REPUBLICANS QUERY SOLDIER POLITICS

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Republicans raised the question in the house today whether the war department's ban against soldiers seeking or accepting political office was a violation of the constitution, a move to bar Gen. Douglas MacArthur as a presidential candidate, and a contribution toward a fourth term for President Roosevelt.

The order, disclosed yesterday, was issued at the direction of Secretary Stimson.

Rep. Kearney (R-N.Y.) told the house this "disfranchised" American men and women who are fighting to save America, and Rep. Bennett (R-Mo.) commented that it "eliminates MacArthur," while, he said, the office of war information is seeking to build up the prestige of Mr. Roosevelt.

Grass Range to Gas Range

For more than half a century, grass-fed cattle and feeders from the Northwest's vast range country have helped maintain the nation's meat supply.

During all these years, Great Northern Railway, which taps the heart of the nation's livestock producing area, has been transporting "sirloin on-the-hoof" to packers and feeders of America.

Hand in hand, the Northwest's livestock industry, Uncle Sam and the Great Northern have worked on major projects—improved breeding, range conservation, expansion of feeding operations within the range country. That same teamwork now is being applied to the job of keeping our armed forces, allies and civilians the best fed in the world.

This story of the Northwest's importance to the nation's war effort has been presented to thousands of American industrial executives through TRAFFIC WORLD magazine.

HIGHWAY MEN SUPPORT OLD TITLE DECISION

PORTLAND, April 7 (AP)—Oregon's new highway commissioners today supported a recent decision of the old commission against turning over to a southern Oregon county title to ground on which the CAA plans an $850,000 airport.

The county sought ownership of the state-owned property so it might gain control of the airport for commercial use after the war.

The old highway board decided to maintain possession of the site although it agreed the county could be a co-sponsor of the CAA project. Lane W. Wilcox, Seattle, regional director of airports for the CAA, subsequently advised J. M. Devers, highway commission attorney, that this arrangement could not be worked out because of a legal technicality. He urged the commission to deed the land to the county.

But today, acting upon the advice of Devers that there is no real barrier to the joint sponsorship, the board stayed by the former decision and asked Devers to try and work out an agreement.

The commission's interest in aviation has been accentuated by the development of flight strips near state primary highways which are expected to come into heavy use by private and commercial flyers after the war.
