

Klamath Gardener Needs Patience!

Few Warm Days in This Country Often Entice Too Early Planting of Vegetables

By MARGARET LAMB
This week the question has been asked several times, "What have you planted?" Personally, I have to say, "Nothing." But the soil in my garden is very sticky and I never think it wise to plant too early. Many have peas, carrots, lettuce, onion sets and seeds, too, spinach, mustard and other hardy things. This is a good idea. If we have a spell of bad weather and these things are lost they can be replanted and even with seeds none too plentiful the loss is small, and if they do grow perhaps the early planters will have a little edge on those who wait later.

There is lots to be done even though it is not in the V-garden proper. The little seedlings are probably about ready to transplant into flats or bands.

They can take quite a bit of nursing now and be the better for it later. If they have been raised in the house they need sun and should be carried out into a warm spot for several hours during the day. This helps harden them and at the same time gives them the advantage of the ultra-violet rays that are shut out of the rays of the sun by ordinary window glass.

We can plan to have a few flowers with our V-garden, too. We have so much space in this country of ours that it would seem that we might have some blossoms along with the vegetables. A row of petunias, the low kind, can be planted in front of the rows of vegetables and if you live in town and are planning to use parts of your borders for vegetables it is interesting to plan color schemes of the various vegetables. Any of you who remember the plantings at the fair in San Francisco know how colorful the red cabbage and red chard were in the plantings at the entrance. We too can produce these vegetables and many other combinations. White petunias in front of the green of cabbage would be lovely as well as at least partly useful.

Since there is practically no nitrogenous fertilizer left, we have to think what we are going to do with our lawns to take care of the emergency. There still seems to be plenty of some meal, and although this is slow to act, it is pretty good fertilizer in the long run. A good thing to do, if you did not put it on last fall, is to start in now and sprinkle it on every three or four weeks until after the watering season is over in the fall. This will build up for next year.

One last warning to first year gardeners is to work your soil well if it has been spaded and see that it is practically pulverized. Work in the fertilizer well, and don't waste seeds, and the work of thinning by planting too thick.

Wallace Charles Moss and Helen Elizabeth Strawn, both of Klamath Falls, were united in marriage here on Thursday evening, April first, at eight o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend Victor Phillips, of the First Methodist church at his home, 1005 High street. The couple was attended by Edna Culley and W. R. Culley. The double ring ceremony was used.

IN care of the skin there is one requisite of beauty that all must observe and which all can afford. "Cleanliness is next to godliness" — so don't spare the soap and water. A daily bath in summer, taken before dining or retiring, will do wonders for your morale. Cleanliness and charm go hand in hand.

Perfumed water softeners and bubble baths are additional aids. Then colognes and bath powders may well follow a rub with as rough a towel as the skin will stand. Cologne should be sprayed on the skin, not the clothing, for it may have a chemical reaction with the dye in cloth.

IN selecting your cleansing cream and skin freshener, be sure you get the right kind. There is a special cleansing preparation for each type of skin. Yours might be an oily type, dry; or, a combination of the two.

Cleansing creams are especially important for young, adolescent skins. And again, special care should be taken in selecting the proper type for YOU.

WE all must keep on the job these days. If you look well, you will feel well. Cosmetics build morale. —RITA.

"Soldiers of Service"

In wartime, America turns to its telephones. The daily volume of calling is the greatest we have ever handled.

The men and women of our company want to see these calls go through with the greatest satisfaction to everyone. Especially do they want to give the fastest possible service to those who need speed to help win the war.

Since more switchboards and other telephone equipment are not being made due to military demands upon materials, the co-operation of our patrons is deeply appreciated.

War-busy centers should be called by Long Distance only when absolutely necessary.

The "Soldiers of Service" at the telephone switchboards, on poles, trucks, at desks or wherever duty finds them, will continue to do their level best to see that you get friendly, courteous and efficient service.
