Today's Roundup By MALCOLM EPLEY

question remains, if any ever existed, as to whether Klamath county will make its $1,269,000 war finance quota. The latest an-nounced total is about $100,-

000 short of the quota which must be raised by May 1. The final $100,000 will be squeezed out before April 30. A helpful factor will be the union labor sports smoker to be staged at the armory the evening of April 30, Purchases of E bonds made now will apply on admission to that event.

E bonds, only, will count on the $500,000 subchaser EPLEY campaign held in March and April by union labor. The sports smoker comes at a time when there is a need for a final spurt of E bond Incidentally, anyone who attended the recent high school sports smoker will not need to be 'sold" on the April 30 event. The high school affair was one of the best wrestling and boxing programs ever held here, not excepting the professional cards. Frank Ramsey is lining up similar card for the April 30 smoker, along with some added attractions. It ought to be a

THE fact there are two quotas for war savings running at one time in this county has been somewhat confusing.

Organized labor, it will be remembered, ac-

But the new campaign did not eliminate the union labor effort to put over enough E bond sales to get the sub-chaser, and that is the drive which should receive particular emphasis in these few remaining days of the month.

At the high school manual training depart ment, a myrtlewood plaque is being prepared for mounting on the sub-chaser which Klamath's E bonds will buy.

We want to be sure that plaque is used. A final spurt of E bond buying will do it.

Tick Shot Time

RED FLEET some years ago wrote an official song for the Order of the Antelope, parody on Home on the Range, which included the following lines:

Home, Home on the Range, Oh, 'tis not as the poet has sung. Where the sage tick holds sway And the rattlesnakes play

With the horse thieves that ought to be hung. That line about the sage tick offers the theme for this piece. Ticks are out, and you can get 'em without going into the woods or on the range. We know of two instances of the last week where they were picked up here While ticks in the vicinity of Klamath Falls are not believed to carry the dreaded spotted fever infection, there is always danger that they might, and even an uninfected one is hardly a delightful visitor upon one's person. Hence, it is the time to be on the lookout for ticks, and a hunt for them is advisable after a day in the open, or even a few hours in the garden. If one does go into the open country, particularly the area east of here, the immunizing tick shots are the thing. Every year there are reported cases of spotted fever in the northwest. The sure-fire method of preventing the disease is the tick shot.

Devaluation Powers

TREASURY SECRETARY MORGENTHAU was snared into losing the president's devaluation powers. He is never at ease before congressional committees, but was never more fidgety than when Senators Danaher and Taft went after him in the senate banking commit

At one point, Morgenthau urged Taft not to make statements disquieting to dollar valuation "in the middle of a bond drive." Taft replied the bond drive could get no better advertising than for Mr. Morgenthau to drop his request for continuance of the president's devaluation powers.

Democratic Chairman Wagner and Senator Maloney became worried about the press publishing such testimony and feared its possible effect on bond buying. Both Wagner and Morgenthau consulted newsmen and urged that much of the testimony be kept off the record.

The committee tried, in executive session, to find some way to keep the whole story out of the papers, but in the end, Mr. Morgenthau agreed to drop the devaluation powers and thus congress, for what I believe is the first time in the history of the new deal, has taken back an important grant of authority from Mr

Frankly, the apprehensions over letting the public in on this debate seemed unnecessarily high-strung. With advancing prices effecting a real devaluation of the dollar in every grocery store in the land for the past two years, an argument over executive fidgeting with 20 per cent of the gold backing, sounded purely academic. The president failed to change prices by such gold action before.

The White House probably whispered to Morgenthau to let the devaluation power go, and no tears were apparent anywhere.

Judicial Soapboxers

THE supreme court shows some aspects of a soap-box debating society. New deal justices hold such strongly individual opinions that they are falling into the habit of writing minority or separate personal decisions, differing only in some minor legal phases. Old-hands generally keep such views to themselves, let the matte
