

HENLEY HITS ETHER WAVES IN BOND DRIVE

Another of the radio programs put on the air by the Kiwanis club will be presented at 6:45 tonight with the community of Henley to be presented. In the program, Henley will make its bid for a fighter plane to be named the Henley Hornet. Money for the fighter planes is to be raised through June bond sales.

Appearing on the program will be O. A. Schultz, who will yodel, and his son, Conrad, who is an outstanding young soloist.

The program will be under the supervision of two Kiwanians, Elmer Balsiger and Elbert Veatch. John Houston will again be master of ceremonies. Programs to be heard next week, Gilchrist, Chiloquin-Fort Klamath, and Bly-Beatty will be represented.

SAD, SAD STORY

ATLANTA, (AP)—Judge James C. Davis of the Stone Mountain circuit, who for several years has raised registered Aberdeen-Angus cattle strictly for breeding, finally parted with a heifer for beef purposes, then proudly bought a roast cut from the same animal.

But after Mrs. Davis cooked it and the family sat down to the table, the judge couldn't bring himself to touch it. Nor could his wife.

"I just couldn't do it," His Honor said. "I just couldn't eat a single mouthful. Why, just last week I was stroking that heifer's back."

The servants had a feast.

Father Writes Toughest Story

PHILADELPHIA, June 18 (AP)—"This is the toughest story I was ever called upon to write, but it is part of the toll of war and nothing can be done about it."

This note preceded a story received today from Fred Manship, editor of the Coatesville Record and Coatesville correspondent of the Associated Press.

The story: "COATESVILLE, Pa., June 17.—Technical Sergeant Fred B. Manship Jr., 19, of this city, was fatally wounded in the North African area, according to word sent by the war department to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Manship."

Teachers Assist In Monument Jobs

Ed Parker of Merrill and Charles Woodhouse, Klamath Union high school teacher, are now rangers stationed at the Lava Beds national park.

Also at the national park is Lillian Redkey, a teacher here, who is entering her second season of service as a lookout at Schonchin butte. Mrs. Anna F. Todd was another lookout stationed there last year. She is a teacher from Chiloquin.

BREATHLESS ROMANCE

WINNEMUCCA, Nev., (AP)—The bus pulled into Winnemucca. D. Stanford Harris, 32, Layton, Utah, and Miss Lorraine Christensen, 21, Hyrum, Utah, fled.

Obtaining a marriage license from the county clerk, they rushed to Justice of the Peace John Fransway for the ceremony, rounded up two witnesses, filed the license with the county recorder, and sprinted back to their bus—all within a ten-minute stopover.

Gearing Taxes to Ability To Pay Next Big Question

By JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Who can spare the 12 billion dollars which Secretary Morgenthau wants to raise by new tax legislation?

That's a big question here now: How to gear new taxes (or forced savings) to ability to pay? Although the recently-enacted pay-as-you-go collection plan for income taxes doesn't change tax rates and, although it's been decided that any new taxes on income won't be effective until 1944, there's this to be considered:

Taxes in 1944 and 1945 have been increased, in effect—as the hangover of pay-as-you-go—by the two installments which will come due in those years to pay the 25 per cent uncancelled portion of a taxpayer's 1942 or 1943 tax obligation, whichever is lower.

Even if new levies take the form of compulsory savings—to be returned to the taxpayer after the war, the question still pops up: Who can spare the money?

The search for an answer turns around the matter of deductions and exemptions.

Secretary Morgenthau has said that after the war there should be a more accurate conception of taxable income "giving more adequate recognition to expenses involved in securing our income and variations in the cost of providing a basic living standard."

A lot of people say that ought to be done right now.

Most of the suggestions for bigger deductions in figuring income taxes seem to fall into three sections:

1. For fixed commitments—like paying for a house, insurance premiums, payment of old debts.
2. For unusual expenses—illness, accident, death.
3. For children over 18 who still are in school—expense of sending them to college is usually much higher than sending them to high school.

Payments for life insurance premiums and for old debts already figure in one part of the tax law: Along with purchases of war bonds, they form the basis for credits under the victory tax.

Senator Bridges (R-N.H.) already has introduced legislation which if enacted would grant a deduction from income taxes for life insurance premiums—on policies in force on December 7, 1941—up to $1000 or 10 per cent of net income, whichever is lower.

Some tax authorities have suggested a lump sum reduction for housing, on the theory that the present law is unfair to renters: Home owners are able to deduct real estate taxes; renters who help pay them get no such deduction.

The law already provides a deduction for medical expenses over and above 5 per cent of net income (as figured without benefit of this deduction). Some persons argue, therefore, that all medical expenses should be deductible.

There's a whole side argument about the victory tax. Some tax experts argue that it would be better to eliminate this tax and add a few percentage points to regular income taxes, thus eliminating the taxpayer's necessity for computing two sets of figures.

Too, there's the argument that the credit provisions of the victory tax don't help those who need the credits most: The persons who can't afford to buy enough war bonds, pay enough life insurance premiums or old debts to get full measure of the credits.
