

Martha Shops and Shops

Currin's

If you like to play cards, you ought to look into the new line of plastic coated playing cards at Currin's... They'll outlast several decks of ordinary cards, and can be cleaned easily with a damp cloth.

They aren't expensive either, especially when you consider how long they last... Just 85c for one deck or $1.70 for a double pack.

In case you're interested, they carry the Gold Edge Dura-tone label... And are at Currin's.

There still is a supply of Tussy Deodorant Cream at Currin's... At the once-a-year special price of 30c for the regular $1.00 jar... Why don't you stock up on it, since three or four jars will last you a year?

Currin's

A NEW shipment of Martha Lee's Creme Sachet has arrived at Currin's... And if you've used any since it first arrived there last year, you will be glad to hear this.

In case you don't know this unusual cream sachet, you can't imagine how its fragrance lasts or how soft and smooth it leaves the skin.

With the little jar comes a glass applicator... You dip it into the cream, touch it to the skin, and rub in the cream.

There are four fragrances, each one as refreshing as the last... In fact, I can't recommend any one because I like them all!

Martha Lee's Creme Sachet costs $1.00 at Currin's.

Whytal's

SUITS, suits, suits... As each week passes they're becoming more and more popular... So I'm going to tell you about the newest shipment of suits received at Whytal's.

These are lovely 100 per cent wool military twill... Made delightfully feminine by dress-maker details, self-covered buttons and smart tailoring.

The skirts are pleated in front and have gores in back... (Just what you need if you do much sitting!)... And a zipper up the side... In these days when zippers are so scarce!

Suits like these won't last long in stock... But they'll take years to wear out, and what's more, will remain in style... They're $39.50 at Whytal's.

Garcelon's

HERE'S a good one... A manufacturer, for many years, has specialized in making high-tension electric insulators that are guaranteed bullet-proof and weather-proof... And now he's making ceramic cookware for oven or open flame.

His line is called "Old Hickory," and has a glaze that is guaranteed against cracking or checking and is used on no other cooking utensil.

It's very hard to break, even from a fall in the sink... And is equally good in the oven or on top of the stove.

Garcelon's carries "Old Hickory" cookware... Big and little casseroles, French casseroles (which have handles), ramekins, etc.

Your Store

HAVE you bought your graduation gift?... Well, here are a few suggestions, in case you haven't... With first mention going to things for girls.

If you have ever tried Orioff's Attar of Petals line, you already love it... And Your Store has a complete selection of all the products... Soaps, cologne, cream cologne, toilet water, bubble bath, bath essence, dusting powder, etc.

The Attar of Petals are hand decorated and designed to be used later... For mustard jars, salt and pepper shakers, utility jars, etc... You can get labels for household use from the company, whose address they'll give you at Your Store.

And don't forget the half-price sale of Ybry gorgeous "Infusion de Parfum"... The regular $2 for $1.

The dressing table sets of Lucite are beautiful... And some of the brushes have nylon bristles.

By the way, if your graduate is old enough to smoke, here's a tip that there are cigarette lighters at Your Store!... Made in Switzerland, and suitable for either masculine or feminine use... Each has a clever windbreaker that guards the flame... And they cost only $2.95.

You'll find beautiful bill folders for men at Your Store, too... All kinds and prices.

Plain Clothes

IF YOU have noticed clothes recently you'll see that slim, plain lines are in style... Of course, this is partly due to government regulations on conservation of materials and manpower... But that's not all.

American women are busier than they ever have been since pioneer days when they worked hard from sun-up until late at night... They don't want fussy clothes... They want simple things that are easy to take care of and easy to wear.

Even date dresses have taken on a simple tone... But date hats, which are for special occasions, are utterly feminine and cute... Which is in line with the hundreds of different types of clever costume jewelry to add to your plain costume.

Ban on Fun Driving Hits East Again; West Warned

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Secretary Ickes said today further reductions in use of gasoline for driving will have to be made "before the present crisis is over," despite reimposition of the pleasure-driving ban in most of the east and noon.

New restrictions may have to be imposed on driving in the middle west as well as the east because "we might temporarily have to bring more supplies from the middle west (to the east), using the shorter haul," the interior secretary told a press conference in his capacity as petroleum administrator.

Ickes declined to discuss the form of the indicated restrictions—possibly further reduction in ration coupon allowances and perhaps extension of the pleasure-driving ban to the middle west—because, he insisted, that is the province of the office of price administration.

Ickes reiterated "what I've been saying for a year and a half—there ought to be no non-essential driving and there is a lot of it." He added that if non-essential driving had been banned long ago, gasoline stocks would have been large enough to avert the present critical position of the east.

Biggest blow to the east, Ickes said, was the break in the 20-inch pipeline near Little Rock, Ark., where a section was damaged by a flood.

He said this would mean a net loss to the east of 200,000 barrels of oil each day until flood waters subside so repairs can be made.

Well-Fed Luxuries Tempt Debaters of Post-War Hunger

By JAMES MARLOW AND GEORGE ZIELKE
HOT SPRINGS, Va., May 20 (AP)—What is the picture foreign food conference delegates are getting of the United States?

Some of them represent enemy-occupied and starving countries. All are here to discuss ways and means of easing or preventing hunger in the post-war world.

In conferences they may get one view. But outside the meetings, here's what they see:

High among the laurel-clad hills of the Alleghenies, they are gathered in a well-fed, well-heeled atmosphere—in the $12-a-day-minimum elegance of the Homestead hotel, where steak, potatoes and coffee are on the regular menu.

Comfort and relaxation are the slogans here.

Luxury shops line the hotel corridors. There's a stock ticker in the office of a stock exchange house in the lavishly carpeted lobby.

The Virginia state liquor control board, at the request of the state department, has permitted importation of about 2400 pints of liquor (there are 157 delegates and 281 aides attending the two-week sessions) to augment the one gallon which each delegate and attache could bring in personally under Virginia's liquor law.

owns the hotel, also owns 17,000 acres of property hereabouts.

Hotel literature announces that "all this domain is more like a feudal barony, perhaps, than like a commercial property in the 20th century."

All life at Hot Springs revolves around the corporation, which owns most of the property on the town's one street. White persons' homes are scattered around the neighborhood of that street. Negro hotel employees live in a colony about a mile away.

Snuggled around the hotel's domain are private estates listed on a lobby map as belonging to Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and the Baroness Rosenkrantz, among others.

More than 200 persons are employed at the hotel, where bellmen (not "bellboys," please) never page a guest. They're expected to remember guests by their faces and seek them out quietly.

For sports-minded delegates there is fishing in the hotel's privately stocked mountain streams, three golf courses, tennis courts, horseback riding.

The more sedate can attend the nightly movie in the hotel theatre, listen to stringed music, or wander in a sunken garden where fountains play around three stone cherubs happily choking stone fish.

NO EXCUSE

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 20 (AP)—Failure to hear air raid sirens while taking a bath is no excuse for not blacking out, contends City Judge Henry W. Clements. And now his wife knows it.

Mrs. Alice Moran Clements paid a $5 fine as a blackout violator.

Lincoln was taller than Washington.
