Machinists to Fight Back to Work Order

REDWOOD CITY, Calif., June S (P)—The International Association of Machinists, lodge 68 (AFL) has indicated it will fight a back-to-work suit filed by the National Motor Bearing Co., on the grounds that the California hot cargo and secondary boycott law is unconstitutional.

The company's suit, based on the law, seeks a court judgment directing the men to return to their jobs. Forty to 50 machin-ists walked out May 17. Nineteen have since returned despite a union order directing them to stay away from the plant. The dispute involves renewal of a contract with the union which elapsed March 30.

Winning the war is the important thing now. Being so close to the farmers of Klamath county, and realizing how important their contribution is to the war effort, we are trying to do our part by giving the best service possible under the circumstances. New farm equipment is scarce and repairs often difficult because vital materials are going into active war implements. We at home will have to work harder and longer to get our jobs done, but victory is worth every sacrifice.
