ME CONSTIPATED? NO LONGER!

Boy, how fed up I used to get with myself! I just wasn't any good.

I used to use medicinal laxatives. But my constipation came back just the same. Then I found out why—it was due to lack of "bulk" in my diet!

So — I began eating xxttoce's att-ssam regularly and drinking plenty of water. That swell cereal got right at the cause of my constipation and corrected it! It helped me "John the Regularal" Maybe is could help you, too. Ask for it at your grocer's today, att-ssam is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek, Michigan.

IF you have traveled on Southern Pacific in recent months, you know that many of our trains have been late. Very few of you have complained, and we deeply appreciate your patience and your understanding of our problems. But we know you have found these late arrivals unpleasant and inconvenient.

We have tried our best to maintain on-time performance according to our published time tables, but we are in the same position you would be in if you promised to arrive home for dinner at a certain time and were unavoidably delayed by traffic.

So many extra war trains-passenger and freight-are moving over our lines that we haven't been able to get all regular trains through on time.

A railroad line has limitations on its capacity the same as a highway. The more automobiles on a highway, the harder it is to "make ti In the same way the more trains on a piece of track, the more difficult it is to maintain fast schedules. The task is complicated further when many of the war freights and troop trains must move on emergency schedules to which our regular service must be adapted, sometimes on very short notice. The victory trains come first with us. We know that's the way you want it.

However, we know that you, as a passenger, would like to be fairly sure that your train will arrive at its scheduled time so you can make your plans accordingly.

So, in order to give you more dependability, as well as to reduce the operating difficulties that late trains create, we are going to lengthen the schedules of nearly all important trains over our lines. This will give these trains more time to make their runs and a better opportunity to reach destinations on time.

The coming changes on February 15 will affect virtually all trains on the Shasta Route, Overland Route and San Joaquin Valley Line. (Schedules on our Sunset Route, Golden State Route and Coast Line were slowed down earlier.)

We know these new schedules will not solve all problems. There will still be some delays and there will still be crowded trains. But we want you to know that we'll do everything we can to keep on schedule.

WARNING

If you plan to start a Southern Pacific trip on or after Feb. 15, be sure to consult your Southern Pacific agent about the new train schedules.
