Aid Promised for Snowbound Granite in Blue Mountains

CANYON CITY, Feb. 11 (AP)—Grant County Judge J. H. Allen promised aid Wednesday for snowbound Granite if the food situation becomes critical in that five mountain mining settlement of 41 persons.

Isolated for three weeks, the town is out of meat and green vegetables. Cereals and some canned goods are available, however, and Allen said no one was going hungry.

He said food could be taken in by sleigh at any time from Sumpter, 16 miles from Granite. Allen said it probably would be some time before the road to Granite, blocked by 54-foot snow drifts, could be opened to motor traffic.

Stalin is not the real name of the Soviet ruler. He adopted it several years ago, and it means "steel."
