FRENCH LICK, Ind.—Since seven mile hikes have constituted most of the Chicago White Sox drills to date, a rattle of bats merely brings "What are those things for?" Phillies Get Director to Give Works

Every Baseball Club Has Trainer, But Only Phils Have Director

By JUDSON BAILEY HERSHEY, Penn., March 24 (AP)—Every club in baseball, large or small has a trainer, but only the Philadelphia Phillies have a physical director.

He is Harold Anson Bruce, internationally known track and field coach, who was appointed by Owner Bill Cox to give the faltering Phils a taste of "commando training" this spring and to keep them in condition after the season gets under way.

Commando training is a catch word contributed to baseball terminology by Cox and what the Phillies' physical director really is giving them is an adaptation of the usual program of exercises given runners, jumpers, et al.

"There is nothing new under the sun," explained Bruce today. "What we are using is a combination of the American, Swedish, Del Sar, German and other systems of calisthenics, some of which date back to Egyptian days.

"The boys joke about it and act like it doesn't mean anything but they are cooperating wonderfully. Down inside they are like any other athletes. They want to try anything that will make them better."

Basketball Ace Looks Like Best Beaver Pitcher

CORVALLIS, March 24 (AP)—Don Cecil, Oregon State college basketball ace, appears to be one of the best pitching prospects for the 1943 Beaver baseball team.

Coach Ralph Coleman lost his entire 1942 mound staff through graduation.

Andy Fahler of last year's rook team is also a mound hopeful.

Cecil gained experience hurling in southern California leagues.

says Lieut. Herb Fleishacker, Jr., 230-pound Stanford quarter-back in 1927-28-29.

"We boys here in Alaska are selfish. We would like to get some of those football results up here to build arguments for the long nights. To quit college football would be a mistake."

He said, however, that he thought splitting the Pacific coast conference and making the play on a home-and-home basis "would be a good idea, travel restrictions being what they are."

Speaking of the sectional division, he said: "I am curious to find out what the results of home-and-home games will be. It will settle a cracker barrel full of Monday morning arguments and eliminate a lot of paper quarterbacks."

"Then, if the northern winners play the southern champions, the outcome will come closer than ever to deciding the real champs."

Fleishacker, whose home is at San Mateo, Calif., volunteered as an aviation specialist and has been in the navy since February 5, 1942.

On one side of him, naturally, will be Charley Keller in left field, and when King Kong and the front office get together on terms. But right field, where the departed Roy Cullenbine roamed the latter part of last year, is so wide open the boys wouldn't be surprised if three of the Marx brothers are assigned to the job as a team.

Alameda Hoopers Defeat Glencoe In Tournament

PORTLAND, March 24 (AP)—The Alameda basketball team of Portland defeated Glencoe, 31-22, last night to enter the finals of the goldenball tournament lightweight division.

In semi-final games tonight the Jefferson Juniors will meet the Jefferson Hi-Y's and Vancouver will play Russellville.
