All of the following contributed as requested:

Labor contributed from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners was done by J. R. Fugill, Walt Salsberry, I. T. Whitney, W. C. Haworth, Earl Godding, A. E. Johnson, John Randall, R. N. Meads. "The committee realized there are many more who would have welcomed the opportunity to contribute but we felt the character of the memorial was such that a public request would not be appropriate. It is also our hope that we have not omitted names of any donors."

"The committee will continue to function to maintain the memorial and to add names should that be necessary. We welcome any suggestions and criticisms. Our headquarters are in the district attorney's office."

The statement was signed by John Houston, mayor, Colman O'Loughlin, chairman, Rose M. Poole, Rev. Timothy A. Casey, John P. Linman and W. A. Constan.

Music Lovers Enjoy Voice Recital Saturday Evening

By IRIS NELSON

A delighted crowd of music lovers enjoyed an excellent and varied program of song Saturday evening, May 29, when Mrs. A. J. Vove presented her voice students at an exceptionally fine recital given in the First Presbyterian church.

Showing a great deal of poise as well as musical talent, beginning and advanced students alike charmed the audience. Both highly classical and well-loved folk songs were included, enabling everyone to hear at least one of his favorites.

Beginning the musicale, 15-year-old Marjorie McCollum, mezzo-soprano, sang selections from the "Merry Widow" and "Fortune Teller." Marjorie's voice was true, sweet and pleasing, though she has had only a few lessons.

In a promising contralto with a delightful undertone, Mary Jo Hallett, 16, another new pupil, sang "In the Gloaming."

Mezzo-soprano Marguerite Picard, 15, with two selections, "Jesus Please Show Me the Way" and "Little Old Lady," showed distinct talent and good presentation. Marguerite, too, has had only a few lessons.

With excellent poise, Jean Bowling, who has had but a few months of training under Mrs. Vove, sang "Lover Come Back to Me" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," in a good, clear soprano.

A duet rendition of "Mighty Like a Rose" by Marianne Lion and Conrad Schultz was very well done with beautifully blending voices.

Marianne Lion's solos, "Transformation" and "Carmena Waltz Song" were sung in a strong, clear, well developed mezzo-soprano with good range.

After only a few music lessons Fred Ross sang "Goin' Home" and "When Song is Sweet" so well that the audience demanded an encore. For this number, Fred sang "Mexicali Rose." Ross is a promising baritone.

Most dramatic selection of the evening was "The Cry of Rachel," remarkably well done by Mrs. Rex Hiatt, soprano. Mrs. Hiatt, who really made the audience feel for Rachel asking "death" to return her child, has a clear, strong voice. She also sang "By the Sea."

Mrs. Jerome Henry selected the "Wanderer's Night Song" and "Spring Is a Lady" for her numbers, sung in a sweet, clear mezzo-soprano.

A duet, "Will You Remember," was sung with perfect harmony by Paddy Brown and Fred Ross.

Schubert's "Serenade," especially requested, was beautiful as sung by Paddy Brown, lyric soprano. Paddy, whose voice is mature and very well developed for a girl of just 16, and who also knows how to put a song over, selected "Au Printemps" as her second number. "Alice Blue Gown" was chosen by Paddy for her encore.

Conrad Schultz, 18, an older music student and very popular with the audience, sang "The Rogue Song" and "Dusty Road" in his clear effortless baritone. Though asked for an encore, Conrad was unable to sing one, as he said he "was unprepared for anything like this," meaning the persistent applause.

Coloratura soprano, Mrs. Rollin Cantrall, thrilled her listeners with her "Ah fors e lui" (from the opera La Traviata) and "Brown Bird Singing." Mrs. Cantrall's exceptional range and clear bell-like tones show an unusually fine talent.

Marie Obenchain, gifted accompanist, added much to the musicale.

LOCAL BAKERS WORK LONGER, GET MORE PAY

A contract renewal upping weekly working time from 40 to 48 hours has been concluded between the Bakery and Confectioners' union, No. 382, and Fluhrer's bakery of Klamath Falls.

Pursuant to the presidential order that all essential industries go on a 48-hour week basis, the contract provides for 40 hours of straight time and time and a half for overtime for the eight additional hours.

Fred Hoagland, manager of the bakery, said this will affect about 60 employees and will enable them to fill the shortage of labor which resulted when 30 employees went into the service.

With their weekly paychecks upped, Fluhrer's employees, who have been heavy bond buyers, are expected even to increase their war bond purchases.
