through the Eder dam breach, which was reported to be 180 feet across at the crown and 100 feet at the base, are Bergheim, Fritlar, Wabern and Gensungen. Flood waters have passed into the Fulda valley about 50 miles below the reservoir.

Photographs of the Moehne area, it was stated, showed that the floods had rushed through Neidersee Neheim, which has a population of 50,000 and tonight had reached Froendenberg and Schwerte, 30 miles from the reservoir.

"If the floods have passed on beyond Schwerte—as seems possible—they have invaded very much more of the industrialized part of the Ruhr valley and are therefore likely to have caused even more damage than believed already," the ministry said.

Flood Casualties
DNB, German official news agency, listed 711 persons, including 341 prisoners of war, as flood casualties and said 36 still were missing.

In the American raid on Kiel, the Germans put up smudge-pot smoke screens both from land and from ships in harbor—that from the vessels being an innovation—but flyers reported good hits there and at Flensburg, as well.

The raid disclosed for the first time organizational expansion of the Fortress force.

reached the coal fields, a mass meeting of miners employed in three mines near Johnstown, Pa., voted to walk out—marking the first break away from Lewis' truce pledge. Approximately 1800 men work in the affected pits, where the regular midnight shift did not report.

Another 950 miners in that area went on strike today, declaring they were dissatisfied with the contract dispute status and "we want some action." This closed another mine and raised to 2750 the total of men now idle.

conference and suggested three tangible results which could reasonably be expected from its deliberations:

1. An exchange of views and information between the various delegations regarding actual conditions in their respective countries, to promote better understanding and help each nation to formulate its national policies.

2. An agreement on "some general principles of postwar policy regarding food and agriculture based on human needs, to be submitted as constructive recommendations for the consideration of participating governments."

3. Tentative plans for setting up machinery to continue and carry forward the work of the food conference.

Recognition
Chairman Jones, soon after Kuo had finished speaking, resorted to an unusual step to promote informality in the exchange of views between delegates, a step rather startling for the formal opening of an intergovernmental conference.

He asked each delegation to rise in turn to be recognized, explaining with a smile, "it might help us to get acquainted." When the Australians, first on the list, arose in their seats, the judge jocularly urged his audience to "give 'em a hand." This folksy procedure which at first seemed to puzzle the delegates, produced a real ovation later with shouts of "Vive La France" when Jones called on the French delegation to rise, and brought warm applause for embattled China and the soviet union.

LIONS BOND DRIVE APPROACHES GOAL

Klamath county's May war bond drive has reached $250,000, leaving approximately $100,000 still to go to the $350,000 Flying Fortress goal of the Lions club, war savings officials announced Wednesday.

The drive received a vigorous push in a Lions club radio auction held Tuesday night, which netted $63,275, according to Vern Owens, county vice-chairman of war savings.

Bidding was active throughout the auction session, which was extended to an hour by the local radio station.

Owens said the Lions club, which has charge of the whole drive in May, fully expects to reach the Flying Fortress goal, and continued public response through E bond purchases was urged.

The Commandos assisted in the Tuesday evening program.

lost an investment of 950,000 soldiers, 2,000,000 gross tons of shipping and over 8000 planes in their attempt to hold Africa—an attempt that would up with the allied victory in Tunisia.

One great danger to the United Nations, Churchill said in a solemn peroration, is "the undue prolongation of the war. For 50 minutes Churchill addressed the law-makers of his American ally, winding up amid tremendous applause at 1:25 p. m. (EWT).

Slide By Side
The British, Churchill said, will be in there fighting "side by side with you while there is breath in our bodies and blood flows in our veins."

When that finish fight will come he did not specify, but his ringing prophecy of utter destruction of the enemy in the Pacific sounded to a joint session of congress, went out over the air waves to the world abroad—enemy and allied countries alike.

There was thunderous applause from members of congress and high officials of this and the British government as the black-suited prime minister spread his feet apart, stuck his hands in his pockets in a characteristic gesture and made his declaration.

Meeting With Stalin
Then, he disclosed a moment later, he and President Roosevelt hope for a meeting soon with Premier Stalin of Russia and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China.

Churchill declared also that Britain's air offensive is forcing Germany to withdraw "more and more" planes from the fighting fronts to "purely defensive" operations at the expense in loss of aggression and initiative.

This, he said, will prove a "major factor in bringing victory."

As for Japan's cities and war industries, Churchill flatly declared:

"In ashes they must surely die before peace comes to the world."

Aid for China
"I regard the bringing of immediate and effective aid to China," Churchill said, "as one of the most urgent of our common tasks."

He turned to a discussion of the war in the Pacific soon after beginning his extemporaneous remarks, as if taking note of recent speeches in the senate urging that the war against Japan be given precedence over the destruction of Hitler and Mussolini in Europe.

Recounting the loss of the Dutch East Indies and of the Malayan peninsula and the great British base at Singapore, Churchill said that "all this has to be retrieved and much else has to be repaid."

"Let no one suggest," the prime minister said, "that Britain has not at least as great interest in the Pacific war as the United States."

which may be attempted to offset their losing battle to hold Attu.

Significance Seen
Military and naval experts here noted as of special significance today the fact that during the first week after the United States attack on the westernmost of the Aleutians May 11 the Japanese fleet stayed safely away from the battle zone and no attempt was made to move in reinforcements.

Since the battle may be lost in a few days, unless bad weather hampers American operations, Tokyo has little time to lose if it intends to follow the pattern of opposition laid down in the South Pacific when United States troops invaded Guadalcanal and northeastern New Guinea.

Japs Determined
The battles in those islands were marked by Japanese determination to hold their positions at all costs and as a result they spent ships, planes and men in campaigns which they could have had but the slenderest hope of winning.

The Japanese high command may still attempt to get reinforcements into Kiska, which inevitably would precipitate a naval battle with American warships in that area.
