Klamath People Make Good Correspondents As Notes Reach Friends and Families

Whenever the girls get together these days the general topic is news from those many Klamathites who have left our town during the past year. Most of them remain faithful correspondents and practically all plan to return at the end of this general unpleasantness.

From Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Yarnes comes word that they are leaving Portland this week with their two children and their future address will be The Dalles. Raymond has been named assistant manager of the First National branch there.

Blue paper note from Virginia LeMire who is still in Portland, and has accepted a position at Sherman Clay company for the time being. Her plans are still quite indefinite and she may go to San Francisco as she originally thought. Clem LeMire is doing First National and Kaiser all in the same day. They report the housing in Portland is—well, all that it's supposed to be.

Friends will be greeting Mary Van Vactor and son Robert, one of these days, according to word from Soap Lake, Washington, five miles from Ephrata where Captain Van Vactor is reported in charge of a squadron. From the looks of things "Van" will soon see foreign service. They moved several weeks ago from Salt Lake City.

Auxiliary Grace Rhoades, now at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, has certainly changed jobs in a big way this last year. Miz Rhoades, as chubby Riverside first graders called her, is now detailed to driving one of the post's big trucks to deliver supplies to the largest mess hall at the camp. Her address is 28 Post Headquarters company, Army Post Branch, Des Moines, Iowa.

Percy Margaret Gill, that attractive Red Cross worker from Camp White, who spoke to the garden clubbers here last week, broke out with an elegant case of measles a few hours after she gave her talk. We sat next to her at lunch at the Pelican and she seemed in fine fettle. The next morning she drove home, measles and all. Miss Gill and Mrs. Mabelle Hargrove, also of Camp White, were guests at the Horace Getz home. Everybody else has had the "mizles" it seems, so no one is worried.

There's lots of "v" mail these days. All most welcome. From Corporal Don Rogers, somewhere in England with one of our bombing squadrons, comes a letter to friends telling them of the fine treatment our boys get from the English people. "They are helping us by explaining the difference in the money system and I've already forgotten what a dollar is," says Don. He goes on to observe that "this war is a lesson in economy as well as a mission of war." Well put, we'd say. Driving through Klamath Falls Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Williston of Portland, who are moving to San Carlos where he has work to do with an air line. They visited briefly with the Joseph Peaks. Mr. Williston has just flown home from Washington D. C., where he had a good visit with Lieutenant Robert A. Thompson.

Incidentally, this isn't news from away from home, but we'll be getting cards from Mrs. Robert Thompson and small Robert, who will be looking at the cherry trees in Washington pretty soon. They plan to leave within a short time for a visit with Bob. And properly thrilled over the trip, too.

A number of Klamath folks gathered at the Ted Gillenwaters home in Washington recently when the former residents gave a cocktail party. Bet all the boys and girls from this side of Lost River gathered in a corner.

Another piece of Washington mail. From the Lowell Stockmans telling of the recovery of their nice little daughter, Margery, who really gave them a scare in one of the capitol's hospitals recently.

First Lieutenant F. W. Peak, now at La Junta, Colorado, writes in a familiar strain to wife and daughter that housing conditions at that air base are terrific. Omega and Susan plan to leave next week for an indefinite stay with her mother, Mrs. Lee B. McBee in Portland, and may return here for a time later in the spring. Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Swartz are moving from North Third street to the Peak home on Lawrence street. Dr. Peak is with the U. S. air force, medical detachment, dental corps.

Mrs. Grant Hess and daughter Marcell, of Portland, arrived this weekend to spend one week in Klamath Falls as the guests of Mrs. James Johnston of North Eleventh street. Mrs. Hess is the former Frances West of this city, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter West, now of Los Angeles.
