From Eugene—Mrs. E. M. Igl returned home Monday morning after spending Junior weekend at the University of Oregon with her son, Dick. She also attended the banquet Sunday evening given by Catholic Daughters of America. Mrs. Andrew M. Collier returned Sunday from Eugene where she was the guest of her daughter, Phyllis. Both reported beautiful weather for the weekend festivities. Mrs. Collier, president of Oregon Mothers club in Klamath Falls, attended an Oregon Mothers meeting on the campus as did Mrs. Igl.

To East Coast—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lowell of 2121 Halley street, left Monday morning for Richmond, Va., where they will visit their son, Frank Lowell, now stationed at Williamsburg, Va., with the Seabees. Mrs. Frank Lowell is living in Richmond while her husband is stationed on the east coast. The Lowells plan to be gone for at least one month.

Gets Wings—Lewis H. Richardson, formerly of the local Sears & Roebuck store, was given his wings in the United States army air corps at graduation services held April 22 at Aloe field, Victoria, Texas. Young Richardson is well known here where he made his home for several years. He is a nephew of Mrs. Harold Franey of Klamath Falls.

To Sprague River—Billy Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis of Sprague River, returned to his home late Saturday after receiving medical treatment at Klamath Valley hospital. The high school student suffered painful injury to his hand when it was caught in a saw at the school shop.

From Freewater—Rev. and Mrs. Nelson E. Cole are guests at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Soule, 1945 Main street. They arrived Saturday night to attend the 15th anniversary of the founding of the Congregational Community church. Rev. Cole was the pastor at the time of its organization.

Visits—Mrs. R. W. Lawrence (Patricia Preston) of Portland is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Mitchell, 817 East Main street, for a few days. She is enjoying a visit with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. T. Davis Preston, here from Souquel, Calif.

Fire Reported—The city fire department was called out at 11:42 p. m. Sunday when a blaze was reported at Shipping in the mill. The fire was out when the trucks arrived, firemen said. Trouble came from a small blaze in the boiler room.

Return From Coast—Harry Heathman and Archie Huff, the latter a member of the police department, returned this weekend from a several days' fishing trip at Gold Beach. Huff reported a catch of 12 salmon, some of which they had canned there.

In Hospital—Friends of Mrs. Joseph C. O'Neill of Monclair street will be happy to learn she is doing nicely following an operation for the removal of her appendix at Hillside hospital. Members of the family said Mrs. O'Neill was permitted visitors.

Plates Stolen—City police were advised by Fred Ward, 1022 Owens street, that his license plates were stolen during the past several nights, one at one time, one at another. The plates are Oregon 38-849.

From Dunsmuir—Mrs. P. F. Livingston of Dunsmuir is here this week while her husband works from this point with the Southern Pacific. Their son, Paul, is now overseas with the SEABEES.

From Eugene—Mr. and Mrs. Ross Carter and small son, Nick Chandler, of Eugene, were in Klamath Falls over the weekend visiting Carter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Carter.

In Malin—C. C. Jenkins, 4-H club agent, and Winnifred Gillen, Klamath county home demonstration agent, spent Monday in Malin where they attended the 4-H club fair.

From Bonanza—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rueck, well known Bonanza residents, were business visitors in Klamath Falls Monday.

In San Francisco—Ed Ostendorf, OPA district manager, is in San Francisco on business.

PARTHRETH, a pleasant alkaline compound, holds false teeth more firmly. To eat and talk in more comfort, just sprinkle a little PARTHRETH on your plates. No gummy, sticky, pasty taste or feeling. Check "plate odor" (denture breath). Get PARTHRETH at any drug store.

Resumes Work—Mrs. Ralph R. Macartney Sr., who is chairman of the surgical dressings project in Klamath county, resumed her work Monday following a 10-day illness when she was confined to her home on Washington street. Mrs. Macartney reports an excellent response from the recently opened Altamont work rooms. All women in the city are urged to give several hours each week to this worthwhile project. There are both day and night classes.

Visit Here—Lt. Donald Blahley, accompanied by a friend who is also stationed at the Chico, Calif., air base, flew into Klamath Falls Sunday and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Marander of Stewart addition. Blahley is formerly from Klamath Falls and was employed as bookkeeper for Kalpine Plywood company before entering the service. He is instructing at Chico.

Return Here—Unable to get reservations from Gerber to Mobile, Ala., Mrs. Kenneth Clark of this city and Mrs. Mrs. Rod Darnell of Juneau, Alaska, returned here this weekend. The Darnells will continue north and plan to sail for home from Seattle on May 10. Their original plans were to visit a sister in Mobile, returning here within a fortnight.

Expected Here—Rollo F. England, US navy, is expected here Wednesday from Lakehurst, N. J., according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. England, 2746 Kane street. Young England, former Herald and News employe, received his rating as aerographer in the navy just before he was given his leave.

In New Zealand—Charles A. Franey, 24, youngest brother of Harold and Jack Franey of this city, writes home that he is now in Wellington, New Zealand, and that it is "a swell country with swell people." American boys find it much like home, they report. Franey is hospital attendant, first class, US navy.

Returns Home—Mrs. C. A. Williams and infant daughter, Susan, have returned to their home on California avenue from Klamath Valley hospital.

OUT OF THE WOODS

Keep It Green for Buddy... It will be a black homecoming for Buddy Lane, if he shoots his way safely into the time when he tramps through Tokyo and can call it a war. His folks are yet together and in good health, and his girl is true-blue and doesn't have it in her to show any other color. And there will be a logging truck for him to wheel down the mountain side, so long as his old company has logs to get out and a place to peddle them. But there is one thing that will get Buddy Lane downhearted to see.

The thing is a vast black scar on the hills west of the Lane homestead. There is frequent mention of those hills in Buddy's letters to his mother and father. They were the place of his first adventures and his first work. There was a spring, a creek, a cave, big stumps, windfalls and other down timber left in logging—a world of stuff in the great outdoors for boys to play with. And there was grazing for the Lane cows. That was Buddy's first work—rounding up the cows at milking time. Then, wood cutting.

Mark Lane, Buddy's father, was from Michigan. He was one of the few among the two hundred farmers of the valley who did not burn the logged uplands each year. Mark held that in the long run such burning would not improve grazing, but ruin it. He'd learned that by experience in Michigan, he said. Anyhow, he wanted woods on the Lane hills. The land was thick with fir seedlings when Buddy was a five-year-old.

"The trees and the kid will grow up together," Mark Lane would say. "We'll keep the hills green for Buddy."

Green Trees in the Sunset... And so they were kept. Greener grew the hills of home for Buddy Lane year after year. He saw the ferns and other ground cover slowly crowded out by the wonderful growing force of the Douglas firs. When he was ten or so the trees were tall and thick enough to screen most of the windfalls and old logging debris on the hillsides. When he started to ride the bus for his first year at high school in town, he could look back and see, under the morning sun, only a rough green blanket on the hills yonder, with hardly a stump showing through. And that green would be his first sight in the evening as the school bus rounded the turn that brought the Lane farm in sight.

It is such times Buddy remembers when he mentions the hills in his letters. The look of them on leaving, and on the return. He remembers the soft light of Indian summers on the hills, the long shadows at sunset time, the warm glow in the green of the young trees—the glow deepening into red and gold as the sun would slip behind the rim of the hills. Soft shadows on the home, then, with wood smoke weaving through them, smoke that signified supper cooking for a boy with the appetite of a cub bear.

Green trees in the sunset—that's the sort of thing Buddy Lane remembers as he broils, sweats and fights in the New Guinea jungle.

Sentimental stuff? Well, yes. But that's how it is with most of our soldiers. It's the stuff of the
