

REQUIREMENTS FOR OFFICERS IN NAVY TOLD

Klamath men interested in naval officers commissions and who believe themselves qualified may obtain information by writing to the branch office of Naval Officer Procurement, 1233 American Bank building, Portland, according to word received here from Lieutenant J. J. McNamara, a recent Klamath visitor. Men writing should give information about themselves and their qualifications.

Here are the general requirements.

All applicants should have a college degree if under 30 years of age. If over 30, a minimum of two full years of college is required plus an outstanding record of achievement in business or professional life which can be considered as equivalent of work which would have completed a college course.

Applicants must meet physical standards for each classification, but waivers are sometimes granted for non-organic physical defects.

Here, briefly, are the various classifications:

General Duty—Ages 19 to 30. Must be physically qualified for sea duty. Communications, operations of small craft, general deck duty, charge of gun crews.

Engineering—Civil, electrical, mechanical and radio engineers, particularly needed.

Men who are graduates in engineering fields of agricultural, industrial, general, chemical, mining, etc., are needed for radar training courses. Requirements include a completed course in calculus and at least one year in physics. Ages 21-35.

Men with advanced radio experience and education in radio or electrical engineering needed for radar maintenance. It is possible men with amateur radio license and good practical experience may qualify. Ages 19-50.

Military Government—Applicants must possess degrees, preferably graduates in public administration, international relations, government, etc. Ages 28-45, but men under 30 will not be taken if physically qualified for sea duty.

Supply Corps—College degree required. Outstanding young men for general service supply officers upon completion of course of instruction. Ages 19-28.

Men also needed with experience in industrial management or business administration. Openings for men experienced in procurement, control, storage, movement and accounting for supplies and material.

Chaplaincy—Chaplain must be a fully ordained minister, four years of college plus bachelor of divinity or doctor of sacred theology degree.

Air Combat Intelligence—Ages 25 to 38. Open to administrators, lawyers, personnel men, radio announcers, reporters, teachers, writers and salesmen who are alert, successful, able to operate effectively under stress. Experience in accurate interviewing necessary. Some knowledge of navigation, etc., also helpful.

Radar Plot Officers—23 to 38. Fighter director officers afloat and ashore.
