

KLAMATH SPORT NOTES

Bart Goldbar has finally signed with the local Pelicans. Baseball fans welcome Bart's signing as his slugging ability is respected throughout Oregon. Bart led the Dorris Lumberjacks last year in hitting and drove out 12 home runs during the season. His signing breaks the ice, and spells the difference between a winning or losing Pelican ball club.

Romo "Creepy" Crespi, former Dorris Lumberjack and now living in Mt. Shasta, was unable to make the trip to Bend last week; but will play the remainder of the season for the Pelicans. Romo is a wonderful fielding shortstop and should strengthen the infield immensely.

Fisherman, sportsman, Vic Oswald, has received his call in the army air corps and will leave some time this month. His destination is unknown.

Bill Hanaukska, ex-Pelican pitcher, won a close ball game the other day. Bill pitched for the Buckler Construction Co. of Portland, Ore. His victory was over the veteran major leaguer, Aldon Wilkie.

Congrats to Houston Robison for his fine coaching job at the Fairview grammar school. His many teams won just about every championship there was for the past season.

Remember the Pelican practice tonight at Recreation park field.

Bivins Repulses Marshall, Keeps Boxing Crown

CLEVELAND, June 9 (AP) — Jimmy Bivins' left eye was closed today but he had a firm grasp on his duration light heavyweight championship.

Lloyd Marshall of California presumed to lift the crown from Cleveland Jimmy's head last night and took the full count in the 13th heat.

A sneak right belted James and his dignity to the canvas for a two-count in the seventh and aroused a Bivins who usually expects his talents just enough to win.

The title-holder pulled up his ring trousers and dropped the California negro for counts of nine in the ninth and six in the 12th before delivering the pay-off punch.

LEGION BASEBALL

PORTLAND, June 9 (AP) — Frostkist defeated Commerce, 14-2, the Elks shut out Wisco 3-0, and Albina shaded St. John, 2-1, in a trio of Portland American Legion baseball games yesterday. Dick Lehle pitched a no-hitter for the Elks.

Yeh--They'll Have College Football on Coast in Fall, But What Kind of Football?

By RUSS NEWLAND

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9 (AP)—College football will be played in the far west next fall, save for a national emergency, but the quality, quantity and whether it will even approach the "big business" aspect of the past is as indefinite now as the algebraic symbol "X."

Discussed but yet to be acted upon is the possible geographical partitioning of the ten-school Pacific Coast conference, one of the major leagues in the country's gridiron activity.

The problem will be threshed out next Monday and Tuesday at the conference meeting in San Francisco. Graduate managers of the four California universities—California, Southern California, Stanford and California at Los Angeles—have proposed the north-south division. The northern schools oppose the idea, mainly from a financial standpoint.

The important money games, with few exceptions, take place in the southern end of the circuit. If the split is conceived, the four California members plan a home and home series with each other, the California-

Stanford classic excepted, and would pad out their schedule with strong independent colleges and service teams.

The theory is that transportation difficulties will be reduced considerably. This is disputed by the northern schools who point out that while the mileage north is slightly greater than south, either trip entails an overnight ride.

There will be some playing talent at practically every school. How much depends on the extent of war service calls before September.

The Universities of Southern California, California and Washington appear to be in the most favorable spots—designated for navy training programs. Washington, for instance, expects 1300 men from this windfall. Southern California has the nucleus for an outstanding team. First stringers from last year's squad expected to be on hand include Halfbacks Mickey McArdle, Howard Callanan and Johnny Evans; Ralph Heywood, end, and Dick Jamison, tackle. They're marine reserves, with chances to finish.

Washington's Navy set-up brings crack Halfbacks Sam Robinson and Bob Erickson in to the picture along with three other 1942 regulars and promising reserves. California had a spring turnout of 75-100.

The western Rose bowl representatives of last New Year's Day, University of California at Los Angeles, is practically certain of George Phillips, fullback with 4-F draft classification, and two other first string men. Oregon State college is counting on one returning letterman and the use of 17-year-olds. Oregon likewise has a veteran letterman, Bob Koch, in the navy specialist class, and a 17-year-old tackle.

Stanford's outlook is bleak, with a 4-F fullback and a 17-year-old, both newcomers, as the only certainties. Things are blacker at Washington State college, where one 4-F was on hand at the last check and still darker at the Universities of Idaho and Montana, where apparently it is now impossible to flush out a whole, able bodied player. Montana, in fact, hasn't even a coach.

Of all the schools within the class A or B football range, only one, Gonzaga of Spokane, definitely is out of football.

St. Mary's, Santa Clara, Loyola and University of San Francisco are making plans to play. So is the University of Nevada. Amos Alonzo Stagg, who will be 81 when the season comes around, said he would field a team at the College of the Pacific if he could find 11 players. University of Arizona will carry on although the state's two teachers' colleges, Flagstaff and Tempe, have quit for the duration. University of Portland and Willamette, strong minor leagues in the state of Oregon, will be represented on the gridiron if at all possible.

Angels Clip Seals, 8-1 to Boost Lead

Oaks Turn Back Hollywood, 5 to 3; Portland-Seattle Feud to Resume

By The Associated Press
Los Angeles clipped San Francisco, its foremost challenger for Coast league leadership, 8 to 1 Monday and Oakland defeated Hollywood 5 to 3 as the rest of the league prepared to open new series today.

The Portland-Seattle feud will resume at twilight, on the Rainiers' grounds, with the Beavers distinct favorites on past performance and league standings. The Rainiers, who probably will rely on Hal Turpin for the mound chores, are freshly and not far out of the cellar while Portland is in fifth place as a result of a highly successful southern tour. Manager Shea has decided on Ad Liska as his pitching choice.

Meanwhile, the Angels yesterday boosted their lead to 7½ games as Paul Gehrman limited the Seals to seven scattered hits while Ray Harrell, ace of the San Francisco mound staff, was allowing 13 bingles. The game was all over for practical purposes after the fourth inning when the Angels broke through Harrell's delivery to score five runs on five hits and two walks.

Oakland drew within a half game of the third place San Diego Padres through its victory over Hollywood.

San Diego was idle yesterday and will open up on the cellar Solons at Sacramento.

The short scores:
Oakland 5 10 0
Hollywood 3 5 1
Pippen and Raimondi; Erault and Brenzel.

Los Angeles 8 13 0
San Francisco 1 7 0
Gehrman and Holm; Harrell, Buzolich (8) and Ogdowski.

NAMPA, Idaho, June 9 (AP)—Bud Lyda pitched a no-hit game, but lost, 1 to 0.

Hurling for the Nampa American Legion Juniors, Lyda walked a Meridian outfielder, who moved to second on a forceout, stole third and scored the game's only run on an error. Lyda fanned nine and walked three.

War Bond Sale Super Duper Nets Gigantic Sum as Bids Run High for Ball Players

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, June 9 (AP) — There's obviously a lot of the elephant in the sports fan in general and the baseball bug in particular, even when it hits him where he feels it most—in the B. R.

The B. R., naturally, is the bankroll, and the rubber band was peeled all the way off it yesterday as the faithful of all shapes and sizes—got together to "bid in" their favorite New York and Brooklyn ball players for just under $124,000,000 in the biggest one-day bond sale super-duper the treasury department has ever known.

And what was most notable about the "auction" was that the fellows who are over the peak now, but who'll always be the big guys to Gus Fan, were the ones who got the hottest play in this "sale," in which buyers bid millions as if they were two-bit pieces for the privilege of sponsoring various players the rest of the season.

And up on the block, getting the most attention as "auctioneer" Jimmy Walker Worker, were the three top guys—King Carl Hubbell, Belting Bill Dickey and Dixie the Dasher Walker.

They were the "favorites" of their respective teams. Dixie, the "people's choice" in Brooklyn in spite of years of the front office "brush-off," drew the top bid of the day—$11,250,000—from the Brooklyn club, a social organization, and this was strictly a "steal." For, an industrial organization, which has been against the Brooklyn club decided it wasn't cricket to fight it out with a social organization and so stopped raising the ante, although one of its representatives explained later it had been prepared to go to $15,000,000 to get Dixie.

And Hubbell "went" for $3,000,000 after the representative of the Esso Marketers, which had already oversubscribed its scheduled allotment, "stalled" the bidding for a few minutes to call his home office and get an "okay" to go even higher for old King Carl.

And, about the neatest gesture of all was a bid of $2,000,000, by a group who called themselves the "Bronx Syndicate," in order to get Dickey. It turned out they were just neighbors of Yankee stadium.

Then there was the $3,000,000 bid for Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons, the best-loved Dodger of them all, by Brooklyn Boro President John Cashmore, himself. This one was the clincher, because Fat Freddie not only is just about to call it a career, but he wasn't even on the list of players to be auctioned.

All told, 37 players were "bid in" — a dozen each from the Yanks and Giants and 13 from the Bums (Fat Freddie was the extra). For each single player makes the rest of the season, his sponsor agreed to buy a $2500 bond; for each double a $5000; for each triple $7500, and for a homer, $10,000. If he's a pitcher, a win calls for a $5000 subscription and a shutout for $50,000.
