EDITORIALS ON NEWS

It's these air fields we're gunning for, as they will be important stepping-stones for attack on the big Jap base at Rabaul.

COLONEL McCormick, of the Chicago Tribune, says Willkie is a joke, and couldn't carry a single state west of New Jersey.

This writer's advice is to keep your fingers crossed. Nobody knows how strong Willkie OR ANYBODY ELSE is right now.

(MAYBE that was back in the days when the No. 1 rule was to say nothing worth while but devote your time to peddling bunk that you couldn't be pinned down on.)

THIS writer has a notion that the public generally is impatient with ANYBODY who has had a finger in the pie and wants somebody ENTIRELY NEW.

(FDR is a possible, maybe a probable, exception. The voters might easily elect him to a fourth term and along with him a congress DIRECTLY OPPOSED to him.)

THIS fourth term situation is intensely interesting to students of history and government.

Sooner or later, history tells us plainly, people tend to become distrustful of the democratic processes (or too lazy to assume their share of the responsibilities of self-government) and turn to ONE MAN as their saviour.

Maybe we've reached that point now.

IN trying to estimate the future, we can't overlook the millions of men in the armed services. When they come home from the wars, they're going to have a big say as to what the America of the future is to be.

Based on talking to hundreds of them, this writer's flat opinion is that they don't want to come back to an America that is WHOLLY NEW. They're going to want to see the old, familiar things. They won't even like it if the house has been so completely done over that it will look strange.

Since they became old enough to pay attention to such things, millions of these boys have never known ANY OTHER PRESIDENT than Franklin D. Roosevelt.

So, you see, Roosevelt as President, whether in his third or his fourth term, will be a PART of the familiar scene to which these boys yearn to come back.

If you are of a thoughtful turn of mind, this will help to explain to you why this fourth term situation holds so much interest, entirely apart from its partisan angles, for students of history and government.

The army's air transport command has three times as many pilots operating as the entire army air forces had four years ago.

Telling The Editor

Letters printed here must not be more than 200 words in length... Mystery Shortage

BEND, Ore. (To the Editor)—Readers of this column might be interested to know that there is a lamentable shortage of mystery stories of all time...

Carlton Morse, author of "I Love A Mystery," a radio series of Bend, Ore., believes that his selection of what he terms "the ten best detective stories of all time," is an extremely representative list.

While the idea is a sound one, I can't agree with Mr. Morse that anyone can arbitrarily name a list, for there are mysteries of all kinds which can be chosen.

A better plan would be to simply round up all mystery titles on our shelves and package them for mailing. Let the soldiers and sailors decide after receiving them what they shall read.

Mrs. C. A. Weil, 463 Congress, Bend, Oregon.

SEARS PRESENTS BOOKS TO SCHOOLS

Five of the city schools now have a complete set of the Encyclopedia Britannica junior edition, presented through courtesy of Sears, Roebuck company last week to Arnold Gralapp, school superintendent, by J. E. Hawkins, local manager of Sears.

This presentation was in keeping with Sears' policy of giving educational institutions control of the encyclopedia. Recently the Encyclopedia Britannica company, owned by Sears, was turned over to the University of Chicago and presentation of the volumes to schools throughout the country has followed.

In view of the fact that the county schools have been given more attention than the city through the Sears program of sponsoring 4-H dairy calves, Hawkins said, he was very happy to make this presentation of volumes to the city school system.

In behalf of the city school system, Gralapp expressed his appreciation for the encyclopedias valued at approximately $500. The volumes are for the use of the grade pupils.
