year ago. He serves as a bombardier with the American forces. Following is the letter to Mrs. Harbin:

"Happy Valentine day. I am in North Africa sitting in the shade of my plane trying to shoo away the flies and write at the same time. We have been here long enough to see different types of towns and peoples. Everything you may have heard about North Africa is true. At home we pay money to see this stuff in the movies.

"We have not arrived at our destination as yet. We are living in a hotel but we do not have all the accommodations American hotels have. We have a lot of language difficulties naturally. Chewing gum and cigarettes will buy more than money here. I have picked up a few souvenirs and have taken several rolls of film. We brought everything we needed with us.

"We have named our plane 'Wonder Bird' cause we are always wondering what it is going to do next. It is a very good plane however and our crew has kept it in fine shape. Our crossing of the ocean was quite uneventful. Civilization hasn't changed some things here.

"I don't know much about the future but the rumors are good."
