PROFIT-TAKING GIVES MARKET LIGHT DRUBBING

By VICTOR EUBANK
NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—Stocks underwent another moderate drubbing from profit-takers in today's market although most lowers put up a fairly respectable defensive battle.

Further slipping tendencies were evident at the start. At the worst minus signs ran to 2 points or so. Offerings never were unduly pressing and, with dealings slow at intervals, a little support arrived after mid-day. Transfers were around 1,100,000 shares.

Excuses for cashing in on the long forward swing varied. Cited were: The desire to trim commitments in preparation for the expected all-out European invasion; skepticism over tax and labor outlooks, and doubts regarding the confused situation in the Argentine.

On the outside most of the day were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Morris & Essex, Goodrich, Western Union, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, DuPont.

GRAIN FUTURES TRADING DULL

CHICAGO, June 8 (AP)—Trading in grain futures was dull today and price changes were held to narrow limits as most interests apparently withdrew to await developments on price ceilings and announcement of the loan rates on 1943 crops.

Oats showed independent strength most of the session, but wheat was generally lower while rye fluctuated above and below the previous close. Trading was light in all pits.

At the close wheat was 1/2 lower to 1/4 higher than Monday's final quotations, July $1.44 1/2, September $1.45; rye was unchanged to 1/2 cents up, July 95 1/2, September 97 1/2; oats advanced 1/4 to 1/2 cent and corn was unchanged at ceiling bids.

Strange Newcomer Grooms Pete, the Pet Deer, When He Returns From Wandering

By RUTH KING
Pete is a black tail deer that has been raised at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Rowden at Fish Lake. For two consecutive winters he has taken leave when the first snows were drifting down over the high mountains.

Two years ago Mrs. Rowden, whose husband is associated with the Medford irrigation district, mourned loss of her pet, wondering as the snow deepened if Pete found plenty of browse. He had been used to a nibble of sugar, an occasional cracker and the run of the woods about the house for four years.

He fraternized on moonlight nights with his wild friends, always returning each morning for his daily inspection of the house, his bell tinkling from room to room.

The winter wore on and all hope of seeing him again fled. Then spring blew in over the tall pines and one day word came that Pete was on the slopes above Upper Klamath Lake.

Mrs. Rowden went at once to the location where he had been seen and, after searching for hours, heard his bell. Her call brought him loping to her side. She led him to a pick-up truck, loaded him in and once more he frolicked along the shores of Fish Lake.

Last November his mistress went to Ashland for the winter. Two days later he again disappeared. In March the Rowdens trekked in over six miles of snow covered road.

No bell or sharp stamping feet greeted their arrival and once again they gave up hope of seeing Pete.

But, somewhere, perhaps beneath the overhanging branches of his pine bed, Pete felt the urge to go home and, a few days ago, he returned. This time, however, he found competition in the hearts of his family. Snug in a bassinette before the big living room fireplace was a new baby boy.

The day was warm, the door was open and the sound of his stamping feet brought Mrs. Rowden to the porch. There stood Pete, eager for a greeting. He made minute inspection of the room, coming at last to the crib before the fire. Above the sleeping child his soft muzzle quested, his mind searching for an answer.

There will be plenty of room in the hearts of the Rowden family for their son and for Pete, too, but the family wonders how Pete will react to the situation, come another spring.

Bug Watchers Say Cherry Fly Out

CORVALLIS, June 8 (AP)—Bug watchers, who have to be as faithful as airplane spotters, report the first of the cherry fruit flies, at the Oregon State college experiment station. Cherry growers have been warned to attack with sprays or dust immediately.

Flies began emerging from the ground last weekend, S. C. Jones, entomologist, said. They begin laying eggs in about 10 days. The only way to protect cherries is to kill these flies before they lay their eggs, as the eggs are deposited under the cherry skin hence there is no chance to poison the newly hatched larva as is done with apple worms.

FREE
WALLA WALLA, June 8 (AP) Herbert Allen, Spokane murderer serving a life sentence at Washington state prison, gained his freedom Saturday by telling a newly employed guard that his work was outside the prison walls, penitentiary officials revealed last night. The guard allowed him outside without further challenge, officials reported.
