

NO SWINE IN CITY LIMITS, RULES COUNCIL

The city council still likes its pigs in roasts or spareribs form and Monday night decided that porkers would not be kept in the city limits, war or no war.

Councilman Rollin Cantrall, who introduced the matter at last week's council session, responded with the only dissenting vote after Walter Wiesendanger moved that the council go on record against keeping pigs in town.

Still Feasible
Dr. Peter H. Rozendal, Klamath county health officer, presented a letter protesting the possibility of maintaining swine in the city. Dr. Rozendal further cited incidents in the suburban area in which swine had caused difficulty. He recommended to the council that they act against the suggestion.

Cantrall said that his idea in bringing up the swine question last week at the suggestion of residents of his ward, was still feasible in his mind. "I grant that if the pens are too close to another house, they might become obnoxious, but if they are at a specific distance from the nearest residence, they could be kept in control that way," Cantrall said. He further stated that he considered it a cooperative measure between the city and taxpayers and that he still felt with proper supervision and under revocable permits, swine could be kept in certain areas for the duration and six months after.

Long Business
Councilman A. H. Bussman observed that the ordinance now granted the keeping of cows, chickens and rabbits and he felt "that was enough."

"If you let the bars down for pigs, we'll be a long time in getting rid of them," Bussman said. Following a vote the council got down to other routine business of the evening. Bussman reported that lights on Klamath avenue between Fourth and Eleventh street are operated at the expense of the merchants and asked that this matter be checked by the city light and water committee.

Streets Discussed
It was voted to close the city hall on Monday, February 22, in observance of Washington's birthday and the usual Monday night council meeting be held on Tuesday, February 23.

The condition of city streets was briefly discussed and J. A. Roberts, street foreman, will get busy with both blades working on streets which have suffered badly from winter weather. Following the regular session the councilmen discussed the city and county road program and Mayor John H. Houston asked each member to check on problem streets, find out if property owners would shoulder their share of the burden in doing necessary improvements, and report back at the next meeting.

Commando Week
The recreation committee was authorized to purchase a $5000 war savings bond upon request of Andrew M. Collier, chairman. Mayor Houston announced that this week had been set aside as Commando Week and urged support of all individuals in the work of the local unit including the dance next Saturday night at the armory. He announced open house from 1 p. m. to 9 p. m. Saturday at Commando headquarters on Main street.

The mayor also reported on the recent meeting with the highway committee of the Klamath county chamber of commerce in regard to the cities highway revenue bill. Cantrall suggested that up-to-the-minute data be furnished the press and radio to acquaint taxpayers with the problems. He said that there is no material issued whereby the average citizen can judge both sides of the question.

Fence Required
Wiesendanger remarked that the proposition might have lost support at the chamber meeting but it "gained a lot of ground, too."

Michael Kasper, operator of the Economy Wreckers on South Sixth street, was given 60 days to fence in the property. City Attorney Joe Carnahan

HIGHWAY BILL ENDORSED BY REALTY BOARD

The cities highway revenue bill in the legislature received the endorsement of the Klamath realty board Monday, on a vote of 11 to 7. This is the measure which is opposed by the chamber of commerce.

Action by the realty board came after an active discussion in which Mayor John Houston presented the cities' arguments for a share of the state highway fund for use on city streets. The bill in the legislature would give the city 15 per cent of the fund, provided the state highway commission would have $10,000,000 for regular state highway purposes.

Tax Problem Talked
Alfred Collier offered arguments against the cities' plan, and said the cities already receive state highway money for work on certain local streets.

R. C. Dale discussed city tax problems, stating that cities throughout the country are faced with unfavorable conditions brought about by high taxes on city property. High city taxes, he said, are causing people to move out of town with new improvements. He said he felt that the cost of maintaining city streets should not be added to the property tax burden, but should come out of gas tax funds such as the state highway fund.

22 Present
After the vote on endorsement of the cities' bill, the realty board unanimously passed a motion to the effect that in case the cities' street demands hamper the state highway program, the board favors an addition to the gas tax so that both programs may be taken care of.

Twenty-two were present at the meeting.

COURT REVERSES KLAMATH VERDICT

SALEM, Feb. 16 (AP)—The state supreme court reversed today a Klamath county jury's $1028 verdict in favor of Jack Doherty, who cut his hand July 6, 1940, when he broke a porcelain faucet when he was a guest at the Arcade hotel in Klamath Falls. Doherty had turned on the faucet, which broke in his hand. He contended the hotel was negligent on grounds it should not have installed faucets with porcelain handles. Justice Rossman, whose opinion reversed Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg of Klamath Falls, said that Judge Vandenberg should have directed the jury to enter a verdict in favor of the hotel, which the high court said was not negligent. "We do not believe," Justice Rossman wrote, "that the record contains any evidence showing that common experience condemns porcelain handles as dangerous. . . . The charge that the defendant was negligent was not supported by substantial evidence." Civilized people did not eat tomatoes until after the discovery of America.

WASTE IS UNPATRIOTIC
5 Ideas That Will Help You Save Money and Materials

Tip No. 1— Compare food prices so that you may be sure of getting the most in quality and quantity for your money. Paying more than you need to is wasteful. In comparing values, be sure to check the weights on packages.

Tip No. 2— Buy only what your family needs over a reasonable period of time so that all of it will be consumed—none spoil or be thrown away.

Tip No. 3— Make it your business to understand "ceiling prices." The stand prices of one store may be lower than those of another—on the same items. Buy where ceiling prices are lowest.

Tip No. 4— Always read the labels, directions and recipes on cans and packages. The producer knows more about his product than anyone else, and this information can be valuable in suggesting many ways to save.

Tip No. 5— Switch more of your food purchases to fresh fruits and vegetables and other fresh goods. Doing this will save more canned and packaged foods for the armed forces.

COFFEE AT ITS BEST MUST BE EXTRA FRESH
