Today's Roundup

THIS is war, and one campaign follows quick-ly on another, on the home front as else-

The April war finance drive is over, as is the sub-chaser campaign of union labor. Both efforts were successful, but we can waste no great amount of time talking about them, for new jobs Now, the Lions club takes over the war savings program.

No pikers, the brave Lions have set their goal for $350,-000, or enough to buy a Flying Fortress for Uncle Sam's EPLEY fighting forces. That is the amount of bonds the Lions expect to sell here

Gene Hooker, Lion president, is what is known as an organizing expert, and he has the service club in shape for a hard campaign. You'll be hearing plenty from that outfit.

Meanwhile, other campaigns come to life. Walt Wiesendanger is starting the month off with a Stop Forest Fires program, to be climaxed by a public dinner Friday evening addressed by Regional Forester Horace J. Andrews. John Ebinger and his group are vigorously pressing a fund drive for Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire organizations.

These are only three community efforts re-ceiving special attention at the moment. There are others going on continuously, such as civilian defense and Red Cross work, Because all of these undertakings are deserving, and most of them are definitely related to the war effort, it is vitally important that all of them click. To make them do so, there must be an expanding corps of workers contributing time and effort to them, at the same time they receive general public support.

This is no period for shirking. We who are still here at home, free to go and come as we please, free from rigorous training or the actual dangers of combat, are still giving little when we give all we can to these home front

A letter comes from Dr. Peter Rozendal, county health officer now taking special work with the U. S. public health service at Hot Springs, Ark., famed health resort. "Doc" says the course is really enlightening, but as for the resort, he isn't at all sure it has anything on Klamath Falls, Ore. As for the baths, he points out, we have plenty of hot wells here, and a local conditioning agency can handle the

The War Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says that one of the things which impressed him on his twenty-state tour was the benefit in physical condition and mental alertness that men and women in service and war-workers uniforms have realized.

He thinks the camps and industrial plants ought to be put to good use after the war, possibly by requiring the youth of America to give a year's service to the country. He has no specific program and expresses the view that any developed probably would be only partly

A lot of people, especially parents of boys under military age, have been doing a deal of thinking along that line lately. They're interested in the physical and mental training, and the character building, but it cuts deeper than

Despite the fact that their children may not be called for duty in the present conflict, these parents have reached the conclusion that don't want their lads to have to go into some future war without thorough training Of course, the hope is that there won't be any further wars, but if the present conflagration has taught us anything it is that security depends on preparedness.

Preparedness

PREPAREDNESS of the individual means security not only for him but for his country. Green troops which go into battle will suffer terrible casualties until they've learned the tricks of war in the hard and bloody way. And while they are learning, they may have lost the war to experienced forces.

The well-trained, well-armed man is the one who will live the longest. The well-trained, well-armed army is the one which will render the best defense of its country.

Having reached this conclusion, many parents are figuring on sending their young hopefuls to military academies as soon as they reach the age for preparatory schooling. With this education a young man would come up to his compulsory military service with a good back-

Think that's too hard-boiled? Well, it doesn't represent the ruminating of an arm-chair bachelor, for I have a small boy of my own, and I've seen plenty of war at first hand. I hate the bloody business but believe the commonsense way is to be prepared for it,

Telling The Editor

MALIN, Ore., (To the Editor) Perhaps I can say one more use-California reclamation project, using as a text some quotations from your valuable editorial exposition of April 27.

Under the sub-head "Acreage Figures" you say: "the remaining 24,000 acres, presumably, is the land involved in the discussion of permanent cultivation under private ownership."

I should say that the land properly involved in this discus-sion is that 24,000 acres plus the area of 7500 acres which you list as "certain to be opened" (certain when the reclamation bu-reau decides to open it) and the 7000 acres you list as "likely to be opened" (likely if and when the bureau so decides), a total of 38,500 acres.

To aid in estimating the value to his community of the open-ing of such an area let it be com-pared with the productive (pay-ing) area of the Klamath Irrigadistrict, about 35,500 acres and the present permanent development on the California side, of 31,000 acres.

estimate of population made. Also, as it can be homesteaded, les-the whole remaining public area in one comprehensive plan sponsored and supported by the community is that nothing adds so much to construction costs as dragged-out construction. It is done on this project to bring it to early and final completion.
