Dig Shrapnel From U. S. Ship After Aleutian Battle

Using hunting knives and chisels, seamen aboard one of the U. S. vessels which took part in the hard-fought sea battle off Komandorskies, west of the Aleutians, dug shrapnel from the craft's deck. Account of the fight, released by the navy, told of a U. S. light naval force repelling a Japanese supply expedition with but slight damage to the American forces. U. S. navy photo.

COPCO OPPOSES FEDERAL RULING

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13 (P)—The federal circuit court of appeal was asked yesterday by the California - Oregon Power company to set aside parts of federal power commission rulings which tend to bring about lower consumer rates.

One PFC order requires that "the company credit to surplus an item of $836,237 which the company contends is a cost item."

Another ruling directs the company to pay off within a 10 year period an account of $828,684 for "electric plant acquisition adjustment."

Gold Shoulder Bar Saves Bomber From Crash Landing

By EUGENE BURNS

WITH THE ELEVENTH AIR FORCE IN ALASKA, May 2 (Delayed)—(P)—How a quick-witted engineer used a second lieutenant's gold bar to save a four-engine bomber with a 10-man crew was told today by a member of that crew—First Lt. James A. Ryan, 29, navigator, of Bakersfield, Calif., and formerly of Mooseheart, Ill.

The plane—old 1091—had gone to Attu on a reconnaissance mission. While returning the gasoline tanks in the bomb bay would not drain into the main tanks because the electrical pump refused to function. Fuses kept blowing out due to an unexplained short circuit.

"Finally the last fuse flashed out and there we were with 900 gallons of gasoline and not one drop for our motors," said Ryan. "We had just enough left to take us within five miles of an island. 'Radioman Ream (James W. Springfield, Mo.), sent a message saying that we would have to make a crash water landing."

"I overheard Gunner Lorenz (Roland C. 24, of Cleveland, O.), ask the photographer (Capt. Bergert G. Speers, 39, of Mayfield, Ky.), if he was afraid. 'Your damn tooting I'm scared,' said Speers.

"Because of electrical trouble our bombs would not release so to make the plane lighter for a possible crash. Gunner Lane (Bernard D. 22, of Vincennes, Ind.), and Seltzer (Charles H. 21, of Cumberland, Md.), manually lifted the 300-pounders and dropped them into the deep.

"Meanwhile all of us put on our Mae Wests (life jackets) and
