Our Home Town

Admit Your Mistakes - But Quick

By EARL WHITLOCK

If you are doing war work of any kind—if you are making any of the machines with which either our fighting or our home front is supplied, make a resolution right now to admit any errors you may make. You know, we are not trained to do that. From the time we are old enough to make mistakes and to be punished therefor, we habitually alibi ourselves out of responsibility for error. But this is war now. This isn't playing marbles. This is for keeps. And machines and apparatus must be error-free—MUST be—or else someone is liable to lose his life through their failure.

So, in your work, whatever it is, if you make a mistake and realize afterwards what you have done, tell your superior at once. He may say something stronger to you than "Mercy me!" to be sure. But let him rave. At least you will be showing that you take your work and your responsibility seriously.

A foreman in a war plant told me, just the other day, of one error, admitted by the man who made it, and admitted at once. And that admission saved the company over 300 man hours of work. That's what it would have cost to correct the mistake later, after the machine had been all assembled.

So admit your errors—and with no delay.

We invite you to visit Memory Garden.

Next Monday Mr. Whitlock of the Earl Whitlock Funeral Home will comment on SELFISHNESS.
