He sweated his way to the summits of dozens of volcanic cones in the vicinity, making notes of his observation. To assure the comprehensiveness of his work, he circled the Pacific ocean, studying the principal of volcanoes of the caldera or basin type represented by Crater lake.

Dr. Williams has assembled the results of his studies in two books, one written in non-technical language for the layman and one in greater detail for scientific use. They are "Crater Lake: The Story of Its Origin," published by the University of California Press and "The Geology of Crater Lake National Park, Oregon," published by the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Both are unusually well written and beautifully illustrated.

That Dr. Williams' work at Crater lake has received wide recognition, is indicated by the translation of one of his books into the Spanish language at the request of the Pan-American Institute of Geography and History. This was done with a view to throwing additional light upon study of the numerous volcanoes in Mexico and the countries to the south. It is one of many phases of cooperative research being carried on by scientists of the United States and of neighboring countries.

Dr. Williams' publications are also hailed as outstanding contributions to the growing body of literature which enhances appreciation of nature through understanding of its processes.

LONG DISTANCE DATE

DENTON, Tex. (AP)—Hossein Soroosh met the girl—after a 17,000-mile trip. Four years ago Miss Peggy Lipscomb, then a junior in high school, picked Soroosh's name from a list of pen pals furnished by the American College of Teheran. She never expected to keep up the correspondence, or to meet her correspondent from far off Iran—but she did. Soroosh has arrived to take a course in radio engineering at the University of Texas in Austin.

Said Miss Lipscomb, now a student at the Texas State college for women here: "He's very nice."

Oregon Senators Split on Vote For Josh Lee

PORTLAND, Feb. 8 (AP)—War bond sales in Oregon reached a new high of $10,300,000 for January, State Administrator David W. Eccles reported Saturday.

America's Food Supply Has Really Gone to War

ABOARD A NEW U. S. BATTLESHIP AT SEA. (Delayed) (AP)—The bacon, coffee, sugar, beef that once were abundant in corner groceries and meat markets have gone to war to provide strength for the fighting men.

A casting of accounts of the supply office today showed consumption of seven tons of food a day on the battleship.

Topping the list of foodstuffs were 117,000 pounds of beef—steaks and roasts—consumed by the crew in a recent month. That's only a start through the foodstuffs purchased during the month by the supply officer.

Coffee? As much as any man wants and any time he wants it. To fill that order 5385 pounds were used in one month.

Supplemental beverages accounted for 60 pounds of tea and 275 gallons of cocoa.

Sweetening for the coffee—and for pies, cakes, cereals—required 13,700 pounds of sugar. In addition sweet-craving seamen bought 71,868 candy bars in a single month to munch between meals.

Take a look at these other major items in the supply purchases:

Bacon 2054 pounds; ham 2052 pounds; pork 2500 pounds; chicken 2600 pounds; veal 5000 pounds; turkey 3900 pounds; milk 1331 gallons fresh, 1810 pounds powdered and 8241 pounds evaporated; potatoes 36,881 pounds; turnips, carrots, other fresh vegetables, 35,085 pounds.

These foodstuffs with fruit and fruit juices and green vegetables, when available, go into three full meals a day for every man aboard. In addition men standing night watches receive extra lunches of sandwiches and coffee at their posts.

The supply officer frowns on canned goods—won't use them unless it is absolutely necessary—and boasts that the cold storage rooms can handle provisions for weeks and weeks.

With all the abundance of food—it costs about $1000 a day to feed the men of this battleship—there's little waste. Says the supply officer:

"If a man is found throwing food away, the master-at-arms will make him sit down again and eat it all."

A magpie got out of a locked safe in thirty seconds. We'd love to see one in a crowded street.

Baker has been located at Fort Sill, Okla., for the past two years. He entered the army in 1940 with a commission as second lieutenant and since that time has made the outstanding record of four promotions. He was graduated from Oregon State college in 1933 and worked as educational advisor at the Bly and other CCC camps.

Mrs. Baker was formerly Jean Lyons of this city. They have two small daughters, and the entire family is located at Fort Sill. Baker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Baker of Milwaukee.

C., according to word received by his mother. Mrs. Nord was advised that Dick's furlough would be too short for a visit home, and she left Saturday night by stage to meet her son in Chicago. She plans to arrive there Tuesday night for at least a three-day visit. Young Nord is a graduate of Sacred Heart academy, played saxophone in various Klamath orchestras, and joined the army air corps in July of 1942.
