

Children Killed as German Raiders Hit Sunday School

A SOUTHWEST ENGLISH TOWN, May 31 (AP)—A six-foot carving of the crucifixion still hung over the pile of rubble that was the Parish church of this popular peacetime resort until German raiders wrecked it on Sunday, killing at least 18 children and three Sunday school teachers.

The crucifix was suspended from the archway, which besides the steeple, was the only part of the building left standing.

While rescue workers still dug in the debris in search of victims, the German radio broadcast a communique on the raid which said, "fast German bombers raided harbor towns on the English south and southeast coast and dropped bombs of heavy caliber on installations of military importance."

Besides the dead so far counted, 14 children were seriously injured and 10 slightly hurt. An undetermined number of children and teachers are still missing.

In other neighborhoods more men, women and children were killed and injured as bombs from 15 raiders crashed down in the town's worst raid.

On the gates of the wrecked church there are still notices announcing that a collection at yesterday's service was for the bishops' fund for damaged churches.

Not a single person in the church escaped death or injury. Frank Perrott's 12-year-old twins, Michael and Mary, went to the service dressed in their best clothes. Last night he saw Mary's body brought out of the wreckage.

Generous Conductor Gives Free Car Rides on Holiday

DETROIT, May 31 (AP)—A conductor on a Grand River Jefferson street car this morning started out his day's work by clapping his hand firmly over the fare box and telling passengers:

"This is a holiday. Ride's on the house. Step right on and make yourself at home."

Even transfers were waved aside.

"Keep 'em for souvenirs," he said.

The startled passengers exchanged smiles.

The street car rolled out towards the factory district.

"Nobody sh'd work on a holiday. S'a holiday, isn't it?" said the conductor a little uncertainly from his post in the middle of the street car.

The motorman's attention was attracted. He stopped at the St.

Jean car barns and presently returned with a trim and highly efficient feminine conductor, who took over.

"Fares please," she snapped, and the streetcar returned to normal.

DREAM GAME

PHILADELPHIA, May 31 (AP) Night baseball has come of age in the major leagues. The annual "dream game" between all-star teams of the two major circuits will be played under the floodlights at Shibe park July 13. All receipts will be turned over to the fund to provide baseball equipment for the armed forces.
