Currin's

I WAS greeted with "Do you want to see something really cute?" when I went into Currin's the other day . . . And Vance Vaupel led me back to the cosmetics department and showed me a round box that actually is darling.

But what interested me the most was that it's something entirely new, and lives up to what the manufacturers say of it.

It's Tussy Powder deLuxe, in "Remember Me" fragrance . . . A really wonderfully fine face powder that, I found, goes on amazingly smoothly and clings for hours.

Besides, to introduce it, there's a bargain involved . . . This big box will sell for $1.50, but it'll be only $1.00 while this "introductory shipment" lasts.

You may have used some of the colognes, bath powder, bath essence, perfumes, etc., in Tussy "Remember Me" fragrance.

because it's one of the most popular of the Tussy fragrances . . . But this is the first time Tussy has come out with a face powder perfumed with "Remember Me."

There are lots of shades to choose from . . . And I know you'll appreciate the powder puff inside the box.

As I mentioned before, you can get this sheer-textured, fine clinging face powder at Currin's . . . Because, after all, the Tussy line is sold exclusively at Currin's in the Klamath area.

Weather such as we've been having recently brings people downtown, in spite of gas rationing . . . I couldn't resist it, either.

Big Basin Lbr.

THE ceiling at Big Basin Lumber company tells a story all its own . . . And it's such a wonderful example of what is on our minds right now that I'm going to go into detail.

If you've ever been in the offices or the paint department and have happened to cast your eyes upward, you may have noticed that part of the ceiling is dirty . . . In spite of a couple of redecoration treatments.

I had to wait for Ralph Howard, the manager, to get through with someone else the other day, and so I noticed the 10 feet or so of dirty ceiling . . . Being myself, I had to ask about it!

He told me that, when they were building several years ago, they started putting insulation on the ceiling nearest the underpass first, and when they were about 10 feet from the end of the job, they ran out of insulation . . . So they decided to wait for the next carload, but forgot all about it until that 10 feet began to get dirty.

The dirt all comes from inside, of course . . . And shows better than a movie one of the reasons why insulation is needed badly now, to conserve fuel.

Ralph Howard said that the hot air went right through the ceiling there, where there wasn't any insulation, and left the dirt behind to show up.

Another place where the same thing happened is high on the wall . . . On the wall nearest the underpass, above the windows, they decided to put in insulation because it was a north wall and they thought they'd need extra protection there . . . The corner is rounded, you know . . . And you can see where the insulation stops and plain wall begins, because that's where the wall starts being dirty.

Incidentally, if you read the newspaper story Tuesday in which Nick Long, OPA field coordinator, told how to conserve fuel and to make your house comfortable with less fuel oil, you remember that he recommended insulation.

Well, insulation isn't terribly expensive . . . And after the war you'll still be saving fuel . . . Ralph Howard said that Johns Manville Rockwool batts can be put in the ceiling of an ordinary 5-room house for about $100, installed . . . And if you lay the Rockwool batts yourself, you save that charge.

I wonder what our service men overseas think when they hear about the big dog vs. Victory garden fight going on in Klamath Falls? . . . Probably something fond, like "Isn't that just like that darn old town!"

Moe's Millinery

LACK hats are the biggest sellers right now. Anne Lander told me at Moe's Millinery department yesterday . . . Which is usual . . . And dark blue is running a closer second than usual . . . But bright red hats are so popular that, she said, there must be a reason.

If you ask me, I'd say that red brightens up a costume and gives a lift to the spirits . . . Your own spirits and those of the people who see you . . . Which is what we like right now.

An unusual style this Spring, and for Summer, too, is the use of feathers. Anne Lander told me, adding that feathers used to be in vogue only during the other seasons . . . But feathers are perky and cocky, or soft and feminine . . . And there you are again.

Moe's, as you probably know, carries all kinds of hats . . . From inexpensive ones up to $15 . . . Including Gage, Beth and Shorlorn hats.

The Town Shop

EVERY year something clever and work-saving comes out in clothes . . . And this year it's a Trikskirt which, I think, is one of the cleverest yet . . . I found these Trikskirts at The Town Shop.

A Trikskirt is made up of 20 tuck-gores . . . There's a wealth of pleats and they stay in . . . Not only that, the skirt will replace in your bureau drawer, traveling case or on the hanger . . . You don't have to press the skirt between wearings, partly because of the "trik" way it's made and partly because of the strutter cloth . . . Which, as you probably know, is crease resistant . . . And it's washable.

The skirt is so trickily made that it's amazingly slenderizing . . . And you'll find all different colors in the selection.

The Trikskirt with a drawstring is $4.98 and the one with a fitted waistband is $5.95.

Incidentally, the Trikskirt has a row of buttons that can be worn up the side, the front or the back.

Speaking of skirts . . . The Town Shop has a wonderful selection of blouses of all kinds . . . Short and long sleeved . . . White, plain colors, stripes, checks, prints . . . Including big floral designs . . . And the prices run from $1.29 to $4.98.

At The Town Shop.

Whytal's

THERE'S a Victory Garden page in the Herald and News today . . . And, knowing it was coming up, I decided to look around and see where you could buy gardening clothes.

Well, I found Victory Garden denims at Whytal's . . . The kind you can put through the washing machine and iron easily.

There's a 2-piece denim slack suit, with an outside shirt that has short sleeves . . . And it costs $3.50.

Then there are Victory Garden denim slacks . . . They cost $1.95 and $2.50 . . . The latter are heavier and have more details which are attractive but not absolutely necessary for garden work.

Separate jackets, to wear over the 2-piece suits or with any old gardening clothes, cost $3.50.

And here's a tip . . . Denims are very scarce because there is so much demand from women war workers . . . Manufacturers have many more orders than they can fill and shipments to retail stores are months late . . . So you'd better not put off buying your Victory Garden denims . . . Just dash down to Whytal's and get what you want NOW.

NICE-OR IS IT?

BETHANY, Mo. (P) — To make money, trot from bank to postoffice, writes Sgt. Lewis Israel from Casablanca.

American postoffices there valued francs at 50 for a dollar. Banks still sold them 75 for a dollar.

Soldiers, Israel explained, could buy a dollar's worth at the bank, trade them for a $1.50 money order at the postoffice and mail it home.

Of course, he added, that didn't leave anything to spend.

Bly

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Tyler of San Francisco and young son visited the past weekend with Mrs. Tyler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Boss Richardson.

The modern slaughter house owned by the Sycan store, that was formerly located west of Beatty, is being moved and reconstructed on property owned by Sycan, just outside of Bly. When completed this slaughter house will be one of the best in the county. Among other herds of beef that are being butchered at this plant is the beef raised the past year by Bill Maust at his Crooked Creek ranch in Lake county.

With the approach of spring, cattle growers of this district are taking advantage of the good days to dehorn their calves. Two bunches were dehorned at the Griffin ranch the first of the week, those belonging to the Owens ranch and the Griffin calves.

COUGAR HUNTED AT NEW PINE CREEK

NEW PINE CREEK, March 11

Last week Mrs. Bonnie Tuxhorn and her son Sammy were up the canyon not far from Mrs. Anna Schroeder's stone dwelling and not far from where her husband and Henry Cook were cutting wood. Walking along the old Hog Back trail she heard the hair-raising cry of a cougar. She turned quickly and grabbed her young son by the arm.

"We're going back," she said, "that's a cougar!" The animal from up on the hillside, hidden not over a hundred yards away let out another horror-striking scream.

This incident aroused local hunters and within a few days the canyon sides were scouted in search of the animal. Delbert Cloud, local rancher, was lucky enough to get one shot at it, but missed. Mrs. Tuxhorn and Mrs. Gentry found tracks the next day where the cougar had come down and followed her and her son a ways out of the timber. Mr. E. A. Stinson, who runs goats in the canyon found evidence where the cougar had killed several goats.

GOVERNMENT WOOL BUYING EXPECTED

WASHINGTON, March 11 (P) Formal announcement of a federal wool purchase program is expected within a week, a government official said today.

However, Ray Willoughby of San Angelo, Tex., here with other representatives of sheep growing states, said he thinks "it will take at least a week or ten days. There are quite a number of points we still want to iron out."

An official of the commodity credit corporation which will handle the program, who asked that his name not be used, stated the contract form has been set up in what may be its final form, adding it must yet be approved by representatives of growers and dealers. He said only minor changes are expected to be asked by either group.

The official said the program probably will cause no change in the current market levels in the fiber, but will assure growers of a market for the duration of the war and for a period following the end of the conflict.

The growers have urged that the post-war period be fixed at two years. This is considered important because of a possible slump in demands should the war terminate suddenly.
